STOP WORRYING

A Philosopher's Straight Talk on a Common Ailment

Here's the inspiration for this homely, taken straight from real life. Husband and wife are on their way to the station. The wife says something, and you can just catch her anxious, querulous tones. Borne on the wind comes the man's reply—rude and despair mixed: "For goodness' sake do stop worrying!"

On the principle that we should endeavor to do the greatest good to the greatest number, this homely, then, is mainly for the ladies—pardon! The men are not exempt, only in a minority; and where the cap fits, they will, of course, wear it.

The drink habit, the drug habit, the nagging habit, the worry habit, are friends. They are home-wreckers and love-enders. The two former can be cured; the two latter have to be endured. And worrying is worse than nagging, for it masquerades as a virtue—over-anxiety, loving care, and so forth—when all the time it is a vice. "It's worry that kills." Yes, that's true enough. Worry alters your face, your expression, your voice, your outlook on life, in fact.

And have you ever seriously thought of the effect on others of your eternal worrying? It is taking the joy out of their lives entirely. Leave them their own horizon. They will get away from you if they can. You are getting yourself disliked.

That is more than sad as between a mother and her children. Yet it happens if "mother is always worrying." It's a miserable habit.

And what's the good of it? This perpetual dwelling on distant contingencies is silly and sickening. Excuse the word, but it is the right one. Worry produces nothing, alters nothing, hurries nobody. What's the good of it? Do you know that worrying is merely an inefficient substitute for action and forethought?

Test that statement. You worry over whether the dinner will be ready. It doesn't make the oven hotter, or saucepans boil more quickly, or put the hands of the clock back. Get into action, and do something to hurry things. You may worry over catching a train. That won't delay the train, or get you there any the sooner. You may lie awake all night worrying over whether the morrow will be fine.

What's the good? Worrying accomplishes nothing. And you will see that to worry is an admission of personal inefficiency. You can't think if you are always worrying. A good worrier has a poor head.

Worrying is a morbid anticipation of the worst. It goes with a diseased imagination and an unbalanced mind. Something's always going to happen—but never anything pleasant.

Why picture battle, murder, and sudden death because Tommy is ten minutes late home from school? Why worry? He's only watching a dog-fight; and even if he were hurt, it would be of no use to worry.

It comes to this, that in every division of life when we've done our best, and done all, there's nothing more to do except to sit down and wait. And worry? No; the sentence ends at "wait."

You want to stop the habit? Good! Be active, then; content. Exercise foresight, and always expect the best. Don't imagine trouble. Don't worry over propositions. Bring clear thinking to bear upon them. Worry is the brain in a whirl. Keep buoyant.

What must be will be. It's no good worrying. It's all wrong. Worry kills!

APPLICATIONS.—The Charlottetown Summer Resorts, Ltd., will receive applications until May 19th from persons ready to undertake the management of their dining hall. See advertisement.

THE MARITIME OXYPATHOR CO. are desirous of securing the services of a Representative for Charlottetown and Vicinity. To anyone possessing the necessary qualifications, the position will be pleasant, profitable and permanent. Address, The General Manager, C. Fraser MacTavish, 203 Charlotte St., St. John, N. B. 5-15M6f.

PROSPECTUS RECEIVED.—The Guardian has received a copy of the prospectus of the Provincial Silver Black Foxes Limited, of which Mr. John Agnew, Alberton, is President, Mr. John O. Hyndman, Charlottetown, is Vice-President and Mr. George D. DeBlois, Charlottetown, is Secretary Treasurer. Intending investors in the fox business will find in this neat and concise handbook a fund of information which will be of both interest and profit, full information being given as to the business outlook and the prospects of the company.

GOOD INVESTMENT.—Investors should read the ad. of the Provincial Silver Black Foxes, Ltd., which appears in corrected form in today's Guardian. This company has an able and competent staff of directors, men whose business integrity is too well known to need further comment. The authorized capital is $150,000, with shares at $100 each. The ranch is ideally located on Brackley Point Road, about three miles from Charlottetown, and will be under the management of Mr. John Agnew, a man of wide experience and excellent judgment, being one of the pioneers of the fox business in this Province. With their stock of proved breeders the ranch bids fair to be one of the best financial schemes yet launched and there is no doubt that the stock will be quickly bought up. Intending investors would do well to secure the prospectus and get in this growing industry at once.

POLICE COURT.—At the Charlottetown Police Court this morning, James Pendergraft for being drunk was fined $5 or 10 days. Edward Hurry for disorderly driving was also fined $5 or 10 days.

GOOD WORK.—Last week the roads of Dunstaffnage were repaired under the direction of Roadmaster Mr. Wallace Owen. The road-machine skillfully handled by Mr. Allan J. McDonald and Mr. William Court did splendid work.

GOOD ROADS.—Great work has been accomplished on the roads under the able management of Roadmaster Mr. James Lampher. On the north end of Tracadie Road is a piece of the best work done for at least thirty years. Several new wooden bridges have been placed in his district which are considered to be the best type of bridges that can be placed on public roads. Roadmasters of this kind should prove very satisfactory to the Department of Public Works and to the ratepayers.

EXAMINATIONS.—Following are the results for the month of April in Graham's Road School. Principal: Stella Welsh. Grade VII—Wallace Crossman. Grade VI—1, Jennie MacKay; 2, Reggie MacKay; 3, Vera Brown. Grade V—1, Sadie Mallett; 2, Stella Graham; 3, Irene Murray. Grade IV, Miss Hughes' Dept.—1, Ruby Grambs; 2, Lena Crossman; 3, Borden Campbell and Alexie MacGraham; 2, P. J. Cash; 3, Victor Crossman and Beulah Campbell (equal). Grade III—1, Roy Brown; 2, Alta Campbell. Grade I—Sadie Hynes.

APPIN ROAD.—Mr. James Gass has returned home from visiting friends in Boston.—Miss Annie McLeod has returned to her home in Bonshaw after spending a few days with her sister Mrs. John Gordon.—Mr. Kilburn Gillespie spent the week-end with friends at Clyde River and New Haven.—Among the recent visitors to Appin Rd. were Mr. John Boyle New Haven; Miss Maggie McFadyen, Riverdale, and Mr. Ewen McFadyen, Riverdale; Miss Flora McPhee, Riverdale.—Mrs. James Matheson and her daughter Miss Margaret were recent visitors to Riverdale, the guests of Mr. John McPhee.—Mr. and Mrs. Norman McLeod of Riverdale spent Sunday at Appin Road recently.—Mr. and Mrs. Neil McKinnon and Mrs. Peter A. McKinnon, Riverdale, were recent visitors to Appin Road. They were the guests of Mr. John Gillespie.—Mrs. John McPhail was a visitor to Riverdale, the guest of Mrs. Norman McLeod.—Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie spent Sunday with friends at Clyde River and Cornwall.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.—The first regular meeting of the Long River Women's Institute was held in the hall on Thursday, May 1st. After passing the minutes of the organization meeting an interesting and animated discussion on bread-making followed. The members exchanged ideas freely on making yeast, bread, biscuits and kindred subjects. It was decided to ask the Department to send additional copies of the bulletin on the Principles of Domestic Science. The topic for discussion at the next meeting is Canning and Preserving. The latter subject is very popular as well as instructive for preservation of food in the home, especially the farm home, is a very important part of the housekeeper's responsibility. All methods of preserving foods must be carefully considered in order that a part of today's abundant supply of fresh food may be kept for tomorrow. In the preservation of fruits by canning and preserving the essentials in the process are sterilization of fruit, of all utensils used, and keeping airtight. The successful canning of fruits is quite common, but the preservation of such vegetables as beets, corn, beans, etc., by canning is not so frequently met with, but it can be done in the home with very little trouble and this should certainly be encouraged among our housekeepers.

THE BITTER PILL

"There is more willing helplessness in humanity than many ever find out," declared Sir Henry Irving. "In most of the troubles of life we can find the clever brain and the good heart to freely assist us if we only use sense. But then there comes, perhaps, a restraining force. It is a bitter pill for some people to swallow—the confession that one fails oneself to see the way, or has not the strength to pursue it. Everyone has occasionally to make such a confession—if one is best on doing the best. It is only confessing one is human after all, and paying the other person the compliment of believing he is human enough to extend the hand. There is more brotherhood in the world than many imagine."
