Boisterous Old Days
Of "Little Old New York"

The boisterous town of the good old days, when cowboys roamed the Avenue and a barmaid—or a lady—could win a man like Robert Fulton, are brought vividly to life on the screen in "Little Old New York," the 20th Century-Fox film, which opened at the Prince Edward Theatre yesterday with Alice Faye, Fred MacMurray, Richard Greene and Brenda Joyce heading a splendid cast.

This robust, romantic drama casts Alice Faye in the colorful role of the fiery belle of the waterfront who fell headlong for handsome Robert Fulton—and went after him, while the whole brawling waterfront cheered her on.

MacMurray is seen as the burly shipbuilder engaged to build the mermaid, after Fulton's model for the first steamer. Greene is seen as the dashing inventor himself; and blonde Brenda Joyce has the role of the lovely girl who loved him, helped him to realize his dream in the face of ridicule and who later became his wife.

Others prominently featured in the cast are Andy Devine, Henry Stephenson and Fritz Feld.

Five Planets
Visible Are

Associated Press Service
NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP)—If people had telescopic eyes this week they would see five amazing planets visible above the western horizon at sunset.

Lowest down, Mercury, only about twice the size of the moon, would be seen to fit classical descriptions of hell. Its surface, which shines so brightly, is hotter than the melting point of lead. The heat is entirely due to rays of the close-by sun.

Just next above Mercury this week, giant of all planets, about 88,000 miles in diameter is a true behemoth land. Nothing can be seen except solidly frozen, glowing clouds of ammonia, methane and probably other hydrocarbons which earthly laboratories could thaw into motor fuels.

These clouds float in a temperature of almost 400 below zero (Fahrenheit).

Next upward is Venus, brightest to the naked eye this week, and almost earth's twin in size. Venus is nothing but a dazzling white and puzzling blanket of fairly warm clouds. Their whiteness is one reason for Venus' brilliance.

They are known only to contain a lot of carbon dioxide. Guesses have been made that they are mostly swirling dust.

Next up is Saturn, a giant nearly as big as Jupiter, its substance so light in weight that it would float in an ocean of water if there were a sea large enough to hold it.

Last, and to most, is Mars, the only planet whose surface telescopes can certainly see. On this whose existence was substantiated beyond doubt last July when Mars was close to the earth and far brighter than this week.

If the sun were the size of a small pea, Jupiter would be a small pea, Saturn a hazelnut, Mars and Venus a medium-sized pea.

Farmers Meet
For Annual Sessions Today

Just what would be the big problem to come up for discussion at sessions of farmers organizations in Charlottetown today and Wednesday of the Prince Edward Island Sheep Breeders' Association, according to the announced program, E. C. Holm of Des Sable is president.

The evening session would be devoted to the problems of the Prince Edward Island Swine Growers Association.

Tomorrow is scheduled to be a big day with the Central Farmers Institute holding the spot light. R. A. Profit of FreeTown is president.

At the meeting of the evening meeting of the institute would be W. K. Tibert, Fredericton, N. B., director of vocational education in New Brunswick, who was announced.

Other speakers at the institute will be Rev. F. Young, who will address the farmers on some phases of rural education; Mr. E. Lecron, Supt. of Illustration Stations, who will outline a farm program for P. E. I. and Mr. H. Clay, Charlottetown, who will discuss the problems of rural education.

Problems of rural education are expected to occupy the attention of delegates for some time. For several days the institute has been pressing for a revised school curriculum but requests have been granted only in part.

Farmers' week has been cut down this year. Three annual sessions, which usually held annual sessions during the week are not meeting. The Prince Edward Island Egg and Poultry Association has already begun the dates of the annual meetings of the Prince Edward Island Dairy-men's Association and the Horse Breeders' Association have not yet been announced.

Miners Claim
Inability To Exist On Wages

(By Jack Tracy)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
26 (P)—The United Mine Workers called rank and file workers before a conciliation board today for the first time to support their demands for a wage increase for 10,000 union members employed by Dominion Coal Company.

The board sat here today and it wound up its Cape Breton sittings before proceeding to the mainland mining town of Springhill. Its three members are probing a wage deadlock between the U. M. W. and the company.

Henry Williamson, a miner in the company's No. 16 colliery here, told the board he was paid a daily wage of $2.50 and that the number of shifts he worked, he was earning enough to support his family of eight. A second witness, James Johnston, said he made "$100 in some years $800, other years $900 and as high as $1,000" working on the company's shipping piers at Sydney.

E. A. Fraser, an official of the New Waterford Co-operative Society, estimated there was "possibly an 11 per cent increase in the price of foods in New Waterford since the beginning of the war, and in drygoods an increase of possibly 15 per cent. He predicted prices would continue to advance.

The union is asking the wage increase on the basis of an increased cost of living. The company is refusing the increase on the basis of inability to pay.

Auditing Trend
Is Deplored

YORK, Pa., Feb. 26—Emphasis has been given to the auditing or crime-detection phase of accounting as a result of efforts in recent years to protect the investing public from fraud, and the development of the creative function of accounting has suffered accordingly, according to the National Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, told the local chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants here today.

Conceding that accounting systems should be as far as practicable to prevent dishonest practices, Mr. Kleinhaus asserted that despite the emphasis put on auditing as the result of Federal regulations and the exposure of a few gross frauds in connection with the operation of certain publicly owned corporations, the accountant's function of accounting is still on the creative side.

"If we are not vigilant in our emphasis on this crime-detection phase of accounting, given impetus by the SEC and the American Institute of Accountants, it is likely to hurt the development of the creative phase of accounting," he said.

Sailors Joke
With King And Queen

AN EAST COAST BRITISH PORT, Feb. 26 (CP Cable)—Five men rescued from the German prison ship Albatross quipped and joked with the King and Queen today over the experiences during weeks of captivity.

"What did you have to eat?" the King asked G. C. Barrett, Cape Town seaman, who said, "Mostly bread and soup, sir" said Barrett.

"...and bread" interposed R. Burrows, another seaman.

While at the port the King decorated eight naval heroes as follows: Commander L. A. K. Boswell, Distinguished Service Order; Lieutenant Commander D. L. R. Saumarez, Distinguished Service Cross; Petty Officer H. G. Maund, leading seaman T. W. Boverall, seaman G. C. Sterry, Chief engineer G. M. C. Clelland and engineer E. W. Fox, Distinguished Service Medal.

The Queen asked one of the Albatross men who had been aboard the German prison ship, "Admiral Grant Spee what he thought of the Hans Langsdorff, who committed suicide after his ship was scuttled."

"It was sad, the way he died," the Queen remarked.

On his arrival the King was welcomed by Vice-Admiral C. G. Ramsay, commanding officer for the coast of Scotland.

The fact for which the men were decorated were not disclosed. The King shook hands with a number of officers on the parade ground including the officers of a Polish submarine.

After inspecting machine shops, the King boarded a barge and proceeded to a warship, which he inspected.

As his majesty wearing an admiral's uniform, passed by destroyers and other ships in the harbor, his crews stood at attention at the railings.

The King also inspected 500 apprentices being trained as artificers. He then drove to a nearby airfield, which is a training station for the fleet air arm, inspecting Royal Air Force officers, naval officers and ratings. He returned to the Royal train from the airfield by automobile.

several thousand persons still lived there, and troops were quartered with them, but now only a few remnants remain.

Complete withdrawal of civilians from the city began as the Finns fell back into their second-line positions and Soviet artillery moved to within easy shelling range.

The Russians have made the most of this. Although airplane bombs and occasional long-range shells have caused damage in Vainu almost from the start of the war, the concentrated attacks of the Red grand offensive from Feb. 12 to Feb. 20 damaged practically every building in the city.

Here a building stands without a roof, mere one teeters with its sides ripped off. Little more than the cross remains of what was once a church. Household effects and wares from shattered shops litter the streets.

Pan-American To Operate Larger Ship

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP)—Pan-American Airways announced tonight that beginning March 15 it would operate a larger more commodious airliner on its "shuttle" route between the United States and Bermuda.

Depending on weather and wind conditions, the Boeing plane will be able to carry up to 60 passengers.

More snow and mechanical breakdowns in snow plows combined to keep motor cars off the highways of the Prince Edward Island yesterday. A four and a half inch snowfall Sunday added to huge drifts which blocked highways to motor traffic since last week. At the same time department of public works and highways officials announced two snow plows experienced mechanical troubles while attempting to open the St. Peter's highway and were undergoing repairs in Charlottetown. Ten miles of the road west of the city was broken down forced abandonment of the work Saturday.

Meanwhile the plow assigned to the Charlottetown-Montague highway was still under repairs after a breakdown more than a week ago and the road continued to be blocked by drifts.

Highway officials said the snow was heavy and cuttings deep, presenting a difficult problem for plow crews.

At Summerside a plow reached Maccouche ten miles west of the town Saturday. Yesterday the road was drifting in again.

Last night the temperature was from north and the temperature 13 degrees above zero. Snow flurries were experienced all day.

Sunday when snow began falling the temperature was southerly and the temperature going up. Amateur weather observers predicted rain but the temperature took a sharp turn after reaching 32 degrees above zero. Since then it had grown colder steadily.

BIRTHS

PICKERING—At the Prince Edward Island Hospital on February 24, 1940, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Pickering, Charlottetown, a son.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Pte. Joseph MacDonald of Prince Edward Island (Black Watch), who died while on active duty at the front, mouth, N. S., Jan. 22, 1940. Aged 18 years.

Our boys were called for Home Defence. They saw their duty plainly. They learned to kill and grasped their guns. And left their homes so bravely.

Among the rest was one dear boy. He went on with the others. He deemed his duty lay that way. The soldiers were his brothers.

He was the idol of our home. We treasured him most dearly. I will be back was all he said. And went away serenely.

Within five months they brought him back. With the British flag around him. Tears folded closely over his breast. While floral wreaths embowered him.

The British flag my darling son. He fought and he was handsome. For it was your duty, that life. It was a priceless ransom.

O Death, where is thy victory, thou gainest none whatever. The soldier's body thou canst claim. But the soul lives on forever.

Eternal rest give unto him O Lord. Let perpetual light shine upon him. May he rest in peace. Most dear heart of Jesus have mercy on him, and grant him eternal rest.
