WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 26, 1905

STAGGERING BLOW.

It was indeed a staggering blow to the Senators when their mileage was taken away. It was doubly hard because the men thus cruelly struck down are no longer young. Men in the thirties, forties and fifties do not perhaps realize what it is to men in the seventies, eighties and nineties to have their living taken away. For as the good Shylock said, "You take my life when you do take the means whereby I live." To the Senator who lived on his mileage, the taking away of his mileage was the taking away of his living.

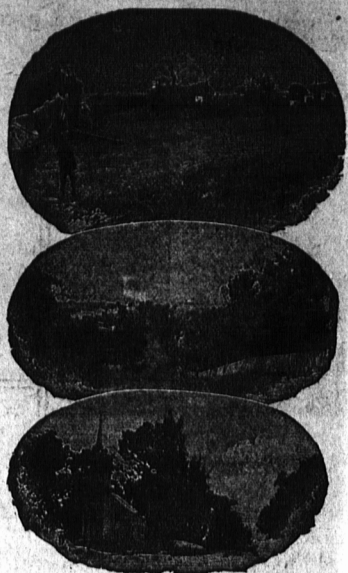

Try to realize this, dear reader, and think of how you would feel if in your serene old age your living was taken away. But some man will say, "Was there not a thousand dollars a year added to the Senators pay?" Of course there was. But that was another affair altogether. Try and put yourself in the Senator's place. Imagine that you had been accustomed to bring home your sessional pay and put it in the bank, or lend it out on mortgage. Would you like to be forced to break in upon that precious store, that nest egg, so to speak, and draw from it your living expenses?

Try and think what a comfort it was in travelling to the Capital (on a free pass) to know that you were earning a clean ten cents a mile as you travelled. Every ten miles you were a dollar richer. If the train struck a good rate of speed, say fifty miles an hour, that meant five dollars an hour. Ten hours would be fifty dollars. Thirteen hours would be sixty-five dollars—enough to pay your board at five dollars a week for a three months session. Meals do come high on the train—they charge seventy-five cents for a square meal.

Still one "square" meal and two "hand-outs" of coffee and sandwiches at 25 cents would carry one through the day. And with the mileage you didn't seem to feel the awful expense of it. Why, twelve and a half miles, a fifteen minutes run, at ten cents would pay for the whole day's grub. That was the beauty and the comfort of mileage, it went on while you were eating or sleeping. Sleep eight hours at a fifty mile clip and you earned a clean forty dollars. And one could feel so well on arriving at the capital, so fresh and strong and dignified. Step up to the paymaster's office, draw the mileage you had earned and then ask the landlady to make the board four dollars a week if paid in advance! She couldn't well refuse, for hadn't you helped to get her son appointed a messenger?

Yes, reader, this mileage was a great comfort to a Senator. You see it had become a part of his very life, his living in fact. If there had never been any mileage it would have been different, and the good old men might have struggled along without it. Sometimes what we don't have we don't miss. But to have it and enjoy it, and live upon it all these years, and then to see it suddenly snatched away, surely that was a staggering blow. Pity their sorrows gentle reader. It is our duty to sympathize with the afflicted.

Yes, it will sadden the journey to and from Ottawa. The Senator can no longer feel any satisfaction in counting the mile posts along the way, whispering to himself, "ten cents, twenty cents, thirty cents." On the contrary the mile post that was a very joy to look upon will become a sad reminder of his loss. Something must be done to remedy the great wrong. We cannot bear to see these dear, generous, patriotic Senators in tears. Let us pass the hat and take a collection to make up their crushing loss! Better still, let the round robin fly again and have the precious boon restored, never again to be taken away.

ST. DUNSTAN'S JUBILEE.

The jubilee celebration held at St. Dunstan's college yesterday marks a notable anniversary in the history of that worthy institution. In the half century past it has grown from small to comparatively large proportions, and stands today more revered, honored and useful than ever before. St. Dunstan's is a just source of pride to all who have had to do with its foundation, its enlargement, and in bringing it to its present high status, and also to the hundreds, at home and abroad who can claim it as their Alma Mater.

Tomorrow, Thursday afternoon has been properly proclaimed a half holiday to enable all to witness the military review at the Park in honor of Old Home Week. All are requested to close their places of business in order that clerks and employees may have an opportunity to enjoy themselves as well as their employers.

Every body is glad to see and greet the Home Comers and they seem also glad to be with us. More are coming from day to day. The Island is looking well, the fields and forests are green, the sky blue above, and the weather propitious. Thus nature at this genial season joins in the welcome to those who have come to look once more upon their native land and the old home scenes.

It is announced from Tokio that within a few weeks the Manchurian ports of Dainy, Antung and Mukden will be opened to the world, free to merchants of all nations on equal terms for purposes of trade. This shows a disposition to keep faith with other nations in regard to the promised "open door," but it also seems to indicate a Japanese sovereignty in Manchuria which may not be relished by China.

WIRE WOUNDS.

My mare, a very valuable one was badly bruised and cut by being caught in a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, diluted at first, then stronger as the sores began to look better, until after three weeks, the sores have healed and best of all the hair is growing well, and is NOT WHITE as is most always the case in horse wounds.

THE CATTLE EMBARGO.

Thirteen years ago there was some cattle disease in the United States, and an Order in Council was passed by the British Government placing an embargo on cattle imported from the Republic. As American cattle from the west sometimes passed through Canada the embargo was extended to Canada. Nine years ago the embargo was replaced by legislation providing that Canadian cattle shall be slaughtered within ten days of their arrival in the British Isles, and the number of ports at which they could be permitted to land was restricted to seven.

There is not now and has not been for years any contagious disease among Canadian cattle. Since the restrictions have been imposed about a million and a quarter of Canadian cattle have been carried to the British Isles, slaughtered there and the carcasses inspected by British veterinary surgeons without a single case of contagious disease being discovered. And yet successive Canadian Governments have asked in vain to have the embargo removed. It has no foundation in reason or in justice. It is simply a measure of protection for British stock-growers, most inconsistently kept in force by a nominally free trade country.

The rainy season in Manchuria has this year been less severe than usual and it is now stated that military operations are again easily practicable. Unless, however, a battle is speedily precipitated, there is hope that an armistice may be agreed upon that will stay further fighting for a month at least. It is given out that the first business of the Peace Conference now shortly to meet, will be to arrange an armistice if possible.

LISTEN FOR THE "BRONCHIAL WHEEZE."

It means that disease will soon attack the lungs. Wheezing is distressing to the sufferer and annoying to his friends. Nothing half so certain in bronchitis and throat trouble as "Catarrhoxone" it gives instant relief and cures even the worst cases. Bronchitis fairly flees under the magic influence of Catarrhoxone which cures so thoroughly the disease never returns. Other remedies may relieve, but "Catarrhoxone" cures—bronchitis, catarrh, and throat trouble for all time to come. Sold everywhere.
