PRINCE EDWARD THEATRE

The Prince Edward Theatre was crowded last night when an excellent programme of pictures was put on, a five-reel masterpiece, one of the best romantic stories shown for a long time, being the leading feature, "The Temptation of Edwin Swayne" was a fine two-reel drama, with a good moral and held the attention of the audience throughout. "Nedra" the "headliner" brought out a fine array of stars the scenic effects were simply wonderful. "Avenge'd by a Fish" was a roaring comedy and was a fitting conclusion to a magnificent programme.

DR. JACKSON SAYS "DON'T STIR IT"

He is the inventor of Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal, and if anyone in the world should know how it should be cooked, he is the one. He says "Do not stir Roman Meal porridge while it is cooking. If you were to hear his lecture on this food, you would not stir it. There are three scientific reasons for not stirring it, too long to be stated here. Roman Meal positively relieves constipation and indigestion. Stirring porridge partly defeats this purpose, besides entirely destroying the flavor and altogether robbing it of its deliciousness. Cook without stirring. At grocers, 10c and 25c. Made by Roman Meal Co., Toronto.

KILLED IN ACTION.—Word has been received of the death while on active service of Wendall L. Harvie, Major 3rd Infantry Brigade South Africa, son of the late Henry Harvie, of this city, aged 38 years. Major Wendall L. Harvie was connected with the 3rd Infantry Brigade and before his death had been in command of six thousand men in a concentration camp at Potchefstroom, preparing for a German East campaign. This is where he was located when the last letter was received from him here about two months ago. Major Harvie had been through the campaign against the Germans in South West Africa as a member of the Headquarters Staff. They had a very strenuous experience and the men suffered greatly in times from short water supply, there being many casualties from scurvy. Major Harvie arrived home in rather poor health and was only there a few days when the orders came to go to Potchefstroom. No particulars as to the cause of his death have yet been received, but it was thought that it was due to fever contracted probably during the previous campaign. He was leaving Charlottetown to be employed in the drugstore of Johnston and Johnston and with Mr. A. W. Reddin. He left there at the time of the South African War in 1899, and when in Africa held a position in the Government Railway Department in connection with the transportation of troops. He became attached to the militia after arriving in South Africa and rapidly rose in the profession until he achieved the rank of Major. At the outbreak of the present war of course, he immediately went on active service. He leaves a widow who was formerly a resident of Cape Town, South Africa, and one child, three sisters, Mrs. W. W. Stanley, Mrs. G. A. Sharpe, and Miss Jeanie Harvie in Charlottetown; also three brothers Fred and Will in the United States, and Harry in Montreal.

WEDDING BELLS.—A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Crawford at 67 Concord Avenue Cambridge, Mass., on Wednesday evening the 15th, of December when their only daughter Phoebe Ann Crawford became the wife of Frank Grosvenor Smith the well known contractor and builder at Harvard Square and a graduate of Ardingly College England also of the School of Architecture, Kensington London. Mr. and Mrs. Crawford formerly belonged to Wood Islands, P. E. Island and their home in Cambridge was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The happy couple were married under an arch of pink and white rosebuds and wedding bells. The wedding march was played by Prof. Felton C. McLaren a cousin of the bride, and a former Prince Edward Islander. The bride was given away by her father and the ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Raymond Calkins of the Shepard Memorial Congregational Church of Cambridge. Dr. George C. Wheeler, was best man and Dr. Arthur W. Crawford was head usher. The bride looked charming in a gown of white satin and lace, and carried a bouquet of white and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and was attended by her cousin Miss Margaret Crawford who wore pink crepe meteor with white fur and rosebud trimmings and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses to match. The bride's suite were made of mid-eight blue velvet with picture hat of gold lace. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents from their many friends in England, France, Nova Scotia and P. E. Island. After an extended trip to New York, Philadelphia, Washington and other southern cities they will be home to their friends at 67 Concord Avenue, Cambridge, Mass. Com.

SATISFIED THE COURT
"Why this delay? Cannot the prisoner speak English?" inquired the judge impatiently.
"No," answered counsel for the defense, "but I have a fisherman here from the same village who can translate his remarks."
"Well, let us proceed at once then. What is the prisoner saying?" he inquired of the interpreter.
"Nothing."
"Nonsense!" came the angry answer. "I heard him speak."
"Yes, but 'twas nothing to do with the case at all."
"Sir, I demand to know what he said!" thundered the judge.
"Well, pardon, but he wanted to know who was the old woman sitting so high and mighty."
"Indeed," came the cutting reply. "And what did you answer?"
"Sure, I said, 'Whist, ye spalpeen! That's the old boy that's going to hang you!'"

CAPT. MCKINNON'S COMMAND

for the new 36th battery, his recruiting stations were deluged with applications. So generous and enthusiastic was the response, that the 36th was filled as fast as men could be examined and attested. It was the same when Major Crowe called for reinforcements a week or so ago. Today the 36th is as fine a unit as any mustered beneath the British colors.

And what Sydney and Glace Bay have done in connection with the splendid 36th, Halifax and the provinces generally will do in the formation of this new unit. Those who know Captain "Dan" McKinnon, know that he will aim high, and that is exactly what he is doing. Captain McKinnon means to make this new unit second to none that will go from Canada. And knowing him and his record. The Evening Mail ventures the assertion that he will do it.

The work of an ammunition column is regarded as possibly the most interesting and exciting of all the branches of the service. It calls for alertness and ingenuity of a very high order. A constant supply of ammunition must be kept up for the batteries, and in this war some of the most noteworthy feats of resourcefulness and courage have been performed in this work. A certain proportion of the men will require to be good riders and drivers—and where you find a man who loves a good horse, you find a man with a stout heart and a hearty sense of common sense. These are the kind of men Captain "Dan" McKinnon will lead. Himself one of the greatest horsemen the maritime provinces have known, he will bring to the battery a fund of knowledge, in conjunction with his excellence as an artillery officer, which is nothing if not vitally valuable. Mounted work will be a strong feature of the training; and who better fitted to conduct it than a man who owns a half dozen of the best horses in the lower provinces.

The corps will be equipped in the regular fashion with cavalry equipment, bandolier, riding breeches, cavalry tunic and spurs, and will be one of the trimmest and naggiest units mobilized.

The mobilization will take place in about a week's time, and preliminary training will be given in Halifax in the month of January. The most important work, gun-drill, use of artillery instruments, riding driving and care of horses, and battery-drill. A strong feature will be lectures on the various duties of an artilleryman, the intention being to have the corps thoroughly posted in theoretical, as well as practical artillery. Then, with a

Those who know Captain McKinnon, know as well that training will not be "all work and no play." A man who knows men appreciates the fine things of recreation and relaxation. Very special attention will be given to each man's diet, for in this war, as in every other, Captain McKinnon thinks, are as essential as soap and water.

As the quarters will not be ready for about a week yet, Captain McKinnon is putting up at the Queen Hotel here, and will please to receive applications for enlistment in the corps. As usual, applicants should forward, name, age, occupation, chest measurement, height and weight.

In good old days of sport in the maritimes, when "Dan" McKinnon led a team from Prince Edward Island to Halifax, the Garrison city called out for a horse to ride to die to keep her end up. He is Captain D. A. McKinnon now, but he still has the heart of a boy and a sportsman—the "play-up, play-up and play the game girl." Who is there in this city, or in Eastern Canada, who has followed sport for a few years, and does not remember a certain competitor and prince of good fellows, "Dan" McKinnon?—first in every thing that was manly and sportsmanlike in track and field sports, football, everything. He was our champion middle-distance man before Hans Hoerner wore the racing stars. He is a successful business man, and what is a very great deal more to the point in our trying times just now, he is a very

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat
Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man and woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Most thin people are victims of malnutrition—a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are, when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, much of the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal, amount of fat, the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can probably best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a careful combination of the splendid assimilative agents. Taken with meals they mix with the food to turn the sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect has been in many cases reported remarkable. Reported gains from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by all druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you, send $1.00 to the National Laboratories 74 St. Antoine St. Montreal and a complete ten days treatment will be sent you postpaid.

NOTE.—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and with excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc. have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

'NEDRA'

A FIVE-REEL GOLD ROOSTER PLAY BY GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON
ADAPTED FROM HIS FAMOUS NOVEL OF THE SAME NAME, AND PRODUCED BY EDWARD JOSE
Featuring GEORGE PROBERT

SUPPORTED BY FANIA MARINOFF, MARGARET GREENE AND A SPLENDID CAST

When two love-sick young people run off to be married—and aren't caught—they usually get married. It was different with Grace Vernon and Hugh Ridgway, though. Worn out by the social affairs given in honor of their approaching marriage, they elope in the wee am hours of a certain summer morning, and being mistaken for housebreakers by the gardener and other members of the household, are pursued. A couple of cops as added starters make the chase even more interesting, and they don't breathe easily until, a couple of hours after climbing a rope ladder up the side of an ocean liner, they came out from their hiding place and find themselves at sea. Not nearly so much "at sea" then, however, as later when Hugh finds that Grace is much smitten with Henry Veath, an old time friend of his. Hugh cares nothing about the fact that Lady Tenny, another passenger, seems to care more for his society than for anyone else.

Comes a typhoon, the ship is dashed on the rocks, and in the ensuing darkness and panic Hugh makes a brave attempt to save one who clings closely to him—one he thinks to be Grace. Then blackness, and with returning consciousness and the light, the realization that he is cast away on a strange tropical isle—the isle of Nedra, with—Lady Tenny!

Add to this that they are found and worshipped as two gods by the savage natives of the isle—that the enforced, wedding is interrupted by the landing of a U. S. ship—that Hugh goes home only to find Grace married to Veath—that he finds that he doesn't care a particle—that he rushes back to Lady Tenny—and you have just a bare conception of the most romantic love story ever filmed.

ON THE FIELD OF HONOR.
In a field in the Department of the Aisne, where the English were beaten in September 1914, some of our territorialists discovered two isolated mounds covered over with grass and surmounted by wooden crosses, one of which bore the words "Tin" and the other word "Rubbish." Greatly affected, our territorialists gathered flowers, of which they made bouquets, which they piously placed upon the mounds. Then, with a trembling hand, they wrote upon the crosses this inscription: "Dead on the Field of Honor! There the inscriptions remained until, one day, when a farmer who understood English had had the soil broken open and discovered that one of the mounds many empty cans and in the other a lot of worn-out clothing—Le Cri de Paris.
