Just The Man For The Job

The following letter was received in reply to an advertisement for a salesman the qualifications being rather strict. The applicant was required to give evidence as to good character and habits as well as age, efficiency and experience:—

"Gentlemen:—

While perusing the "Star this evening my attention was attracted to the above advertisement just as a magnet is attracted to steel. After reading this over I have decided that I am the man you require. Now gentlemen,do not go any further. Destroy all other applications and arrange at once an interview with me.

"Naturally you would like to know something about my record and antecedents. I am 76 years of age, stand five feet nothing in my socks, weigh 279 pounds in my pajamas and have the agility of a youth of 27 I assure you gentlemen no ancient Greek sculptor ever attempted to model such a figure as mine.

I have had a fairly good education. At the age of five I started in Kindergarten spending seven years in this grade, continuing through the different schools until at the age of 46 I graduated from college. I have held many positions of trust, such as office boy, bank manager, skipper of a fishing smack, and salesman, but the record which I am proudest of is my experience as a salesman. I have sold everything, anchors soap bonds, real estate, all over the continent of America. I am very well known in the principal cities of this hemisphere, also in Europe. Broadway, Fifty Avenue and the Bowery in New York City are familiar spots to me. Halifax and Vancouver know me well. Even St. Lawrence, Main Street, Montreal and Westmount have been delighted by my visits.

I have a wonderful record when selling specialties. Once as a sign poster I climbed to the top of the Woolworth Building in the record time of 27 seconds with a mouth full of tacks, carrying 75 enameled signs and 100 cloth banners. These I posted while holding on to the window ledge with my teeth. I also have another record which was the envy of men of refinement some years ago. When in Western Canada I was the champion tobacco chewer with a spitting record of 75 feet.

Once again, gentlemen..I assure you I am the man you are looking for. Therefore,' arrange immediately to see me. While I have no permanent address, Sunday morning I can generally be seen in the tower of Notre Dame Cathedral Montreal.

Yours lovingly,
SOCRATES LYSANDEF

WHO ARE TO BE JUDGES

In Montreal a few years ago a man left his dog in the care of the church he attended and to which he left his money. But Germany is the country for quaint charities. In the little town of Hoschmann there is a bequest that provides prizes for the men who marry the ugliest, the most crippled, and the women over forty who have been jilted at least twice. The awards are made every year. The ugliest woman gets a dowry of $90; the most crippled $60 and the woman over forty $50. The trustees have the power to increase the amount in the case of any man who marries a more than usually ugly woman. This strange charity is the result of a wealthy man's discovery of the great power of beauty. He wished to help those women who are without it.

TO BUILD AN ISLAND IN THE FREE OCEAN

NEW YORK, June 3.—An enterprising architect and engineer by the name of Wilhelm C. Gries, ser has drawn up plans for an "artificial island" of concrete to be constructed in the Atlantic Ocean just outside the three mile limit, which will cost in the neighborhood of $90,000,000. This "paradise of freedom" is decidedly not a dream and within a few years may be a reality, he declares. Stock in the enterprise has attracted public attention and is now selling at $10 a share par value. It is estimated that at least $20,000,000 will be required to erect the cement foundation on which the "island's" structures will rise about 30 feet above the level of the ocean. The scheme as planned thus far provides for the erection of two hotels, innumerable stores, administration buildings, hospital, bank, moving picture theatre, opera house, school, college, church etc. The colony will make its own laws and employ its own police force to see that they are kept. While the main attraction—liquor—will be purchasable no old-time bars will be permitted. Refreshment places, however, will be run on the European plan, which necessitates thirsty customers sitting down to be served. Drunkenness, it is emphatically pointed out, will not be tolerated.

STORY OF THE RAILWAY TICKET

On an average 750,000 tickets a week are used on each of the great railways in Great Britain. Their making, printing, clipping, collecting, checking, and tabulation provide work for a large army of officials.

Nowdays most of the railway companies there and on this side the Atlantic, have their own printing works, where tickets are manufactured at the rate of nearly 20,000 and hour. They are packed in bundles of 10,000 and distributed from the head offices to local stations as required. The strictest possible check is kept on every ticket issued. When the ticket has been collected, whether it is a single or a return half, that is by no means the end of its career. With all others collected during the day it is sent to the central audit office of the company, where sorters re-arrange the tickets in their respective series, while checkers made notes of missing numbers. All deficiencies have to be accounted for, even though the task of tracing a missing ticket may occupy a month or more.

Most travellers do not realize that the hole the inspector punches in a ticket means a great deal to those who are acquainted with railway ticket "language." As many as twelve different types of "punch" are in use making triangular, square, round and oval shapes holes, varied by embossed letters and simple "pin-prick" perforations. It is possible by this means to learn by what train a person has travelled, where the ticket was last examined, the name of the inspector, and the time when he inspected it. Time and platform of departure are indicated in the same way. The simple process of clipping a ticket plays a large and important part in the prevention of fraud on the railway.

CONTROL OF ROOT MAGGOTS

The corrosive sublimate treatment is now regarded as the most economical and efficient method of controlling the cabbage maggot says a recent pamphlet issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Radishes, garden and field turnips, cabbages and cauliflowers may all be treated with this substance without fear or injury. At least two treatments in the spring or early summer are necessary, but three are advisable in the majority of cases. Not only are the plants rendered free from attack by the treatment, but the effect on their growth is beneficial. Corrosive sublimate is used at the rate of one ounce to ten gallons of water and should be applied to the stem and roots of each plant at weekly intervals after egg-laying has commenced, which in most sections of Canada is usually about the middle of May in a normal season. On the Pacific Coast of British Columbia however, eggs may be laid early in April.

THE ONION MAGGOT

For control of the onion maggot two methods that have been found satisfactory, namely, the poisoned bait method and the trap crop method. When the flies are active, which occurs especially on bright, warm, sunny days, the following bait can be beneficially used: Sodium arsenite ½ to ½ an ounce dissolved in a gallon of boiling water and a pint of molasses added. Place from twenty to forty pans, dishes, china saucers, filled with the bait, on the soil surface of each acre when the seedling onions are from 1½ to 3 inches high, and then on four or five later occasions as warranted. Excellent results have also been obtained by sprinkling the bait mixture in large drops over the soil and foliage of onions and neighbouring vegetation.

Under the trap crop method, the rows of last season's crop are planted, 100 feet apart. Their earlier leaf growth attracts the fly. The trap plants are pulled up about June 15 and destroyed.

It should be remembered that both poisons are extremely virulent and should be kept out of reach.

The pamphlet referred to, is entitled "Root Maggots and Their Control," and can be had free on request.

THE BENEFIT OF LIFE INSURANCE

Seven years ago the "Lusitania" was sunk by the Germans; today the sequel is being enacted. Claims by American Life insurance companies against the German Government for losses which the companies paid prematurely by reason of the sinking of the liner are being heard by a Joint Commission, representing the American Government and Germany.

There are over 19,000 cases against Germany arising out of this ruthless act. These interest practically every insurance company on this continent. It will take many months for the Commission to consider all of them. Fifteen test cases have been presented to the Commission by agreement to serve as pattern for similar cases.

Happily travel is not fraught with the dangers that prevailed when the submarine warfare was in vogue, although there are always accident possibilities in travel. But the sinking of the Lusitania provides an object lesson for the benefits of life insurance. Death comes at most unexpected times and often under unusual circumstances. It is well be to adequately insured for come it must to everyone. The face with death by life insurance is often a close one. Less than two days before his death occurred, James F. Bent, superintendent of the R. G. Bent & Co. who was killed in the collapse of the Fuller Brush Co. tower at Hartford, Conn., had received a new life policy, under which his estate will receive $10,000.00 in addition to other insurance he already carried.

INVESTIGATE BEFORE INVESTING

Premier Taschereau, of Quebec, has issued a warning to residents of that province against rash speculations in mining ventures which are springing up rapidly. Following the gold strike in Rouyn township, his advice has been "Investigate Before Investing," in cautioning Canadians to beware of "wild cat" ers.

Half a billion dollars a year is invested by people of this continent in worthless stocks and other fraudulent investments, according to the Federal Trade Commission's 1921 estimate. The recent collapse of the L. R. Steel Company in which $9,000,000 was invested by Canadians; should act as an object lesson to small investors. Had this sum been expended in the safe investment of life insurance, it would have paid the first year's premium on nearly three hundred millions of life insurance. In other words, about 112,000 people could

PRIZE ESSAYS

"How to Make Prince Edward Island Attractive to Settlers and Tourists." The Prize Essays in Daughters of Empire Competition.

Miss Adele Cameron, Notre Dame Academy, Winner of First Prize.

The subject of this essay is one of great interest to the wide-awake residents of Prince Edward Island. Every year the competition for guests to the standard cars.

Our tourist trade has grown keener and at present there is hardly a hamlet in North America which does not in some way claim recognition as the Tourists' Paradise.

In order to successfully cope with this growing competition we delay and annoyance in connection must devise ways and means of making our fair Island better known to the holiday seekers and to the satisfaction of those who aid nature in her efforts to please them on their arrival.

The first move towards our much needed publicity would be to have a plan invented to keep them in literature portraying our wonderful adaptability as a summer resort printed and distributed by the Provincial Government. This ably managed could be used to advantage during the summer months. This bureau should contain information as to the location of our best fishing streams, shooting motor trips, country hotels, etc.

Delorme Counsel Protest Undue Publicity

MONTREAL, June 29.—Charges that information had been published in a local paper concerning features of the Delorme case prior to its having been given in court was an objection advanced by C. H. Cahan, K.C., counsel for the defence, when the case of Father Adelard Delorme, charged with the murder of his half brother, was resumed this morning.

This information, he said, emanated from Crown officers. Crown Prosecutor Calder, addressing the Judge, said the information had evidently been turned in to the paper by a reporter who had overheard.

Another feature of the hearing heard a conversation between Dr. McTaggart and himself.

was the argument between the counsel regarding the admissibility of the evidence of Detective Lajoie, who, Mr. Taschereau, counsel for the defence, said, was not competent to appear because he had written a book on the murder in which he definitely accused Father Delorme. Following a lengthy argument on this point Lajoie was put on the stand and a motion of Mr. Taschereau that he be arrested for contempt of court was withdrawn.

Lajoie was born in Damascus, came here twenty-three years ago, and has been seventeen years in the detective service. He declared he wrote the book after long thought the Delorme case was closed and regretted the fact that the book declared his belief in the guilt of the priest.

Britain Will Not Consent to Twelve Mile Limit

LONDON, June 29.—The British Colonies Secretary Marquis Curzon stated in the House of Lords in the course of a debate over the shipping liquor question that there was no chance of Great Britain agreeing in any circumstance whatever to the proposal that the United States authorities be given the right to search vessels for liquor within twelve miles of the United States coast line.

Lord Curzon said the Government was fully alive to the importance of the case and that all channels of diplomacy are being utilized in an effort to find a way out of the situation which was undoubtedly disagreeable and ought not to be allowed to continue.

Ex-Secretary Lansing Benefitted By Use of Insulin

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Robert Lansing, former Secretary of State, has been seriously afflicted with diabetes, but is said by physicians to have shown great improvement under the administration of insulin, the new remedy recently discovered and developed by F. G. Banting of Toronto.

...have had each $2,000 worth of life insurance.

"Nothing ventured, nothing gained" is an adage suitable only for the man with large funds with enough to spare for a business gamble. Premier Taschereau has been "investigate before investing" is the better one for the majority. Besides immediately creating an estate, life insurance is a sure thing, for the day has yet to dawn when any Canadian policyholder has lost a dollar through the failure of a life insurance company.
