The Wade Kidnap Case

adamant. Not for all the gold in Europe would he so much as approach within hailing distance of Ghost Island.

Wherever he went Brome came up against the same blank wall. As soon as he mentioned his intended destination friendly smiles faded and he became the object of mistrust.

At last he felt he would be compelled to call upon Major Mosson, or get directly in touch with Scotland Yard. Against this was the fear that an organized rescue party would endanger Felicité. He had been hoping to get her out of the hands of the kidnapers before drastic measures were resorted to.

How this was to be accomplished must depend on circumstances, although the element of surprise was in his favour. No doubt they would be expecting an attack in force in the eventuality of discovery. But a solitary individual might be able to accomplish something less spectacular yet far more satisfactory such as surreptitiously removing the most important captive to safety. Doubts never entered his mind as to his ability to accomplish this if only he was able to land on the island unobserved.

After relinquishing the second ransom as an enormous bribe to the pseudoclergyman Brome had raced to the West of Scotland, keeping clear of Oban and the creek used by the kidnapers. Troon struck him as suitable for a base of operations in spite of being a considerable distance from the island.

The map showed him the broken nature of the coastline, with its lochs, scattered archipelago, and sparsely populated hinterland and he could imagine the difficulties that had to be faced. Ghosts, however, had not occurred to him as being in formidable opposition. Desperation drove him back to Skipper MacPherson. "Let me have your boat and I'll handle her on my own, somehow," he pleaded.

"A wheel, man, that's another proposition entirely. Mind you I am not sure you can do it, but the money is a temptation. We'll ask Hughie, a gaunt, red-headed fellow with a face brine pickled by much contact with sea water, shook his head sombrely. He was not in favour of encouraging suicide. Ghost Island was ill-omened and the Pride o' the Kyles wasn't a one-man craft. Nobody could manage the engine and attend to the steering simultaneously."

In Memoriam

MRS. JOHN P. MACDONALD

At Cardigan on Wednesday, March 25th, Mrs. John P. MacDonald, aged 88 years, died at the age of eighty-eight years.

The deceased was a former resident of St. Peter's, but since the death of her husband nineteen years ago she lived with relatives at Cardigan. She was in failing health for the past two years during which time she was tenderly cared for by her cousin, Catherine Reville with whom she resided.

The funeral of the late Mrs. MacDonald took place to All Saints Church, Cardigan, on March 27th. Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Patrick McMahon, D. D. The pall bearers were: Hugh MacEachern, Donald Matheson, Joseph Quinn, Otto Roche, Austin MacGillivray and Harold Roche.

May her soul rest in peace.

MRS. C. S. MACLEOD

The death of Mrs. C. S. (Nettie) MacLeod occurred Sunday night in Amherst following a short illness. She is survived by her husband; 10 sons, Malcolm and Donald; two daughters, Vivian, of New York, and Isabel, of Toronto; two sisters, Mrs. Miss Cogswell, of Montreal, and Mrs. Maud Cutcliffe, of Hunter River, P. E. I.; one brother, Mr. C. G. Steadman, Sackville.

The funeral service will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Sympathy Extended

The following letter of condolence to Mr. James Livingstone and Mrs. Kath. Young, Clyde River, P. E. I., speaks for itself.

Dear Friends,—As it has pleased God in His All Wise Providence, to remove from your home circle, by death, your dearly beloved wife and mother, we the members of the Clyde River Pres. W. M. S. desire to express our sincere sorrow and tender our our heartfelt sympathy.

As a very worthy member of our Society, she is sorely missed for her ever willingness to help her guidance, and wise counsel and while we know that we have lost a valued member and friend we realize that your loss is immeasurably greater than ours.

We feel that anything we do or say is insufficient to heal your wounded hearts, but we pray that God may abundantly bless you and bestow His Grace upon you in such measure as to enable you to say, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

With deepest sympathy,
Pres.—Mrs. John MacNevin.
Sec.—Mrs. Spurgeon Livingstone.
Treas.—Mrs. Harry MacLean.

4-15-41.

MAXWELL HOUSE COFFEE IS REALLY FRESH
—ROASTER-FRESH
Maxwell House is sealed, roaster-fresh, in the Vita-Fresh vacuum tin. No air can get in—so no flavor can get out! Look what you get in the famous blue Maxwell House tin...
• More flavor. The Maxwell House blend contains highland-grown, extra-flavor coffees.
• All the flavor is brought out by a special roasting process that roasts every bean evenly all through.
• No waiting—Maxwell House is already precisely ground for both methods—Drip and Regular.
GOOD TO THE LAST DROP!
