EIRE-CANADA

CANADA-EIRE DUBLIN, May 6-(CP)-Imports to Eire from Canada rose substantially in value during 1940 and the flow was fairly well maintained through the year although there was some interruption in direct shipping service. James Cormack, Canadian trade commissioner, reported. Exports to Canada also increased sharply in value, but their total value was roughly only five per cent of imports from the Dominion. The striped skunk found widely in the United States is a member of the weasel family.

Empire In Arms

Is Coordinated In Arms-Making

LONDON, May 6-(CP)-Drums of war calling the Empire to arms produced a response ever more far-reaching than the steady flow of men. The call generated in the Dominions and India a tremendous drive to arm those men. It accelerated the industrialization of far-flung lands. The drive has become more empire-wide than in the First Great War when, except for Canada's supreme effort, the other Dominions had to depend on Britain for the major share of their equipment. Now, however, industrially-expanded Canada, Australia, South Africa and India help Britain give the Empire forces the tools for victory.

Antipodes' Effort

Australia's arms industry employs 150,000 workers-70 times the number in the last war-and they turn out a flood of supplies ranging from airplanes to heavy tanks. Two Tiger moth training planes, one Wirraway and one single-engine roll off the assembly lines daily. The first Australian-made Bristol Beaufort bomber has just completed successful tests. A pastoral New Zealand, always a food source, responded to war's demands by making bren gun carriers, trench mortars, bombs, steel helmets and minesweepers. Authorities expect the dominion's small arms output to be doubled soon. New Zealand makes the airframes for small arms and airplanes by makes tires and instruments.

Industry at Cape

South Africa's industrial spurt came when France collapsed and all Britain's supplies were needed at home. The union still must import small arms and airplanes but makes equipment necessary in modern war. The production record is regarded as particularly impressive in that country with a white population of only 2,000,000, of whom 120,000 are in the armed forces. South Africa produces more than enough ammunition for her own forces, trench mortars and howitzers. India provides 90 per cent of her war requirements and has produced small arms ammunition, blankets and uniforms pour from Indian factories while other make 125,000 pairs of army boots daily for export to Britain.

BRITAIN CALLS SERVANT GIRLS AND THEIR MISTRESS ALIKE TO COLORS

300,000 Girls of 20 Sign for War Work; Some Grumble But Most Smile; 21's' Are Next

BY ROSETTE HARGROVE NEA Service Staff Correspondent LONDON. -Miss England has gone to war. More than 300,000 girls of 20 have now registered for national service in Great Britain in compliance with Lady Milner's 21's call for women. So the '21's' must visit their local labor exchanges and sign on the dotted line.

While it was pointed out by the authorities that this is not conscription, it certainly involves a good deal of conscription. It does not intend to allow any woman, whatever her social standing, to sit back and let others win the war for her. 'Little Miss Hargrove' is simply going to be made to 'go to it,' just as every other healthy girl just as every other healthy girl will be. Nor will the servants' halls of the big mansions, any more than the one-woman kitchens of suburbia, be allowed to harbor young women capable of doing essential war work. It's a tremendous comb-out, this women's registration. There's quite a bit of kicking, too, mainly on the part of the grones. On the other hand, many of the 300,000 who did register are already engaged in essential war work. The object of the pecc is precisely to weed out the large army of girls who have never worked in their lives before and who have nothing more important to their minds than preserving their carefully hatched fingers and nails and putting a hat on every week, in between cocktail parties, bridge and entertaining men home on leave.

Entering a man's world, British girls register for war work at a London Labor Exchange.

immediately posted to training centers or to technical schools. The various women's services. The A. T. S., the W. A. A. F., the W. R. A. N. S., now report a marked increase in volunteers just before the registering date. These girls just didn't feel like waiting to be told what they were to do. Hundreds enrolled in the Women's Land Army, preferring to work for farmers than to be 'ordered about by other women.' Up to the end of March there were about 1,000 women working on the land. Between 800 and 900 more are in training. Even part-time, voluntary, unpaid war work will not keep women out of the war machine. If they can reasonably be expected to do a full-time job and release a man or woman for more important work then they will be expected to do so. Driving staff officers around in cars or putting in an appearance two or three times a week at a canteen will not save the slacker from being roped in. While many of the 'twenties' have accepted this calling-up with good grace, others strongly resented the measure. Some were afraid of spilling their hands, others demanded that all foreign girls who had sought refuge in this country should be called up first. But the majority accepted the inevitable and quite a good proportion were eager to join one of the women's services, if only for the adventure the new life would procure.

Potted Plants Require Care

If the budget does not run to a constant supply of cut flowers, then bring beauty into your home in the form of potted plants. Those plants that were such beautiful Easter gifts can be made to last and last, if handled with care. The many excellent plant foods now on the market do wonders in prolonging the life of potted plants and keeping them constantly in flower. Such solutions combined with light, sun and water, combined to make potted plants thrive. Cyclamen is one of the most popular of the potted flowering plants. As the butterfly like blossoms fade, remove the flowering stem entirely by pulling them away from the bulb. Do the same thing with leaves which turn yellow. The cyclamen plant is a thirsty creature and should be watered daily.

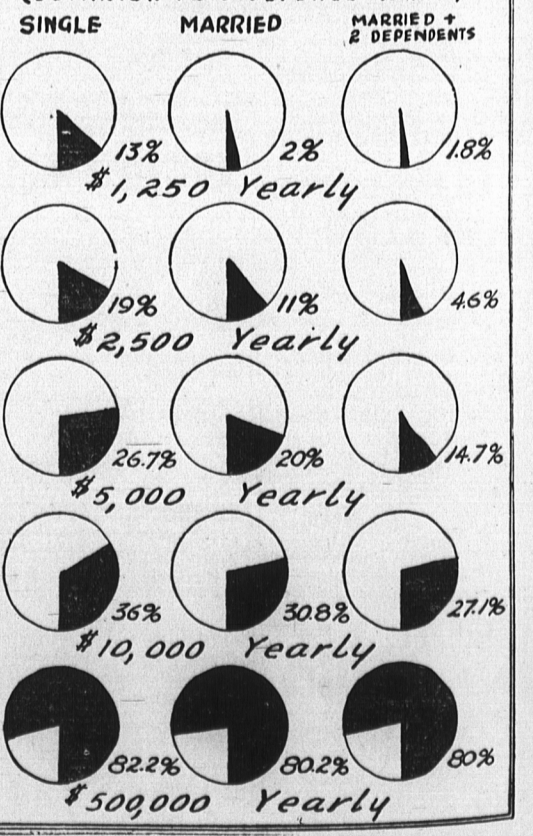

Azaleas

The azalea in its variety of beautiful colors, is another plant that likes plenty of water. Like outdoor azaleas, those in pots require plenty of humus and peat moss in the soil to keep it acid. Don't give bonemeal or lime. Watering is one of the most important items in the care of plants. One of the best methods of watering plants in pots is to place the pot in a basin of water to within an inch of the top and when the surface of the soil is wet you may be sure that sufficient moisture has been absorbed. On the market now are special mats and saucers which if placed under the pot, assure the proper amount of moisture necessary to the health of the plant.

Ferns and Leafy Plants

Be careful not to place potted plants in the way of a strong current of air, but keep them in an airy sunny room. Your florist will tell you of many varieties of plants that thrive without an abundance of sun for rooms that don't get much daylight. He will show you some new ferns and other leafy plants, and will tell you that there is big revival of plants and ferns as a decoration for the home. Plant stands and tables have been revived and are selling briskly. And as well as adding beauty to the home, looking after plants is a nerve-soother in these troubled times. Watching them grow, snipping off dead leaves, repotting when they become too prolific is an interesting task, a pleasant responsibility that pays constant dividends in beauty and charm for the home. Naming streets in a new housing settlement the Melbourne city council declined such Libyan names as Tobruk, Bardia and substituted names of prominent citizens.

PERCENTAGE OF INCOME PAID UNDER NEW TAX (DOMINION PLUS DEFENCE TAXES)

The federal government is a guest at your table and gets a liberal 'slice of pie' from everyone, when collecting income and national defence taxes. The $5,000-a-year man, married but pays one-fifth of his salary. If he has two children he pays only 14.7 per cent, and if single he must give 37.7 per cent of his year's earnings. The chart shows how other salary levels compare.
