In these southern waters is somewhat better than last year.

I have not yet heard a satisfactory explanation for the unusually large number of lobsters trapped in the coastal waters of the Island this spring. After so many years of fishing it might be reasonably supposed there would be a marked falling off year after year and to a certain extent, this may be true, but during this, the latest year, the catch is well above the average, and therein lies the mystery. Migration may or may not account for it.

All that the best minds in the world can do about the weather is to look at it and to talk about it and sadly shake their heads or clap their hands as the case may be. (An illustration of mixed metaphor).

There is a feeling in many quarters that May snow is as good as a coat of manure but this will not seriously cripple the fertilizer market.

It is not yet known whether Rev. Mr. Austin, of U. S. A., has accepted

New broods of chickens, flocks of lambs, litters of pigs and foxes, calves and foals all combine to make life on the farm a drama of high and moving interest.

To those who seldom visit the city where once they may have been well acquainted, the truth of Lambs lines is convincing: "All all are gone the old familiar faces"—H.

Seeding is unusually backward in all the region along our shore line, but is as far forward as conditions have permitted.

The high water mark for the planting of seed potatoes has been reached by Mr. Jas. D. MacMillan of Wood Island West, who put in 293 bushels.
