Happenings of the Week

"Make all men your well-wishers, and then, in the years' steady sifting, some of them turn into friends! Friends are the sunshine of life."

The Prince of Wales latest fashion in evening dress is a white tie with two wide loops and two ends, a departure from the one loop bow which has been the style of the season. The latest fashion was introduced at Convent Gardens by the British heir who wears upon his back a responsibility which is at once the delight and fortune of English tailors. What the Prince wears one day, the well-dressed Englishman wears the next. The Prince also created a furor when he appeared in morning dress with turned up cuffs on his striped trousers.

When asked to sign her name in the guest book on the same day at the Women's Press club, Viscountess Willingdon exclaimed: "Surely some of you ladies have a pen." Miss Florence Steiner produced hers which her excellency declared a very good one, and she wrote: "Marie Willingdon, Government House, Ottawa," and then looking about the club-rooms which were gaily decorated with flowers in her honor, Lady Willingdon promised that she would send photographs of herself and her husband to hang on the club wall. Chatting with the members, her excellency created ripples of laughter by one bright remark after another. Whether she approved of early marriages was left in doubt when she told a bright young member that she was a disgrace to have two children at her age, though admitting later that she herself was married when she was about 16.

Genuine amber necklaces are now to be found in slightly modernized styles and with smooth and carved beads. Both clear and cloudy ones are used, but not together. The necklaces come in various lengths, sometimes with smooth and carved beads alternating. The clouded beads are cut in new shapes, some in squares, some in rectangles, and others in ovals with faceting. So that these shapes will receive attention, small rondels, also of amber, are used to separate each bead. The necklaces composed of carved beads are made without rondels and are finished with clasps copied from antique brooches in dull gold.

The FLAG

"We first saw light in Canada, The land beloved of God, We are the pulse of Canada, Its marrow and its blood, And we the men of Canada, Can face the world and brag, That we were born in Canada, Beneath the British Flag."

"Few of us have the blood of kings, And few are of courtly birth, But few are vagabonds or rogues of doubtful name and worth, And all have one credential Which entitles us to brag, That we were born in Canada, Beneath the British Flag."

"We've yet to make our money, And we've yet to make our fame, But we have gold and glory, In our clean Colonial name, And every man's a millionaire, If only he can brag, That he was born in Canada, Beneath the British Flag."

Almost informal is the latest official portrait of the Queen of England, nearing completion from the pallet of M. L. Campbell-Taylor. The painting, which is intended as a companion picture to the portrait of the King in evening clothes by Sir Arthur Cope, will hang on the walls of the Royal College of Music. The Queen is depicted at her ease in the Louis XV. armchair in which she deals with her official correspondence at Buckingham Palace. She is wearing a dress of cheery velvet with wing sleeves of gold lace. The costume effectively sets off the brilliance of a collar of diamonds, an emerald and diamond pendant and diamond earrings. As the Queen is noted for her collection of jade, a small jade animal is represented in one corner of the work.

PRETTY SUMMER STYLES

Above is a group of modish costumes. (1) This effective printed frock of crepe de chine is a blending of red and rose with a tracery of green leaves and lends itself to sports wear. The coat, thrown negligently over the wearer's arm completes the ensemble, giving an added warmth against spring breezes. It is of rose kasha and has an interesting feature—the printed scarf which matches the frock. A rose felt hat and shoes are also worn. (2) What more striking costume for the races than this unusual yet intriguing hat of rough straw in brilliant yet harmonizing tones of blue, orange and tan. These same tones are repeated in the band of grosgrain ribbon and in the smart novelty jacket which is part of the outfit. Note the interesting pleat of straw on both the crown and brim of the hat, achieving a smart swerve of line. (3) This loose-fitting coat of Vionnet gray tweed trimmed with gray persian lamb, is just the thing to keep out the cold wind. It is a Gunther model.

Rheumatism Conquered! Its Pain Destroyed

And who at all times is free from twinges of rheumatism? Ordinary liniments are useless, because they are not strong enough. Nerviline exerts an immediate influence upon rheumatic pains, because it's immensely stronger than any other liniment. Nerviline is composed of the most active, pain-subduing remedies known. There's not a case of rheumatism that will not be very quickly helped by the use of Nerviline.

HERE IS PROOF

From White Cove, N. B., comes the statement of Miss Mary McAfee. She used this powerful liniment and knows just how helpful it can be. "I wish to say I was completely restored by Nerviline. It has rid me of rheumatism. I will always praise Nerviline for what it has done for me." Get a 35c bottle of Nerviline today.

BABY BORN TO EX-MAHARAJEE

PARIS, May 23.—The ex-Maharajah and Maranee (Miss Nancy Miller, an American woman) of Indore are the parents of a baby girl who was born at the Chateau d'Hennesson, near St. German-en-Laye.

In accordance with Hindu traditions, the baptism will take place 12 days after birth. The ceremony will be performed with all the complicated Hindu rites which would have been observed had the child been born in India.

The ex-Maharajah and Miss Miller were married March, 1927, after the bride had embraced the Hindu faith. Sir Tukojl Rao Holker, Maharajah of Indore abdicated in 1926 rather than appear before a commission of inquiry into his alleged association with the attempt to abduct his former dancing girl, Mumtaz Begum.
