ROTARY CLUB.—"The Children's Aid Society and the Delinquent Child," was the subject of an interesting address at Rotary yesterday by Hon. Dr. W. J. P. McMillan. The Doctor first set forth the objects of the organization stressing the point that in these days of emigration from our country we should consider the best way of conserving and preserving the population we have. As a member of the School Board as Provincial Health Officer, City Health Officer, and from his connection with the Dispensary, the Red Cross and the Children's Aid Society, the problem has been brought home to him very closely. The operations of the Society, the work of the truant officer, who is also the Society's agent, were dealt with. Since the Society was organized fourteen years ago, sixty-five children have been placed in foster homes. The speaker told how juvenile criminals were developed on account of conditions in the home, and other causes which the Children's Aid Society is seeking to remedy. The Court records show that juvenile criminals are increasing in this city, and there is considerable petty thieving. He instanced a number of recent cases which had come before the Juvenile Court, the boys being sent to reformatories. Reference was also made to the great value of medical inspection in the schools. It was pointed out that the fate of the Red Cross Society is hanging in the balance and it would be a very serious matter if this Society was allowed to elapse through the lack of public interest. Rotarian L. B. McMillan presided at yesterday's meeting and the guests present were Messrs E. A. Foster, John McKenna, Hon. John E. Sinclair and C. J. Gallagher, the last named rendering an enjoyable solo, which was heartily cheered. The series of talks on Rotary were continued. In honor of the occasion an "at home" was held at the Methodist Parsonage by Rev. and Mrs. McNeill. Mr. Ryan was born in Marshfield, N. B. on January 21st, 1833, and has been a Methodist minister about 67 years. On the 91st anniversary of his birth he was out as usual, visiting various places during the day. He is still able to eat and sleep well and suffers neither ache nor pain. Mr. Ryan makes no use of tobacco in any form, and has been a life-long abstainer from all kinds of intoxicating drink, and he is undoubtedly a splendid example of the total abstainer. Br. Rev. Mr. Ryan, is the father of Rev. W. M. Ryan of the Methodist Church, Charlottetown.)

ARE MARRIED SEVENTY YEARS

(By Dominion News Service.)
LONDON, Jan. 24.—"We have had a real good time during our married life."
This was Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Poulter's greeting at their little house at Eastington, East Yorkshire, on their pearl wedding day. It was just seventy years ago that Thomas Poulter, then a young man of twenty-two, led his bride to the altar. In those days he had little but optimism and love to offer his wife, for he was only a farmer's lad, in receipt of a salary of $40 a year. They had their little struggles, of course—ever when they had a family of five children the total income was only $3 a week—but they won out in the end, and to-day they have a nice little farm of their own.
They are both still hale and hearty, and up to a year or so ago had never called in a doctor. Mrs. Poulter, though the same age as her husband, does practically all the housework.
"But then, I come of a long-lived family," said Mrs. Poulter to the newspaperman who came to congratulate her. "I have five brothers and sisters living, and our combined ages amount to no less than 428 years. To-day my husband and I have nine children, fourteen grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.
Mrs. Poulter declares that the girls of to-day live in quite a different world from that of her girlhood's days, and that far-off time the village lads and lasses only had a dance once a year—on Easter.

$200,000 FOR STOLEN PEARLS

(By Dominion News Service.)
LONDON, Jan. 24.—A reward of $25,000 for a convict for revealing the hiding place of a stolen pearl necklace worth $200,000.

This is the sensational possibility of a test search, which is about to be made by assessors for Lloyds, with the concurrence of the prison authorities.
The pearl necklace was stolen from Mrs. Mango, wife of a Greek shipping magnate, at the Savoy Hotel in London, on the night of New Year's Eve, 1921.
A notorious forger named Durton, who is serving a sentence of seven years' penal servitude in Parkhurst Prison, has now offered to disclose the place in which the necklace is concealed. He demands, as his price for revealing the secret, the reward which the assessors offered at the time of the robbery for information which would lead to the recovery of the pearls.
The necklace was insured for nearly $200,000 and Lloyds' underwriters had to pay that amount.
A drawing of the missing necklace, which Durton made in prison, has, it is stated, helped to influence the prison authorities and the assessors to make arrangements to test the genuineness of Durton's claim, and for the conditional payment into a bank of the reward.
The disappearance of Mrs. Mango's necklace, which consisted of sixty-nine pearls, carefully matched and graded, was one of the most baffling jewel mysteries of modern times. A world-wide search was made by the police of Europe and America, but the thief was never traced.
Durton, who is a criminal with many aliases, claims to have been present at the New Year revels at the Savoy Hotel, when the necklace disappeared.
He is an educated man, of good presence, who could easily mix with a fashionable crowd without attracting undue attention.
He was convicted of forgery ten months after the pearls were stolen, and has now served two years of the seven to which he was sentenced. He had previously been convicted several times for various offences.
An insurance assessor travelled to Parkhurst two years ago to investigate the story of a convict who claimed to know the whereabouts of the missing necklace. Investigation proved that the man knew nothing of the matter.

THE BEAUTY OF OLD AGE

(By Dominion News Service.)
LONDON, Jan. 24.—The beginning of the New Year brought into prominence, remarkable instances of longevity in the British Isles.
They have demonstrated that a "ripe old age" is becoming nearer to the rule than the exception, and that the average span of life is increasing. Even more remarkable is the fact that in most cases the health and lives of these grand old men and women of England during their latter years are evidence of the beauty and quiet joy of great age in the social conditions of the year 1923.
The honour of being the oldest living Englishman, is claimed on behalf of Mr. William Mufford, a retired farmer, living in the village of Golant, in the Truro district, who recently celebrated his 106th birthday. Mr. Mufford had many visitors, and shoals of telegrams and letters wishing him happy returns of the day, and merry peals were rung on the church bells.
Mrs. Rachel Allison, of Chester, another fine centenarian, celebrated her 102nd Christmas by enjoying a Christmas dinner of turkey and plum pudding. She, too, is in wonderful health.
Mr. George Dash, of Carlisle, the oldest resident of the Isle of Wight, and Mrs. Barbara Peace, of Chester, both lived through Christmas, but died at the week-end, and 100 respectively.
Mrs. Rachel Batty, of Noble Street, Bolton, the oldest cotton operative in England, has retired at the age of eighty-three. Unfortunately, in this case, the veteran-toller has no relatives to whose care she can fall back.
Christmas diamonds and golden weddings were celebrated all over the country. The family of the late Mr. William Castled of Hastings, boasts four couples, all of whom have celebrated their golden weddings.

Water Power Plans Delayed For Week
(Canadian Press)
OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—Although Premier King had nothing to announce for publication last night, following a lengthy session of the Cabinet Council, it is believed that the Lawrence water power plans prepared by the Ontario Government were under consideration and that a despatch in connection with the project will be forwarded to Washington about the middle of the week.

10 REELS OF THRILLS, MYSTERY, LAUGHTER

D.W. GRIFFITH'S 'ONE EXCITING NIGHT'

Love
The soft, surprising thrill! That surges to a great tide of happiness, when true! That lurches to a destructive bolt of passion, greedy, devouring if false!

Laughter
That brings the flush of happiness to the pale face of Life! When people laugh, Heaven smiles.

Mystery
The stealthy things of life! Peeping here! Peering there! Secrets! Now a healthy fascination! Now an absorbing puzzle! What more intriguing?

Thrills
The throb with the thrill! The heart stirring with the mind! Awakening, quickening, punching, pounding thrills that scatter worries! Wipe out weary trifles. Make life fresh again!

An Emotional Hurricane
D. W. Griffith's great mystery picture is warm with Love; rollicking with Laughter; tense with Mystery; throbbing with Thrills.

And the Storm Scene Climax
All the furies of Nature as if plucked from the skies and transfixed on the screen. The lashing tempest, whipping winds, shredding lightning bolts, lift you—grip you—hold you.

POMERANIAN WITH TASTES

(By Dominion News Service.)
LIVERPOOL, Jan. 24.—A Pomeranian dog, weighing four and a quarter pounds, worth over $500 has been placed on board the Cunard liner "Laconia," in a silk up-cased, bordered basket, had a label attached as follows:—
"My name is Bim. I am going to Chicago. Please give me food and water and keep my bed clean. I am not a Pussyfoot. I like rum and coffee and my tea flavoured with a drop of scotch."
Accompanying the basket were the following instructions to the ship's butcher:—
"Please give me arrowroot biscuits at night and Horlick's Malted Milk. I eat chicken and other meats. If I do not eat in the mornings, I will later in the day. I like tea with cream, and occasionally a drop of whiskey in my tea. If I bark when I am in my basket, you will know I want to come out."
