Pound Rallies After Drop

NEW YORK, May 14.—(CP).—The pound sterling rallied after Monday's loss of 11 cents to close 3 1-2 cents up at $3.20 1-2 in relation to the United States dollar in the foreign exchange market today.

The upturn of sterling was in the face of war news which financial circles regarded as unfavorable to the Allied cause. On the other hand, foreign exchange traders said the gain was not unnatural in view of Monday's big drop.

A break of 1-4 cent carried the Swiss franc to a new low. The Canadian dollar lost 1-8 cent to a discount of 18 1-4 per cent. (Ottawa Foreign Exchange Control Board rate 96-9.91 per cent discount). The French franc showed a small gain while the Belgian and the Netherlands Guilder were unquoted.

WILD FLOWER GARDENS

Whose heart is not gladdened at the sight of the first Mayflowers in the Spring? There are many beautiful wild flowers in this province, but they are becoming scarcer every year through clearing of the land and careless picking. Flowers such as the Trillium are destroyed because the leaves are picked with the bloom.

There are several books giving good descriptions and illustrations of wild flowers and ferns but few tell us how to plant wild flower gardens. A true lover of flowers tries to preserve the plants and it is so interesting when we discover a new flower to add it to our garden collection.

While most wild flowers can be easily transplanted, care must be taken in selecting a place to plant them. A study of the soil, shade, moisture, etc. should also be made of the location in which they are found.

The plants should never be pulled up as the small and tender roots which feed the plants are broken off. They should be carefully taken up, retaining as much earth as possible. The plants are broken off, placed in a basket where the weak stems will not get broken.

If the earth should all drop off as it might in the case of tubers or bulbs, the plants are broken up, packed in wet moss as soon as possible and no plant should ever be exposed to the sun after digging.

We can start our gardens now as some of our wild flowers are already in bloom, such as Mayflowers, Trilliums and Spring Beauties, whose early blooming plants are difficult to find but are hidden by other plants and shrubs. So Guides get on your hiking shoes—

"The paths the woods, the heavens, Are not a world today. But just a place God made for us In which to play."

The members of the United Church Missionary Society were to the wonderful story of knowledge accumulated by those who devote their time to the advancement of "Nature's Beauty Culture."

The remark by one of the superintendents struck me forcibly: "We only regret that more Prince Edward Islanders have not taken advantage of the opportunity to equip themselves with the knowledge and help we can furnish so willingly in their field and garden problems," enclosed is a short poem to—

"OUR EXPERIMENTAL FARM"

Midst Beauty's splendor, through-out the days we roam, Watching the growth of flowers—shrubs—in treated loam; Creating anew, with all the skill we know, Some special bloom, to greater grandeur grow.

A Fern, a Stately Tree, perhaps a Pond, Or a bush of bloom, around the Lily pond, Through grounds well kept, we plant, we watch the hour, That shows the growth of all, reactive to His Power.

Luxuriant growth from bulbs, we too attend, In reference books, our progress all is planned; We sow in soil prepared, we who are men; We watch the broken reed spring forth from roots again.

To You, this knowledge is extended Free, "Garden of the Gulf", where Maple Trees, Leaves out in Grandeur, to still "more" beauty show; A colorplate from Nature's Book, when gold and red leaves blow. I am, Sir, etc. —John Robert Campbell, The L'Acres, Grahams Road.

At time of writing the lobster fishing season looks to be a complete failure. One fisherman reports that in one trap with seven lobsters six were under the size limit, leaving one for the market or factory. It looks as if fishermen will require relief all this summer. The poor catches will also affect the factory help here who are employed by the day. Last week they received two days pay.

Signallers Keep Tabs on Manoeuvring Army Trucks

As army troop transports carried on manoeuvres northwest of Agincourt, Ont., reinforcement signallers of the R.C.R. 48th Highlanders and Seaforth Highlanders, had a field day reporting their movements. Lieutenants in charge of the motor vehicles were unaware of the presence of hidden signallers. Messages were exchanged between observation posts two and three miles away. Trucks made their way past given map reference points and were theoretically carrying troops to new positions for debussing. Major W. C. Kearns (LEFT), to whom signallers reported at field headquarters here looks over a signalling apparatus. The major is seen (RIGHT CENTRE) with Lieut. C. L. Botting (RIGHT), and Lieut. W. B. Fleming (LEFT), who co-operated in the activities.
