of producing what they can consume in food products and it is necessary for us in Eastern Canada to have access to their market without having to climb over a tariff wall. The Liberal tariff policy will be framed to take into consideration interest, pensions, railway deficits and ordinary expenditure and it will be adjusted on a revenue basis. In regard to the railway situation, he maintained that under the Board of Management there was no safeguard against proletrating and that the system was all wrong. The enterlocking directorates was not a sound business method and the principle of taking the expenditure of public moneys out of the hands of parliament could not be approved. The freight rates are almost prohibitive for shipping grain and potatoes and these must be adjusted as soon as possible. He maintained that the statements made regarding the surplus earned by the Merchant Marine was not correct and that the government embarked upon the work of building these ships without a policy and without authority.

Mr. Donald McKinnon.

Mr. Donald McKinnon, the next speaker, maintained that Mr. Sinclair was now taking objection to many things which had occurred during the parliamentary session and of which it is not on record that he took any objection to at the time. He was in the House when the measures which he now condemns were passed and it was his place and duty as a member to raise his objections there. He has stated night after night in his campaign meetings that Canada's Merchant Marine ships are costing altogether too much, but he let the cat out of the bag at Eldon when he said the Liberal faction wanted the government to sell some of these ships and a ton.

Mr. Sinclair: In 1919, Mr. Donald McKinnon: In 1919 they had that offer, he says. And he comes before you tonight and tries to make you people believe that they are worth only $35 a ton! Is not that what he tells you, that they could be bought as cheaply for $35 a ton? If the worth $135 a ton in 1919 how could they be built for $35 a ton? Does it not prove that the expense of building these vessels was a reasonable one? They cost $190 a ton to build, while vessels of the same kind were being built in the United States at the rate of $215 a ton. I do not think you will be numerous as to-day.

Mr. Sinclair: Oh, yes.

Mr. Donald McKinnon maintained that if so he had not been able to record of it in Hansard. As to the work of the Merchant Marine is doing this year, it is only necessary to look at the shipping statistics from Halifax and Charlottetown. The Canadian Sapper is doing excellent service here and on railway cars. Had the government sold these vessels for $135 a ton in 1919 as the Liberals declare they would have done, they would not have been able to keep up the demand for the war was in round figures about one billion dollars. Her trade last year was over two billions, including imports and exports. Our Liberal friends argue that this is because the dollar was worth a great deal less in 1914 and this would no doubt be to some extent true with reference to the year 1918 when prices were very high. Since then the prices have come down considerably. Notwithstanding this, however, we find that in 1918 the imports were only $93,000,000, 000 so that there has been a substantial increase even with falling prices. There has been a slight decrease in the exports since 1918 when they amounted to $1,540,000,000. For 1921 they were $1,189,000,000 which is the largest export figure of any year with the single exception of 1918. These figures plainly show that the trade of the country has been more than kept up in the face of difficulties and universal trade depression by Canada's splendid Merchant Marine.

Now with the Fordney bill our need of these ships is much greater and it is reassuring to know that we have sixty of them carrying our products fortnightly and tri-weekly to all parts of the world.

The Railway Question.

Mr. McKinnon took up the railway question and reviewed the history of the building of the G.T.R. and C.P.R. lines. The Liberal candidates claim that in 1914 Sir Thomas White said the three Canadian lines were taxed to the utmost but it is quite easy to tax railways to their utmost when they have only a certain amount of rolling stock. There was no necessity to build three lines because all the stock could have been put on one line and the cars run as easily. When the Conservatives took hold the railways were in such a condition that they could not put their rolling stock on the lines. The railways needed whole sale reorganization and for this it was necessary to enlist the services of the best railway experts in the country. The government took these experts in railway matters not from the House of Commons but from the railways in spite of the foolish criticism of the opposition, and the result is that they are being reorganized and will soon be upon their feet again. The Merchant Marine is operating in connection with the government railways, and as a result, freight rates have come down all the way from twenty to sixty per cent, and when we get fuller co-operation between them and more perfect connections between our vessels and our railway lines we will get the rates down to where we want them. Reference had been made on many occasions by Messrs. Sinclair and D. A. McKinnon regarding manipulation of soldiers' votes. This slanderous charge was answered very emphatically by Mr. Myers at Grand View and it has been thrashed out time and again; but it is still being dragged into discussion. The speaker wished to read to the audience an extract from a letter written overseas during the war by a gentleman well known in
