RED CROSS SOCIETY.—On Monday evening last a number of the ladies of Hunter River met in the Hall and organized an Auxiliary Branch of the Red Cross Society with the following officers. President—Mrs. John Waye; Secretary—Mrs. (Dr.) Rodgers; Treasurer—Mrs. G. McGuigan. WEDDING BELLS.—On Sept. the Rev. Mr. Ramsay united in marriage Miss Lily M. McDonald, daughter of Mr. John McDonald, Eden Lake, Nova Scotia, to Mr. John A. Mrs. David McPherson, sister of the groom, acted maid of honor while Mr. Henry Anderson, brother-in-law of the bride supported the groom. The ceremony was witnessed by a number of friends after which a dainty breakfast was served. The bride received many useful and beautiful presents and spoke volumes for the good wishes of a large circle of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Weatherbie amid showers of rice, old shoes and good wishes, took the 7.20 a. m. train for Montreal where the groom is Principal of Rosemont school. The groom is a grandson of Mr. Timothy Weatherbie, Village Green, P. E. Island.

40 PER CENT. DIVIDENDS.—The Guardian was shown yesterday a number of letters in process of mailing, each enclosing a cheque for forty per cent. on an investment made about a year ago, and containing a promise that the balance of the dividend—anywhere between twenty and thirty per cent.—would be paid immediately after the year's business had been wound up. While the expression "financial stringency" is a byword and a reason for small profits in other lines, while once flourishing industries have closed their doors on account of the disturbance caused by the war, it is surely an evidence of the strength and stability of the fox industry to find that it has weathered the storm forty per cent. to the good, with a prospect of adding twenty or thirty per cent. more as the result of a year's work. This splendid showing was made by the Provincial Silver Black Fox Company, of which Hon. John Agnew, of Alberton, is president and with whom are associated as an Executive Messrs. John O. Hyndman, W. A. O. Morson, George D. DeBlois, Charlottetown, and A. K. Tapper, Boston. The Guardian heartily congratulates these gentlemen and those who are fortunate enough to have invested with them in the Provincial on the splendid showing they have made.

PRIZE-WINNER OMITTED.—Owing to a clerical error the name of Mr. J. A. Dewar, of New Perth, was omitted from the prize list in the Standing Fields of Grain Competitions. Mr. Dewar had splendid entries, both of White Fife Wheat and Banner Oats, and took second place in the former and sixth in the latter.

THE SUMMERSIDE RIFLE MEETING.—A fairly large number of riflemen from the city and surrounding country, intend invading Summerside to-day to take part in the provincial rifle prize meeting, with which the splendid rifle range that has just been laid out there will be opened. Most of Charlottetown's best shots are going up to help their fellow-riflemen in the West hold a successful meeting. Among those who are going from the city are Messrs W. K. Rogers, George Moore, G. E. Ritchie, E. G. Love, G. R. Beer, A. McCabe and S. Grey, while from across the river Dr. McDonald and Mr. E. Brown, of York, also Mr. E. Jones, of Brackley Point, and Mr. J. Hudson, the veteran shot of Alexandria. It is understood, will also be of the party.

ST JAMES GUILD.—The annual meeting of the Guild of St James Church was held in the Schoolroom last evening, with a good attendance. During the past year many pleasant events have been held, and much good work accomplished, while the finances are in a healthy condition. The officers for the coming year were elected as follows:—President, Miss Mary McNair, Vice-President, Miss Ethel Thomson and Miss Katherine James; Secretary, Miss M. J. Irving; Treasurer, Miss Marion McLean. Miss M. McCannel, Miss Cairns, Miss B. Toombs and Miss A. Saunders were appointed as a Flower Committee in connection with the sick of the Church, while other Sub-Committees were also appointed. It was decided to hold the annual Halloween tea, which has been so successful in past years and which is now looked forward to as an event of early autumn.

A SOCIALIST PROPHET

for action, because we shall never know the day nor the hour the Germans may attempt their coup.

It is necessary to enlarge upon the immense strategic advantage which this state of affairs gives to Germany? Surely the answer is given to Mr. Winston Churchill or Mr. McKenna.

With the threat of a sudden attack in force, in the night, in the mist, continually hanging over their heads, a great fleet has to wait and watch in the North Sea. It must not divide its forces. It must never cease to watch nor suspend its readiness for instant action. It must not lie in harbours nor in rivers, for there it will be defeated if attacked in force. It must remain at sea, where the best authorities declare that no fleet is safe from attacks by submarines, or torpedo-boats, or mines.

Finally, it must never go and seek its enemies; it must never approach the enemy's coast; because the enemy is a friendly Power and war is not declared.

Such is to be the strategic position of the future. And I have seen even the complacent noddles who edit Liberal newspapers will understand that such a strategic situation demands a Navy of overwhelming force, manned by officers and seamen of a vigilance and courage more than human.

Although I have often described myself as a Little Englander I have been cognisant of certain considerations which the more aggressive Little Englander seems commonly to ignore.

Granting that we got most of our Empire by robbery under arms, though often at the expense of men capable robbers who had got the booty in no honest way—granting that we had no moral right to snatch colonies from the French, the Dutch, the Spaniards, the Mohammedans, or the Zulus—who had stolen them before us, there still remains several knotty questions to be answered before we hand over the stolen property to any other people.

We cannot give Australia back to the aborigines, for we have civilised them off the face of the earth. If we gave New Zealand back to the Maoris we should simply be handing it to Japan, America, or some European Power.

If we have no right to our Colonies, neither has any other foreign Power.

And then, again, there is the question: Would any other Power govern our Colonies better than we, or leave them to govern themselves as fully as we?

Now I have no doubt that in India and the other subjects States our rule is full of imperfections. But would our retirement, in many cases, be an advantage or a disadvantage to the subject race? It is not a question only of the faults of British rule; it is a question also of the comparative virtues of British and other foreign rule.

If we left India, could the natives hold it? If Russia, or France, or Germany conquered India, would the Indians be better off or worse than they now are?

It has always seemed to me that we cannot abandon our Colonies or dependencies; and that we might have to defend them against other foreign Powers until we can make reasonably sure that our retirement will not expose them to worse evils than our own rule.

To give India to the Indians, Canada to the Canadians, and Egypt to the Egyptians, I for one am quite willing; when these peoples wish for and are fit for self-government and self-defence. But to atone for an injury by exposing a victim to a greater injury seems to me an aggravation of the wrong.

Let us be just, even to our own country. The Belgians in the Congo State, the Germans in roand, the Spaniards in Cuba, the Russians in all their dependencies, do not seem to have improved on British methods, imperfect though our methods may be. The Japanese in Korea, the French and Spaniards in Morocco, do not seem to have inspired much love or confidence in the native breast. Give up India? To whom? And how? And why?

Improve the Government of India? Certainly. And while we are about it we might do a little for England.

We might trust our people more, and educate them better, and exploit them less. Then perhaps they would be more willing to trust their rulers than they now are. Then, perhaps, our ruling classes would not be afraid to do their duty for fear of the public wrath.

Today the ruling classes dare not trust the people with real democratic powers; dare not trust the people with arms. The people, on their part, dare not trust their rulers with the kind of Army essential to the safety of the Empire.

"The masses are ignorant, they are lazy, they are drunken, irresponsible, prone to riot," their rulers say in their acts if not in words.

Whose fault is that, gentlemen? Who has claimed the right to govern, to educate, to employ the people?

None knows better than the ruling class what will happen should disaster come upon the nation. There need have been no ignorance, no vice, no disaffection, no class hatred, no dangerous poverty, had the ruling class ruled wisely.

There need be no disaster had the ruling class done their duty. There need be no disaster yet if the ruler will be brave enough to tell the people the truth and trust them.

The Empire is in danger. It is not well with us at home; it looks dark for us abroad.

What the British nation stands most in need of in this portentous hour is a man.

Look where we will, we see only party politicians; listen as we may we hear only party politics. The nation is broken up into purposeless factions; will for weeks be crazy over meaningless election cries.

The German nation is homogeneous; organized. Their imperial policy is continuous. Their rulers work strenuously, sleeplessly, silently. Their principle is the theory of blood and iron.

I do not want war; I want peace. I am not an enemy of the Germans, but a friend. I like Germany; but I love England, as a man loves his mother, or his wife, or his comrade, or his home.

And the Empire is in danger; and we are unready; and we need a man.

PICKLING SEASON

Frost last night September 9th, not much damage to tomato and cucumber vines, but the next may be more severe. What sense is there in putting off from time to time until pickling stock is unobtainable. Just now we can supply in any reasonable quantity, green tomatoes and ripe, small cucumbers and large, small pickling onions, red onions for chow, spice, peppers and choice pickling vinegar etc.—

Last year we were compelled to cancel very small orders in this line. Call at our market place and leave the list of requirements, or if inconvenient to call, order by mail.

Please remember we are doing a cash business, prices on application.
