Draft Address Debate Resumed By Mr. Campbell

Ex-Attorney General Under Lea Government Modestly Applauds His Own Administrative Record And Bemoans Conditions Under Conservatives.

Resuming the debate on the Draft Address in the Legislature yesterday afternoon Mr. Thane A. Campbell, First District of Prince, expressed regret at the passing of the late Dr. Goodwill and also of the late Mr. Kenneth J. Martin, a gentleman who had been prominent both as a lawyer and as a citizen not only in the City of Charlottetown but in Summerside and other parts of the Province.

Mr. Campbell said that at the last session, attention had been called to the fact that there were two vacancies in the House, and complained that byelection writs in connection with these vacancies had not been issued. He did not blame the Lieutenant Governor but the Government for negligence in this connection and he attributed it to the Government's fear of defeat.

Premier MacMillan: "Are you speaking from experience?"

Mr. Campbell said he was speaking from the records. He figured that in the event of these by-elections being held, the Liberals would have won and the standing in the House would be Conservatives 15, Liberals 14, "Independent Conservatives," 1 and that "the balance of power would have rested with the member for Corran Ban."

The Government had passed a "whitewashing bill" to save the Minister of Agriculture and the Minister of Public Works from going to the country for re-election after appointment to their portfolios, he claimed.

One member had quoted what he termed a Liberal paper in support of the Bennett policies. Mr. Campbell in reply quoted the Montreal Gazette as criticising the same policies.

Cartier Anniversary

Continuing, he commended all who had anything to do with the Cartier anniversary celebration at Charlottetown. He noted with pleasure the honours bestowed upon His Worship Mayor Kennedy in this connection, both in the King's Honors list and by the Government of France. While not wishing to detract from the honor conferred on Mayor Kennedy he complained that the recognition of titles had been re-introduced by the Bennett administration without the consent of the federal Opposition. It had been said that the honors were not political, but he noted that His Worship, though not a politician, is now president of the Conservative Association of Queen's County.

Mr. Campbell objected to the reference in the Throne Speech to the evidences of "recovery." The only recovery in evidence this year, he suggested, was the two elections which are to be held.

He made reference to the horses used in taking the Lieutenant Governor and party to the opening of the Legislature as having been "hired from undertakers."

Premier MacMillan: "Was that at the meeting where Mr. Larabee was not invited to speak?"

Mr. Campbell: "I don't know. Was there such a meeting?"

Continuing, he referred to the decline in the dairy industry and recalled that in 1930 the Conservative campaign had been on the Australian butter import issue. Conservative speakers had laid the blame for the present dairy situation on the potato industry and some had gone so far as to say that this industry had been a curse to the Province. Mr. Campbell strongly disagreed with this criticism. He cited the better clover and other crop returns as a result of freer application of fertilizer since the introduction of the potato industry, and voiced the belief that if people avoided speculation and excess in potato production the industry would continue to be a benefit to the Province.

Marketing Act

With regard to the Marketing legislation Mr. Campbell said the Government members had failed to point out what benefits the Marketing Board had conferred except to the Central Provinces. By the time the benefits are felt here the depression will be over and they will not be needed. The pegged prices he claimed worked to the disadvantage of Island producers. He was informed that at least one car load of potatoes had been sent out of the Province contrary to the regulations fixed by the Marketing Board. He understood also that fifty additional bags were being placed in the cars for shipment, so that in effect the potatoes are sold beneath the pegged price.

Roads And Highways

"Have the highways been maintained in a satisfactory manner?" Mr. Campbell asked, and replied by saying that he did not think so. He instanced the road from Summerside to Kensington which he said was in an unsatisfactory condition last year. The government had constructed a detour but they failed to complete it and there was over a mile and a half of that road which was in an impassible condition throughout the year. Since the policy of improved highways had been adopted there had never been a section of improved road left in such "a disgraceful, disreputable condition."

Complaint was also made by the speaker that the Malpeque Road from the end of the McIntyre highway to a point near Winsloe Station had been torn up and left "in a practically impossible condition" for the balance of the year.

The Speech from the Throne and the government speakers were not so optimistic about the trans-Canada highway as were the statements given out last year, Mr. Campbell continued. He read from the report of the debates of last session stating that the Dominion government would assume the full responsibility. He remembered the Premier at the opening of the last election campaign criticising the construction of the McIntyre Highway which however had been commended to Premier Bennett as having stood up satisfactorily.

Citing the statements made last session with respect to the construction of the trans-Canada highway, Mr. Campbell maintained that there was no doubt at that time that the members understood that the Prime Minister had agreed to pay the full cost of an asphalt road because it would be cheaper than to build a gravelled road with a rock base. He cited also the Conservative press of 1930 regarding the Dominion undertaking. Mr. Bennett's policy, had dwindled down to the payment of half the labor costs on the highway so far undertaken.

Hon. Mr. McPhee: "Did I understand you to say one-half the labor costs?"

Mr. Campbell: "If I am wrong I would like to be corrected."

Hon. Mr. McPhee: "It is not correct."

Mr. Campbell: "The Minister of Public Works explained that it was not half the full cost."

Hon. Mr. Sharp: "$5,500 per mile."

Mr. Campbell: "And the road cost $11,000 and something. Anyway it is quite a dwindling from the promised taking over of all the roads of the Province."

In addition to taking over and maintaining the main highways, he said, it had also been promised that the grant in aid of ordinary highways would be restored. He quoted a statement attributed to Mr. Myers to the latter effect.

Commends Experimental Work

Mr. Campbell thought it desirable that the experiments in asphalt work on the secondary roads should all be carried out, but he did not have much confidence in the mixed-in-place process. The North River road project however, certainly had a fine surface after being completed and if this road stands up to ordinary wear and tear it might prove to be the solution of our highway problem. If so, there was no reason why this cheaper method could not be used on the main highways as well. In the meantime however, he thought there should be a showdown "with the Dominion government as to its responsibility for pre-election promises".

Law Enforcement

There had been no notable omission in the Throne Speech compared with the speech last year, he said, inasmuch as no reference had been made to law enforcement. Mr. Campbell contrasted the Provincial Police force which was organized under him as Attorney General, with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The more he looked over the two records, he said, the more pardonable pride he felt in the achievements of the Provincial Police during the first six or eight months of its organization. The Provincial Police force were Islanders and they did the work at less expense and with fewer men. They had been criticised by the Conservatives. Now when the "western importations" have been brought here in the persons of the Mounted Police the government supporters put up their hands in horror at any criticism being offered, Mr. Campbell complained.

"Brawls and escapades" in the Queens County Jail and disturbances in the other jails were charged as having occurred under the present government. The administration of the jails and particularly Queens County Jail had become a fiasco, he declared.

Premier MacMillan: "Do you hear anything about them now?"

Mr. Campbell: "Not so long ago."

Premier MacMillan: "How long ago?"

Mr. Campbell: "We heard two years ago that all that was ended but year after year the same thing goes on."

Continuing, the speaker referred to criticism which he, as Attorney General during the Liberal regime, had received in connection with the discovery of a skeleton near East Point. He contrasted this occurrence with the finding, under the present administration, of the body of a man under circumstances which at least pointed to some kind of foul play, and charged that though "the clues were hot" no culprit had been discovered by the police. This, he said, was a more serious affair than the finding of the skeleton some years ago.

Hon. Mr. McPhee: "What case is the hon. member referring to?"

Mr. Campbell: "I forget the name of the man."

Hon. Mr. McPhee: "My hon. friend's remarks suggest nothing to the Attorney General."

Mr. Campbell: "Perhaps my hon. friend never heard anything of the case. The law administration is so far removed from the Attorney General of the Province that I am not surprised."

Hon. Mr. McPhee: "One would expect that when the hon. member gets up to make complaint about a case he would at least remember the man's name."

Mr. Campbell: "I think the name was Ramsay. He had been in the Province for some little time. He had gone to Albany, I think it was. The day he was seen in Albany his body was found washed up on the shore at Wilmot Bridge. Members of the R. C. M. P. have expressed their opinion that there was foul play, but they were not able to discover anything. I submit that it was a much stronger case than was made out about the skeleton a few years ago."

Hon. Mr. McPhee: "Are you suggesting there was foul play in that case?"

Mr. Campbell: "That is the general suspicion throughout the country."

Continuing, he suggested that the Attorney General should investigate appeals and the propable outcome of appeals before they go to the Supreme Court. He cited recent court judgments dismissing appeals which apparently had been made to the court with little warrant from the evidence

Prohibition Enforcement

Mr. Campbell cited the opinion of the Grand Worthy Patriarch of the Sons of Temperance criticising prohibition enforcement. He claimed this was evidence that the meeting had been an indignation meeting. The Premier had protested against the use of that expression in designating the meeting, he claimed.

Premier MacMillan: "That was not the same meeting."

Hon. Mr. Sharp: "You are speaking of two entirely different meetings."

Mr. J. A. MacDonald asked what meeting Mr. Campbell was quoting from.

Mr. Campbell: "From the report made by the Grand Worthy Patriarch of the Sons of Temperance at the annual meeting."

Mr. MacDonald: "Who was that?"

Mr. Campbell: "The Rev. A. F. Baker."

Mr. MacDonald: "Are you insinuating for a moment that the Premier was there?"

Mr. Campbell: "I don't know."

Mr. MacDonald: "You know perfectly well, but you are not frank enough to admit it. You are trying to couple both meetings to imply that the Premier attended what you call an indignation meeting."

Mr. Campbell: "I know there was a meeting at Freetown and invitations were extended to the government members, but none of them was present."

Premier MacMillan: "Did you say that members of the government were invited?"

Mr. Campbell: "I understand so. In fact it was announced that the member from Egmont Bay was going to deliver a speech on temperance."

Continuing Mr. Campbell referred to alleged drunken brawls which had taken place on the train which he himself had witnessed, and which he said some of the Conservative members should also have noticed. "We have only to travel on the trains or walk the streets to see that the indignation of the Grand Worthy Patriarch is not exaggerated," he declared.

He cited figures of arrest for drunkenness in the town of Summerside under both administrations which showed a large increase under Conservative administration.

Premier MacMillan: "Better enforcement."

Mr. J. A. MacDonald: "We put them in jail, and you didn't."

Mr. Campbell said these convictions were procured by the Summerside police and not by the R. C. M. P. who had nothing to do with it.

Premier MacMillan: "The same kind of drunks, though."

Mr. Campbell next referred to the complaint of the Ministerial Association with regard to laxity in the matter of Sabbath observance.

Premier MacMillan: "Did it say anything about political meetings being held on the Sabbath?"

Mr. Campbell: "I have yet to hear about political meetings being held on the Sabbath."

Premier MacMillan: "There was one in Summerside, just before the last provincial election."

Mr. Campbell: "My hon. friend refers to a meeting held in one of the churches at Summerside."

Premier MacMillan: "I am referring to a political meeting, not a church meeting."

Mr. Campbell: "It was held after church." (Laughter). Continuing, he claimed that political meetings on Sunday were less objectionable than the matter complained of by the Ministerial Association.

He next referred to a recommendation which he understood the R. C. M. P. inspector was making, for legislation to tighten up the Prohibition law by giving permission to search private houses without a warrant. He recalled the criticism offered against the legislation introduced by the Saunders Government in connection with prohibition enforcement. The principle of the legislation now proposed would destroy one of the last vestiges of British freedom which declares that every man's home is his castle. He would not go into the merits of the case one way or the other, but asked if the men who were asking for these powers were really temperance men? He understood one member to say there were only two tee-totallers on the force. He cited rumors to show that it was "a common belief" that the police members were not tee-totallers and that they did not respect the laws they were called on to enforce.

Premier MacMillan: "That is only your opinion."

Mr. Campbell: "No, it is the common belief."

Premier MacMillan: "Well, prove your statement."

It had been argued that it was nobody's business whether officers took a drink when off duty, Mr. Campbell continued. Then it was nobody's business what any man did in his own home and if these officers are to enforce the law they must obey the law themselves.

It was reported that a Mounted Police officer had driven a motor vehicle in an intoxicated condition and caused property damage. He understood the officer had been returning from making an investigation, which he said made the matter worse. Law enforcement can only be obtained from an administration which sincerely believe in its enforcement. To enforce Prohibition the government and its officers must be convinced prohibitionists themselves.

Premier MacMillan: "Where will you find that? Surely not on that side of the House!"

Mr. Campbell: "The Liberal party staked its political success on the maintenance of the Prohibition Act."

Premier MacMillan: "Because your leader said he thought he would win on it." (Applause).

Mr. Campbell said he did not think anything would be gained by "casting aspersions on ex-Premier Saunders' sincerity in the enforcement of the Prohibition Act."

Subsidy Claims

He then took up the matter of provincial subsidy claims, and said the Opposition had frankly admitted the government had obtained a "substantial increase." It was not regarded by the other Maritime Provinces as a satisfactory final settlement.

Hon. Mr. McPhee: "Neither have we said that we regard it as such."

Mr. Campbell said he understood that was the implication. The amount received, he continued, was only $150,000 increase, whereas the Liberals had been criticised for presenting before the Audit Board claims for "only $447,000, which it was contended at that time showed "crass stupidity and negligence." The subsidy increase now recommended was attributed in a Halifax paper to the Duncan Commission, the appointment of which, Mr. Campbell said, had been opposed by the Conservatives in the House of Commons. When the King government offered to have the claims assessed, Hon. Mr. Rhodes, as Premier of Nova Scotia, had refused on the ground that the Audit Board had no jurisdiction. The Audit Board, however, Mr. Campbell maintained, had "exactly the same jurisdiction as the White Commission."

The Liberal government of this province, he added, had presented claims totalling a subsidy increase of $3,000,000.

Mr. J. A. MacDonald: "And what did you get?"

Premier MacMillan: "Where were your claims made of $3,000,000? You only made them to the Patriot."

Mr. Campbell maintained that this was the total Liberal claim at that time. The $447,000 claim had only been advanced from a standpoint of minimum fiscal need. The Audit Board was prepared to consider Maritime claims at the time but Nova Scotia and New Brunswick had failed to co-operate and refused to present their claims before the Board. Now the Conservatives, "with characteristic inconsistency," applaud the award of the White Commission which had equally the same jurisdiction as the Audit Board The Conservatives, he added were now satisfied to accept the latter award.

Premier MacMillan: "We have not said we are satisfied. That was not our statement."

The White Commission by stating that a full assessment was "manifestly impracticable," had reversed the finding of the Duncan Commission, Mr. Campbell maintained. He criticised as "illogical" the White Commission recommendation to consider "equitably the claims in the aggregate" and "assign to each its due weight" How, he asked, could they assign due weight to each claim if they only considered them in the aggregate?

He also quoted the Commission as stating that its awards were to be final. This was what the government was accepting after its members had criticised the Liberals for presenting a claim of $447,000 on a basis of fiscal need alone."

Premier MacMillan: "And getting nothing."

Mr. Campbell congratulated the Government on obtaining the services of Chief Justice Mathieson as Maritime representative on the White Commission. But what light, he asked, did the Chief Justice's finding throw on the majority report of the Commission?

At 6 p. m. Mr. Campbell moved the adjournment of the debate. The House adjourned until 3 p. m. today.

CARCROSS, Y. T., March 18—(Canadian Press)—One Canadian peak which will never be brought to subjection by sinew, rope and alpinstock is Mount Vancouver in southwestern Yukon Territory, says Bradford Washburn.

"It appears to be utterly impregnable," the young Cambridge, Mass., explorer reported to the National Geographic Society at Washington, sponsors of the Washburn expedition which already has discovered hitherto unknown peaks and glaciers in the territory. "It is one of the most amazing mountain masses I have ever seen, rising to an altitude of nearly 16,000 feet from the flat snow fields of the Hubbard Glacier in one gigantic cliff of ice and rock without a single climable angle."

Washburn viewed the peak from the air, in company with Dr. Frank Henderson, Vancouver geologist; Pilot Everett Wasson of Carcross, and Andrew Taylor, who has charge of the expedition's freighting operations.

The base camp has been placed 130 miles west of Carcross on a glacier discovered from the air. "After the base is permanently established on the glacier at an altitude of about 3,000 feet, where the first plane-load of supplies has already been landed we will advance camp as rapidly as possible to the divide at its head," Washburn says. "This is 10,000 feet high and 40 miles away." The expedition's mapping and photographic work during April and May will be carried out from this point.

UNCERTAINTY FEATURES NEW YORK MARKET

(By Frank MacMillen, Associated Press Financial Writer)
(A. P By Guardian's Special Wire)

NEW YORK, March 18—Stock market forces had their headaches today trying to cope with the foreign political and monetary developments and soggy commodity markets at home.

During most of the session stocks were offered at concessions from the previous close ranging from fractions to around 2 points for active issues but no very vigorous selling developed and by the close many equities had recovered around half of their extreme declines.

Political tension across the water, arising from German rearming unsettled sentiment.

Bonds turned in an uninspiring performance, showing little rallying power in late dealings, and many secondary issues finished off fractions to around 2 points. High grade and government issues were a little less than steady.

Reports from the steel industry further harassed the upset speculative constitution. Buying was reported to be held up because of uncertainties, according to the weekly review of the magazine "Steel," and sentiment was said to be "weakening."

Except for a drop of a point in Dome Mines, losses in the Canadian list were held to fractions. Issues in this category included Canadian Pacific, International Nickel, Dominion Stores, Noranda, Distillers-Seagram, Hiram Walker and Lake Shore. Canadian Marconi was a little higher.

Despite the state of nerves in market quarters, equities were not pressed for sale in any great volume. The turnover for the day was only 593,712 shares, the smallest activity in 10 days. The Associated Press averages for 60 stocks declined .3 of a point at 34.9.

Lord and Lady Baden-Powell for Canada

Arrangements have been completed for the visit to Canada of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell (above), founders, respectively, of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movements throughout the world. Lord and Lady Baden-Powell will arrive in Victoria on April 18 and will cross Canada, visiting many cities to speak to the Boy Scouts. Owing to his serious illness of last year, demands upon the hero of Mafeking in the South African war will be made as light as possible.

Halifax Relief Camp Men Go On Strike

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

HALIFAX, March 18—Pickets who kept more than 200 unemployed at the Halifax Citadel Hill relief camp away from work today were routed tonight by large police detachments. Fourteen ringleaders were expelled from the refuge.

Declaring they should be paid on days when they were prevented from working by rain, more than 40 of the 287 men quartered in the historic barracks went on strike this morning and picketed the camp so the remainder could not get outside. Preferring not to start a riot, the non-strikers remained in their quarters without protest.

An ultimatum from military headquarters, which has jurisdiction over the camp, ordering the strikers to disband at five o'clock this afternoon, was disregarded, but pickets refused to argue later when they saw 50 police, drawn equally from R.C.M.P. and city forces, marching up the hill. Breaking, they ran and mingled with non-strikers.

While a detachment of city police remained outside, a squad of red-coats entered the citadel, singled out ringleaders, ordered them to gather up their belongings, and escorted them to the gates. No arrests were made and there were no disorders or violence.

First intimation of the strike came when Superintendent W. L. Forbes of the camp was informed the men would not work this morning. After advising the men to go to work, he communicated with Brigadier General H. F. N. Hertzberg at military headquarters.

Housing Gives Women Careers

LONDON, March 18—(By Canadian Press)—New housing estates mean more careers for women social workers.

To help 19-year-old girls who feel they have a "flair" for such jobs the Ministry of Labor, in conjunction with the Incorporated Association of Head Mistresses, has issued a pamphlet.

These list the general qualifications which are considered essential: A strong personality; real interest in human beings; maturity of outlook and considerable experience of human nature.

"The development of a healthy outlook on life, unwarped by too early contact with the difficult and the abnormal, is of great importance," it stated. "It should be realized that much social work is concerned with normal people who want to lead a full life."

Further advice is given regarding specialized branches of social work. Concerning the job of hospital almoner, for instance, it is stated that she "needs some knowledge of all social strata, for without such knowledge her sense of perspective might be warped.

Other details of training are given for mental health, labor management, probation, charity, club leadership and church and moral welfare work. On fact is made clear concerning amost every branch of social work—the pay is invariably small. "The work is taken up by those who regard their remuneration as less important than the work itself."

Doctor Witness To Miracle Cure

QUEBEC, March 18—(By Canadian Press)—Eeven-year-old Lorraine Parent has fully recovered from rheumatism which paralyzed the lower part of her body after a miraculous cure through prayer to Reverend Mother Catherine de St. Augustin, one of the founders of the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Levis, wrote Abbe P. Beaudry, chaplain of the hospital, in a recent article in "La Semaine Religieuse de Quebec."

After several months of suffering, the young girl, who lives in Levis, decided to start a novena to Reverend Mother Catherine de St. Augustin. In the middle of the third novena the doctor wanted to put the child asleep to break the stiffness of the joints by force. The girl refused and redoubled her prayers.

The same day the little patient was able to move her leg. After another fervent prayer Lorraine said she felt she could walk. Assisted by nurses she then made several trips around her bed. Several days later the doctor attending her could hardly believe his eyes when she crossed the room without aid. After an examination the doctor declared, "It is a miracle, a true miracle," and signed a document to that effect.

POLICE MAKE OWN POCKET WIRELESS

LONDON, March 18—(Canadian Press)—A wireless receiving set, no bigger than a small packet of cigarettes, has been invented by two members of the Wigan, Lancashire, police. The set was constructed from odds and ends picked up at the fire station.

The inventors claim an officer on patrol duty equipped with such a set could receive rush messages from headquarters. The chief constable and members of the police committee went out to a country spot more than a mile from police headquarters and listened to instructions being given to a constable over the pocket set.

ELECTED HEAD OF ALLIANCE

TORONTO, March 18—(Canadian Press)—Rev. Dr. George T. Webb of Toronto has been elected president of the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada. Dr. Webb has been for some years secretary of the Board of Religious Education of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec. He is also acting secretary for the Ontario Religious Education Council.
