Collapse Of Cards Defence Paves Way For 6-2 Yankee Win

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Oct. 7—(AP)—St. Louis Cardinals supposed to be baseball's wizard's of defence, collapsed in the field today and the New York Yankees crashed through the opening for five runs in the eighth inning to win the thrid game of the 1943 World Series, 6-2, before an all-time record series crowd of 69,990.

It was an old familiar story to many of the fans who jammed this big arena on a hazy October afternoon to see the last game here before the two teams left for St. Louis tonight to complete the series in the Cardinals park beginning Sunday.

The Yankees were grovelling helplessly before the amazingly cool pitching of Alpha (Bet) Brazle, 27-year-old rookie lefthander who had come up from the Pacific Coast League in mid-July. Then came a break. Two errors and an intentional walk loaded the bases with one out and Bill Johnson, New York's slender freshman third baseman, smashed a triple into left centre.

This block-buster blew the game right out of the park, but after Brazle had been removed the Yanks made three more singles and scored two more runs just to make certain the Cardinals did not get over the concussion.

Fine Fielding At Start

In the early innings the contest was a masterpiece of fine fielding with various players on both teams contributing a series of spectacular catches and for the third consecutive game the Cardinals scored first for a lead they seemed likely to keep throughout.

They loaded the bases twice against Hank Borowy, willowy young righthander, in the fourth inning and a single by Danny Litwhiler, his first hit of the series, brought home two runs.

This was an imposing start, but it failed to rattle the Yankees and St. Louis made only one hit over the last five frames and a total of six for the game.

However, the Cardinals would not have needed more the way Brazle was breezing along if the Redbirds had held up defensively. Over the first five innings he gave the Yanks just two singles, no walks, and let only one of these runners reach second.

He still looked good when the Yankees scored their first run in the sixth. Borowy led off for the Yanks and was looking like a pitcher at bat with a count of two and two when he smacked a soft liner to left. But Litwhiler was playing in close, did not start back soon enough, and the ball dropped behind him for a double. He went to third on a long foul fly by Tuck Stainback and, after Frank Crosetti had flied out, scored when third baseman George Kurowski fumbled a grounder by Johnson.

In the next inning the Yankees went down one-two-three, Nick Etten fanning for the third out, and Brazle still was a cool customer.

But in the last of the eighth John Lindell made his first hit of the series, a clean single to centre and Harry Walker got his hands all tangled up with the ball. While he was putting on his juggling act Lindell galloped to second on the error.

Turning Point of Game

George Stirnweiss batted for Borowy and laid down a bunt in an attempt to sacrifice. It was the obvious play and first baseman Ray Sanders of the Cards swooped down within 20 feet of home plate to scoop up the ball almost as soon as it hit the ground and throw to third to head off Lindell.

His throw was in time, too, and Umpire Beans Reardon had his arm up to signal an out when Lindell, a big fellow six feet, four inches tall and weighing 205 pounds, crashed into Kurowski full force causing him to drop the ball.

It was another error and the turning point of the ball game.

Stainback flied to left and Lindell was held on third although Stirnweiss sped to second after the catch. This caused Crosetti to be purposely passed, loading the bases, and set the stage for Johnson.

The kid who came up from Newark last Spring to fill the shoes left empty by Red Rolfe took one strike and then lined a hit into left centre. For a minute it seemed like Walker would be able to get in front of the ball and hold it to a single, but it went through Walker and Litwhiler and rolled all the way to the bleacher wall, 450 feet from the plate, for a triple, scoring three runs.

Break Brazle's Poise

This broke Brazle's poise and he quickly walked Charley Keller, causing Manager Billy Southworth to bring righthander Howard Krist to the mound.

Krist pitched three balls and finally a called strike to Joe Gordon, a righthanded swinger, before the Flash shoved a sharp single to right scoring Johnson and putting Keller on second.

Harry Breechen, a rookie southpaw who had appeared in relief for one inning of the first game of the series, then strode to the mound to pitch to lefthanded Bill Dickey. The veteran catcher rapped a grounder between first and second and the ball hit Gordon on the legs making him out automatically, although Dickey was credited with a hit and the Yanks still were left with runners on first and second.

Etten then singled to right, scoring Keller, but Dickey was caught sliding into third as catcher Walker Cooper relayed Stan Musial's throw to Kurowski.

Thus the Yankees came through once more with a wild, unruly uprising to win a series game by taking advantage of the mistakes of their opponents. They made eight hits, five of them in the eighth, and played errorless ball defensively, but except for the letdown by the Cardinals they never would have had a chance today.

By making four errors the Cardinals let in three unearned runs and brought their total of miscues to eight for three games of the series. It was also their misplays in the field which cost them the opening tussle, 4-2, in a pitching battle between Max Lanier and Spud Chandler.

The outcome of the games here left the Yankees confident as they headed for St. Louis, and Manager Joe McCarthy announced he intends to pitch Lefty Marius Russo in the fourth game of the series when the teams meet again Sunday at Sportsman's Park.

S. D. U. Sports Events Today

The annual field sports at St. Dunstan's University will be held today if weather conditions are favorable it was learned last night. The program was scheduled originally for Tuesday of this week but was rained out.

The events usually provide plenty of excitement and keen competition. There are some long standing records to shoot at, the 100 yard dash, existing since 1916. The time is ten and one fifth seconds, made by F. Kelly and equalled three years later by J. Sullivan.

The most recently established records are for the high jump, five feet, four and one half inches, made by Howard Hogan in 1939, and the 440 yard dash in 54 seconds made by Vince Grant in the same year.

World Series Clubhouse

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Oct. 7—(AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees scowled at the reporters in mock anger today with "can't you guys wait until we get to St. Louis for my starting pitcher in Sunday's game?"

There was no answer.

In fact, there was harly a sound in the clubhouse as the players already had forgotten their 6-2 verdict over the St. Lous Cardinals in the third game of the World Series and were busy packing for the trip to the Missouri City.

"Well, it's Russo," McCarthy said. "I may change my mind. If I do I'll change it."

Marius Russo is a lefthander with a record of five victories in 15 starts. He had a sore arm most of the season, but made a sensational comeback in September. If McCarthy changes his mind he probably will switch to Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler who stopped the Cards in the opening game.

McCarthy had no particular praise for the pitching performance of Alpha Brazle, the gangling St. Louis lefty who held the Yanks in restraint until those blunders behind him in the eighth.

McCarthy defended Johnny Lindell's charging into George (Whitey) Kurowski at third base in the eighth innings, knocking the Cards' third sacker flat and causing him to drop Sanders' perfect throw.

"Kurowski probably was in Lindell's way," McCarthy explained. "He couldn't come in standing up. After all, this game is no pink tea."

Lindell, still rubbing his head, said his jaw came in contact with Kurowski's jaw in the smashing collision. The Yanks' rookie outfielder is a powerfully built youth and came plowing into Kurowski like a plunging fullback.

The downcast Cardinals shut out all visitors while they held a brief meeting in the clubhouse immediately after the game and by the time reporters filed in Manager Billy Southworth was able to greet them with a rather forced smile.

While the players dressed hurriedly and departed, Southworth explained that he considered the turning point of the game to be the play at third base in the eighth inning when Lindell crashed into Kurowski.

"That changed the whole complexion of the inning," Southworth said. "If he had held the ball it would have been one out and a man on first. We made the same play on Stainback, in the first game."

Harry Walker's error just before that play was less important as Southworth saw it. "Dix played the ball right," he insisted. "You can't blame the kid at all."

Refusing to name his fourth-game pitcher until the club reaches St. Louis, although he said he already has made up his mind, the Cardinal manager added that he was well pleased with Alpha Brazle's hurling today.

"We're not down. I can't emphasize that too much," Billy concluded. "When you win you can pop off, when you lose—well."

Record Crowd At Yesterday's Game

NEW YORK, Oct. 7—(AP)—The crowd at today's world series game set a record for the fall classic of 69,990, surpassing by 88 persons the turnout for the final game of last year's series on Sunday, Oct. 4, 1942.

However, the receipts for today's contest, $269,368, fell $40 short of the record paid by last year's big crowd.

The first three games of the present series have drawn 207,244 fans who paid $800,990, not counting taxes.

Cooper Brothers To Play Sunday

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Oct. 7 (AP)—Funeral services for Robert J. Cooper, 58-year-old father of Morton and Walker Cooper, stars on the St. Louis Cardinal baseball club will be held Saturday.

The brothers plan to rejoin their teammates Sunday at St. Louis for the first game there.

Halifax Navy Wins Maritime Baseball Title

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Oct. 7 —(CP)— Halifax Navy went through the formality of playing St. John Dockmen tonight and then lost no time in departing for home with the Maritime senior baseball championship in their keeping for a second consecutive year and no one disputing their right to it.

The final game score was 6-0 and, like the series, represented a whitewashing for the disorganized Dockmen.

When the best in five affair opened at Halifax last Monday with a doubleheader, the swatting seamen gained a 5-4 edge in the first game and then made it a twin killing with a more decisive, 9-2 win.

In tonight's third and final contest, the fighting tars were out for blood and determined to end the series, long drawn out as a result of weather and ground conditions.

FALL HOLIDAYS FOR SCHOOLS — The Department of Education does not propose granting an extension of the fall holidays for schools, states the secretary, Mr. P.S. Bradley. The trustees of the districts however, may do so provided the teacher meets the requirement of the Department for a quota of 200 teaching days per year. This may require teaching on holidays during seasons which are not so busy as at present. The arrangement rests with the trustees and teacher, not the department. Mr. Bradley also stated that the Government would pay as a bonus to teachers, dollar for dollar to the extent of $75 over and above the required supplement paid by each district. The shortage of teachers was about thirty last year and this year the number is slightly greater. About a dozen schools now vacant will be opened after the fall vacation.
