CONTINUES HEALTH

Continued from page 1 eous impression that the City Corporation entertains the desire to have Parkdale, Gaytown and the other areas contiguous to the City taken in to form a greater Charlottetown, and that such an action is favoured by the City for tax-collecting purposes. Incorporating those outlying areas into the City would involve, the Mayor said, an expense on the part of the City for which the additional taxes received would be but very inadequate compensation. The expense of supplying water-pipe lines, a sewerage system, streets, sidewalks, lights, and police and fire protection to such an area would place an unprecedented financial burden on the City Corporation, the Mayor added. He did not touch on the health aspect of the situation. Should the present unsanitary conditions now existing in Parkdale and adjacent areas continue, there is a possibility that the Provincial Government will take drastic action, it was learned last

Midget Abbies And Juveniles Win Games With S'side Teams

STRONG PROTEST

The Charlottetown Midget Abbies defeated the Summerside Midgets last night at the Crystal Rink by the score of 8 to 4. Some smart clearing in front of the net by the visiting defence, plus a fast scrappy line composed of Glover, Dalziel and Kennedy, who bored in relentlessly and gave the home defence a very busy evening, were the chief factors that spelled victory. However, the Abbies were aided by a couple of soft goals. Delaney and Paul Schurman were the pick of the losers, Delaney getting two goals and Schurman a counter as the result of a spectacular rush and one assist.

"Hard Hit"

"I recall myself how Charlottetown, and notably the longshoremen of Charlottetown were hard hit years ago when shipments of potatoes from that port were discontinued. "We know how hard it is for the longshoremen and dock-workers in a port when business falls off badly."

In the course of his address Mr. Hazen said that dock-workers in Halifax and Saint John had lost $400,000 in wages on account of the Moore-McCormack Line having its ships dock at Portland, Maine, instead of at the Canadian ports.

The Saint John member further called on the Government to hold an investigation "for the purpose of ascertaining whether false information was given by Canadian National Railway officials to the French supply mission which resulted in 1,000,000 bushels of rye being shipped through Portland last summer."

It is expected that members from the Maritimes on both sides of the speaker will follow up Mr. Hazen's charges of freight shipments through Portland to the detriment of Canada's great Maritime ports in the course of the Throne Speech debate.

In the event of the Legislature passing legislation making incorporation with Charlottetown compulsory, the Government might, by outright grant or other means, subsidize the City in meeting the expense involved.

Maple Hills Supply The question of furnishing the Parkdale community with a million or more gallons of water daily from the Maple Hills well or reservoir is also being considered.

Last night Premier Jones said his Government was aware of this water source as well as present sewerage disposal equipment which was now at the Mount Pleasant Airport and which could be made available for the City's contiguous areas.

In the meantime, the residents of Charlottetown and its environs, Dr. Harold Shaw, Provincial pathologist, said, are, "metaphorically speaking, sitting on a lid which may be blown 'sky high' at any moment. And this lid, Dr. Shaw emphasized, "can blow off without warning."

Stresses Typhoid Danger One typhoid carrier—and one out of ten who have had the disease is a "carrier"—may make up his or her mind to come over from the mainland this winter or next spring, Dr. Shaw said. "Perhaps he or she might arrive a week before Old Home Week and be the guest of a friend living in the suburban section of the City where the purity of the water is 'unsatisfactory' and where whose only sewerage disposal facilities is an outside toilet. The "lid" would come off. There would be no Old Home Week; the hotels and the restaurants would be probably closed and Charlottetown, during the epidemic, would be a dead City."

Beyond the City limits on Upper Queen Street, the water supply is polluted, Dr. Shaw said, and within the City limits, the ice pond on Upper Queen Street is a source of potential danger. In contiguous areas to the Malpeque Road one resident may have "good" water while his neighbour's source, a short distance away, contains fecal organisms, harmless in themselves but striking evidence of the water's impurity.

Dr. Shaw made it clear that his analysis of the water samples are not made for the purpose of determining whether or not the dead typhoid bacillus is present. His tests, by a complicated but accurate system, determine how many organisms are present in 100 cubic centimeters of potable water. Those organisms are of the coli group, present in the feces of man and animals and in sewage. Should there be two or more organisms present they indicate that pollution of a most dangerous character is present.

But should Dr. Shaw be informed by a doctor that he has a patient suffering from dysentery, he would "immediately" bring into play the whole facilities of his splendidly-equipped laboratory. Excreta from the patient would be forwarded to Dr. Shaw and a portion of the excreta would be placed in a "plate" with a lac-

JUVENILE GAME

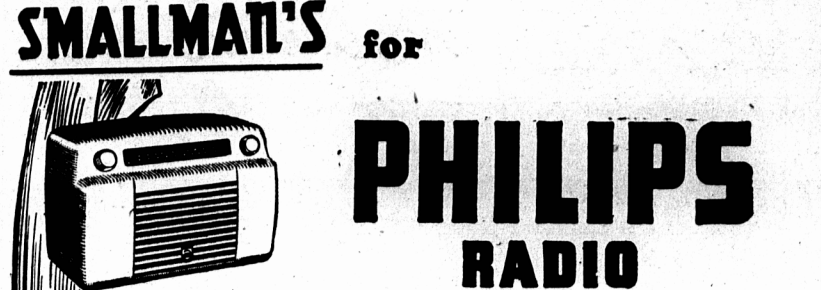

The Charlottetown Juvenile Abbies made it unanimous against the Summerside teams at the Crystal Rink beating Charlie Hogan's Kinsmen by the score of 6 to 3, after their younger brothers had done a similar job on Harry Dickie's Midgets.

The game was a hard-bumping affair and referee Jimmie Hogan was forced to give quite a number of penalties to keep the boys under control. Bobby Gay, husky Summerside rearguard, used his body tellingly all evening but failed to stop the red-shirts who picked themselves up off the ice to bore in with the same enthusiasm.

Gay opened the scoring, coming straight through the centre for a nice effort to beat Macdonald. Shepherd evened it up with Acorn's aid before the period's close.

Goalie Rogers of Summerside put on a superb exhibition of puck blocking when Summerside were two men short at the beginning of the sandwich session. Schurman realized on Grady's rebound after the pair had done their criss-cross specialty almost the full length of the ice. With Gay off, Stanley shovelled one in the direction of the goal and the disk slithered into the cage off Wedge's stick.

Hunters Corner

the take by those semi-professionals ran anywhere from 35 to 60 pelts each. Last season the majority of the "rat" trappers I talked to averaged a mere 8 or 9. A few hit the 15 mark but the number who exceeded that number might be counted on the fingers of the two hands.

Today there is, in the opinion of many observers, this scribe included in the number, barely enough muskrats left to assure the propagation of the species and, unless stringent protective measures are introduced for at least two years muskrat trapping will be definitely out. Even if a close season as instituted they will still have their natural enemies to contend with. Mink, Horned Owls, hunting dogs that dig out their dens and runways, etc, take their annual toll. Periods of drought as well as the extreme in heavy floods also retard their propagation.

Some trappers have expressed the fear that if a close season is placed on muskrats that mink will also be included and they don't want to be deprived of their mink trapping. It is this scribe's experience in the trapping game, I did my share of it at one time, that one can trap mink without interfering with "rats." True one will often take mink in traps set for muskrats for mink frequently prey on the "rats" and hang around places where those animals frequent. On the other hand one seldom catches a muskrat in a regular mink set.

When one looks back, we'll say 35 years ago, and visualizes the number of muskrats we had then and compares it with what we have today it comes as an awful shock to realize the true state of affairs as they exist at the present time. Here is a case in point: When I was a young man attending the MacDonald Consolidated School the nearby Fullerton's Marsh simply teemed with muskrats. I well recollect the late Charlie Pippy shooting 20 of those fur bearers on this marsh in an evening. Today I do not believe this area harbours a single "rat" and hasn't for years and this situation applies to hundreds of like marshes scattered all over the province.

I understand that there is a move on foot to request the Provincial Government at the coming sitting of the Legislature to impose a close season on muskrats for a period of at least 2 years. This information is given out in this week's Column to give any who are in favour of such a move the opportunity of contacting their local Member and this also applies to those who may be opposed to such legislation being enacted.

It is generally conceded by trappers that the only thing will save the muskrat from practical extinction in this province, barring a close season, is that the price of their pelts will drop to twenty-five cents or a dollar and judging by the strong market prevailing at present such a possibility is extremely unlikely. Not soon enough to give the animals a break in any event. All who are interested in a step of this nature had better get in touch with their local Member so as he will have some inkling of the current feeling in his District, either for or against the move.
