Much of the Castile Soap sold is merely near castile. Perhaps as good as the genuine, and perhaps not.

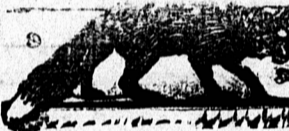

We handle the genuine imported only and supply them in any quantity desired. Castile is especially valued in any place where a pure neutral soap is desired.

TRAIN FALLS THROUGH CULVERT

LONDON, June 19.—Three women were drowned and it is feared that a dozen other persons perished yesterday when a passenger train went through a culvert and into a torrent at Carr Bridge, 28 miles south of Inverness, Scotland.

A thunderstorm that ravaged the north of England and Scotland was responsible for the accident. The train from Perth was crossing the culvert, and became derailed, and the culvert, which had been undermined, collapsed, and the passenger coaches fell into the water. It is feared that besides the known drowned a dozen other persons were caught in a submerged coach.

Many persons on the train escaped from the cars but drifted about in the stream and were badly injured before being rescued. One of the passengers, a man from New York, saved himself by gripping a tree.

BRIGHTENING UP

The good work done by the P. E. I. Floral Association last year has neither been lost nor forgotten. A splendid foundation was laid and on it many are building this season with much better prospects of success than last year. Nor has it been forgotten that one of the pleasantest events of last summer was the flower show provided by the Association. Many visitors from different parts of the province, and beyond it, visited this show and expressed both surprise and pleasure at the gorgeousness and luxuriance of the flowers raised in the province. A taste for the better class of flowers was created, faith in the possibilities of flower culture was strengthened and as a result there are more flower gardens and more flowers in the province today than there would have been had the association not been formed.

The annual appointment of officers has again been made and the date appointed for the next flower show. Much greater interest is being manifested than last year, not only in the cultivation of flowers, but in the general beautifying of the countryside. School grounds are being improved, home gardens are being prepared and, in some sections at least, attention is being paid to roadsides. This latter is especially encouraging. Prosperous communities are taking pride in their prosperity and their farms and homes are being enhanced in value by the increased attention given to appearances generally.

This is much, although but a beginning and, as a result, the condition of the roads and roadsides, the appearance of schools and school grounds, as well as of the farms, residences and outbuildings, will be regarded by visitors and strangers as the measure of the prosperity and progressiveness of a community. The summer we have just entered upon will furnish more real reason than ever for the beautifying and improvement of our province. While we owe it to ourselves and to our children to encourage the beautiful and to take pride in the fair name of our province, there is also the natural desire "to set our house in order" in anticipation of coming visitors. This summer will see more visitors in this province than ever before in its history. In addition to the Confederation Jubilee, which will doubtless attract many, there is the far-famed fox business which many will wish to see on its native soil. It will be an added attraction if we can show our visitors that, besides having the greatest industry in the world in our midst, we have also one of the most attractive and progressive countries on the continent. A little "house-cleaning" in a general way, a little more attention to appearances, a little brushing up in town and country, will go far to give our province an advertisement this summer which will mean much for it in years to come.

The object of the Floral Association is to encourage this "house-cleaning" this brushing up. Everybody in the province should be a member of it and should help to carry out the object for which it was organized, namely the beautifying of the province.

FIRE INSURANCE

The business done during the past year by fire companies operating in Canada, although larger in volume than that of the previous year, cannot be called a satisfactory one, according to the Government reports.

The net premiums on business done in 1913 amounted to $25,784,416; in 1912 to $23,194,518. The amount at risk in these two years respectively was $3,097,048,020 and $2,684,355,895; the losses incurred $14,612,940 and $11,557,713; the losses paid $13,992,702 and $12,119,581.

It will be noticed that the increase in the net premiums received, was less than that in the amount of losses incurred. One result was that of the eighty-four companies reporting not less than seventeen reported losses and expenses in excess of income, which means that accumulations from past years had to be drawn upon to make accounts balance. In consequence of or accompanying this experience two Canadian companies re-insured outstanding risk with approved U. S. companies, and in two cases the Department of Finance cancelled the licenses issued and in one case a winding-up order was issued. Canadian companies in the fire insurance field have had a chequered career. Many have found the competition too keen and have quit. Some collapsed in face of unusually heavy calls upon their resources even for this continent of aggregated fire losses, and some, after weathering the roughest weather and seeing part of their capital swept away, reached a position of confidence and strength that enables them to invite comparison with the established institutions of other lands.

Of the eighty-four companies reporting, twenty-nine are Canadians. Twenty-four have headquarters in the United Kingdom and thirty-one have their homes in foreign countries. The British companies include some of the oldest and strongest in the world whose names are widely known and whose resources are so great that there are few risks they are not ready to assume. Their ratio of losses to premium income is generally moderate, also, though, when a conflagration comes, as it comes some time or other to the concern that stays long at fire underwriting, they suffer with the rest.

The burden of the fire conditions in Canada, whose experience in the matter is similar to that of the United States, is indicated by the rate of premium charged as well as by the total sum paid to the companies as the price of indemnity from loss. The rate of premium which on the whole business done runs as high as 2.35 per cent of the amount insured in the case of one company, and gets as low as 0.70 of one per cent in the case of another, averages 1.33 per cent in the case of the Canadian companies, is 1.21 per cent in that of the British companies and 1.15 per cent in the case of foreign companies. These are somewhat high figures and represent a considerable addition to the cost of carrying mercantile stocks as well as to the price of a necessary safety provision to the ordinary householder. An improvement in construction methods and in the habits of the people that would cut these figures down even by a quarter would be in the line of profitable business.

NOTES

The County of Carleton, N. B., is preparing to establish a poor farm, and at the next session of the Legislature will ask the necessary authority. It should be made obligatory, says a New Brunswick Contemporary, on each country in the province to establish and maintain a proper home for its poor, either by itself or in conjunction with some other country or counties. An end should be forever put to the system, which still prevails in some sections, of farming out the poor.

It is reported that the suffragettes intend making things interesting for Colonel Roosevelt when he sets foot on British soil. The militant women should beware. They may succeed in making kings dodge behind police and soldiers and in making cabinet ministers fly before the waacks of umbrellas, but the hero of San Juan Hill and the discoverer of rivers of doubt is not the man to be frightened by a petticoat even if there are bricks and hatchets behind it. If the Colonel is attacked it will be a case of militant meets militant. Then the fur will fly.

The complications over the Government of Ireland Bill may end in the measure becoming law and going into force as it is, if it is not abandoned. The amending bill, which the Government has promised, will be at the mercy of a hostile House of Lords and cannot be forced through under the Parliament Act for two years, if it is thought well to pass it by the will of the House of Commons alone. The delay would be disastrous to Ireland from a business point of view, even if the Nationalists were to submit to it. A general election might give another solution, and resort to it may be had yet.

Mrs. McCready is spending a few days visiting at Cape Traverse.

Mr. John Pond, Editor in Chief of the Summerside Pioneer and Farmer last Saturday evening delightfully entertained a select party of friends at his summer bungalow, Dunk River. The party were conveyed to the classic Dunk in Mr. Pond's trim little gasoline launch, "Frank," and the voyage is described as a "dream" by one of the participants. On Saturday evening angling was indulged in very successfully for the spotted beauties which have made the Dunk famous in song and story—the last lot of which the genial host has contributed freely—and a number of exceptionally fine fish were landed. After the shades of night had gathered too shadowy for fishing the party assembled in the host's comfortable quarters and several games of bridge (Dunk River Bridge) were enjoyed. The delightful party returned Monday morning to resume their ordinary duties in the western Capital.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Nicholson, returning from Ottawa, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Emma, who has been attending College at St. Ann, de Belleville, have come home.

CLYDE RIVER MAIL

Sir—In your issue of May 21st, there appeared a letter over the signature of Mr. John McKinnon, Churchill, in which he charges the Post Master at Clyde River office with sending his papers to Bonshaw or some other remote point. Now, Sir, it would be well for Mr. McKinnon to inquire whether his papers were sent from Clyde River or not before he begins airing his grievances in the newspapers. He says the couriers are the same as when the services was faultless, giving excellent service etc., etc., performing his duty with roads next to impassable and so on. Allow me to inform Mr. McKinnon that the service is faultless still as far as Clyde River office is concerned. Now, Sir, the facts are these—The mail for Churchill and New Haven is sent from Charlottetown, in a bag separate from all other mail matter where it is sorted by the same couriers of whom Mr. McKinnon speaks so highly, of course, under the direction of the postmaster. It would be madness to think that the Clyde River office would send mail addressed to Churchill back to Charlottetown and thence to Bonshaw. If Churchill mail goes astray Clyde River office is not to blame and Mr. McKinnon will have to look elsewhere.

I am, Sir, etc.,
KENNETH MATHERSON,
Clyde River, June 19, 1914.
