Drifts Delay Rail Traffic And Block Highways

Cold Wave Accentuated By 40 Mile An Hour Gale. Sub-zero Readings Recorded.

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) A frigid gale roared over Canada's Maritime Provinces during the week-end and piled last week's snowfall into drifts that blocked railways and highways.

Roads were filled from Yarmouth to Sydney in Nova Scotia and rural automobile traffic was at a standstill today. The Dominion Atlantic railway train express arrived in Yarmouth from Halifax eight hours late Saturday after fighting drifts of hard-packed snow all the way.

The Canadian National's Ocean Limited was five hours late arriving in Truro last night on her way from Montreal to Halifax. She lost more time between Truro and Halifax. Dispatchers blamed the delay on snow drifts and wind.

Huge waves beating the Atlantic coast had set free shore ice and drifting floes were threatening to block the Yarmouth harbor channel.

Strong winds in Prince Edward Island fanned the flames which destroyed a three storey hotel at Vernon. Limbs were torn from trees, doors were blown in and chimneys knocked over.

The wind velocity averaged 40 miles an hour and temperatures were between zero and 10 above.

Yesterday, when according to popular folklore the ground hog, or bear if you will, comes out and looks for his shadow saw Prince Edward Island whipped by a frigid gale that at times reached the velocity of 40 miles an hour. The temperature hovered close to zero all day and a heavy ground drift filled cuttings on highways and railways.

A plow extra was sent as far as Emerald Junction yesterday to clear the track of drifts that were packed hard by the high wind, giving promise of difficulties along the other lines today.

At nine o'clock last evening a twenty-six mile an hour breeze was blowing and the temperature was two above zero. At ten o'clock yesterday morning the wind reached a velocity of forty miles an hour with the thermometer at four above. The barometer reading was low early in the morning, 29.17, but continued to rise during the day indicating, it was felt by weather men, a lower temperature. Early this morning unofficial temperature reports said five below.

A short lived wind storm struck Clinton on Friday according to reports from there, demolishing two barns and causing considerable other damage. The barns belonged to Mr. George Dennis and Mr. Stanford Glover. A barn belonging to Mr. Harlan McGuirk and well filled with hay and grain, was moved from its foundation and a seven inch gale snapped off, almost letting the logs down on the cattle. The wind blew the chimney off his dwelling house and tore the roof off his machine shed. A machine house belonging to Mr. Ernest Pickering was also demolished.

Threatens Tie-up

MONCTON, Feb. 2.—A raging winter blizzard in the Riviere du Loup area threatens to tie up railway traffic on the Canadian National Railway Halifax-Moncton main line. A stalled snow plough at St. Eloi, near Riviere du Loup will block the progress of the west bound Ocean Limited which left

INTERESTING PAPER BY PROF. A. R. KENDALL

Handel and Bach Studied by Women's Music Club.

The subject of the Women's Music Club meeting of February 1st was a double one, both Handel and Bach being studied.

Mr. A. R. Kendall, organist of Trinity Church, read a very interesting two part paper dealing with these two great musical geniuses born in the year 1685.

Of Handel, Mr. Kendall said, that unlike Bach, he did not inherit his musical genius, as his father despised the art of music. Handel, however, managed to overcome many difficulties and received excellent training both as a performer and as a composer, from the
