BOYCOTT ON SHOES

EAST ORANGE, N. J. July 29.—A scheme to lower at least one phase of the high cost of living has been devised by Charles R. Steele, an insurance broker. He is trying to have the children of East Orange declare a boycott on shoes by going barefoot during the summer. He believes this will bring down the price of shoes.

Foxmen! You are no doubt desirous of having a voice in the enaction of the by-laws; in the election of Directors, and in fixing the policy of The Silver Fox Fur Selling Association. The organization meeting will take place within two weeks, so why delay in sending in your subscription?

Referendum Vote April 18, 1921

OTTAWA, July 31.—On account of representations made through various organizations in Ontario, the Government has decided to postpone the date for holding the referendum vote in the Province of Ontario until Monday, April 18, 1921. In order to permit of a revision of the Ontario Provincial Voters lists. The date originally set for the taking of the vote in Ontario was October 25th next.

The present postponement has become necessary in order that the Ontario voters lists may be thoroughly revised and brought up to date. Before the vote is taken by the Legislation passed by the House of Commons on June 28th last, special provision was made for the taking of the Referendum vote in Ontario, as there were in that Province existing provincial voters lists which had been preparpared and used in the provincial election of October 1919. It was therefore provided in the Franchise Act that the Provincial voters lists of 1919, in the Province of Ontario, should be used without revision for any vote in that province taken before December 31, 1920. This provision applied solely to Ontario because Parliament felt that the lists in Ontario were so recent that it would be both unwise to go to the expense of revision, however, it has now been pointed out that the provincial lists in Ontario are by no means satisfactory and that if they are used for the purpose of the Referendum vote, the result may be the disqualification of a very large number of electors and particularly of returned soldiers. various organization in Ontario have objected to the use of these lists for the Referendum vote without revision.

TUG DIAMOND SUNK OFF FIVE ISLANDS

PARRSBORO, N.S., July 29—The tug Diamond, of this port, sank off Five Islands today. She was bound to Economy with a light scow in tow, when she sprank a leak, filled and sank in five fathoms of water. The crew took to the boat and boarded the scow, and were later picked up by the tug Mildred and brought here.

"Going far?" asked the chatty little man on the train. "Only to Chicago," replied the other, who hated to talk to strangers and wanted to have done with the revelations that seemed to be expected. "I am a commercial traveller. My age is forty-six. I am married and have a boy of twenty. He is in college. My wife is not handsome My father is dead. He was on the stock exchange. I have a niece with red hair, and another with a cast in her eye. Our cook's name is Bridget. Is there anything else?"

The little man smiled affably. "What oil do you use for your tongue?" he inquired.

He looked a sorry pilght as he limped into the insurance office long flight of stairs the other evening, and being, and sustained damages that Bandages were numerous, will disable me for some time to walked with the aid of a crutch. come." The manager gave him a "I have called to make application for the amount due on my accident policy," he said. "I fell down a find that you are not entitled to anything. It could not be called an accident. Of course you certainly knew that the young lady's father was at home."

The Tern Tribe

By JOHN BRECK.

Ten days ago a friend strode in on me full of enthusiasm. "Go over to Stony Island!" he ordered. "Go quick! I never want to see anything cunninger than those new-hatched tern chicks, and the whole south marsh is full of them. Little fawn-colored puff-balls, 'bout as big as forty seconds, stone-streaked with black till they'd look like a handful of pebbles if they'd ever sit still. But they don't; they turn right over the edge of the nest and swim off as soon as they're out of the egg and the fluff dry." And that's all I know about infant terns!

For that very hour the north wind began to blow, and the northeast wind and four or five lesser winds between them, and the water rose until not even a spaniel could have raided the tern marsh. Not till this morning could I launch my canoe. I waited for my bow paddle to settle his precious rifle in hopes of a snakeskin, and shoved off, almost swamped at the start when my dog took a running jump and clambered in over the gunwale. Then we plied paddles to three acres of elm woods and thirty of marsh in the middle of the stream.

Sure enough, the terns were buzzing over the south end like bees over a clover field. We let ourselves drift quietly in the current, hoping to creep up unnoticed. Vain hope, for every stone above the waterline was thatched with turtles—whopping big ones, eighteen inches across. They slithered into the water a hundred feet ahead Marsh Trespass in no undecisive voice, while those turtles popped up their heads and sneered. Most and read us the Tern Laws of with a splash like a leaping fish. It drew the eye of every tern in the flock. They veered above us of them were black-bodied birds, but one big black-capped, blue coated tern constable swooped down so close that the dog made a leap for him, fox fashion. The rest were trying to screw up their courage to descend upon us in a cloud. They would screech "Now-w-w! Now-w-w!" but they never quite reached the sticking point. Instead, one by one would make a dexterous swoop for some unlucky minnow and vanish into the cat-tails.

We nosed the canoe onto a mud-flat and followed them. Was that a nest? It looked as though some portly tern matron had bounced up and down in a cluster of tangled stems until they stayed flat enough to sit on. But the fuzzy little ones? Ah! There sat a tern, quite as big as its parents, but garbed in streaked brown. He had tufts of baby fuzz still showing on shoulders and eyebrown. He had tufts of baby fuzz baby tricks still clinging about him. He opened his beak to squawk, and his despairing mother knew no other way of silencing the scamp than to flick a minnow into it. If those cunning tern chicks grow into such bad little tern birdilings will—come earlier another year.
