The Home Circle

CORRECT CLOTHES FOR CHILDREN.

BY DOROTHY DALE.

The smartest models for children's clothes are all extremely simple in style, although on some of the finer frocks handwork is done at home the price is for many of these models by no means a small one.

For summer wear particularly children's frocks should be planned so that they can readily be laundered successfully.

The drawing shows three costumes which have excellent wearing features, the little boy's suit shown in the drawing at the right being in the popular and always becoming Russian blouse style. The style illustrated was in blue galatea, with an embroidered device in the middle of the front. The blouse is cut double breasted and there was a row of rather large pearl buttons down each side. The little loose trousers showed just a little below the blouse, and there was also a belt which slipped through straps in the sides of the blouse and buttoned in front.

A low turndown eton collar and a large black silk tie was worn as a neck finish. The little cap was in tam o'shanter style, embroidered in front.

The second figure in the drawing shows a smart model for a street suit for a schoolgirl, the costume was of black and white check serge, with a shawl collar and turnup cuffs of plain red cloth. The buttons were of gray bone, the coat being made quite loose and double-breasted, the back being cut in once piece. The skirt was cut in circular style, but was in four gores, with a seam in the middle of the front. The hat shown in the drawing on the same figure is one of the new models in straw. The trimming consisted of a bow of French plaid ribbon, with a draped twist of the same ribbon about the crown.

The third figure shows a little girl's frock of white linen, trimmed with bands of plain green linen, machine stitched. The feature of the frock was the use of small white crochet rings, through which white wash cord was laced, as shown in the sketch, the lacing being used in the middle of the front and across the shoulders and down the open cap sleeves, as a study of the drawing will explain. The frock was made in guimpe style the guimpe being of washable embroidered batiste, made with a Dutch neck. The bodice and skirt was plaited, a wide box plait being arranged in the middle of the front and inverted plaits at the sides and back.

The smaller sketch in the second plate shows several designs for these embroidered collars, which give an aim of distinction on even the simplest tub frock.

The same plate shows two children's hats, the first head at the right of the drawing showing a little boy's hat and the second a lingerie hat of lace and embroidery for a little girl.

Practical Suggestions for the Housekeeper

BY BEATICE CAREY

Often the housekeeper of moderate means is confronted with a difficult problem when the house to be furnished is a rented one, and consequently much expenditure on the fittings of the house would mean an extravagance which could not be afforded.

Often, too, the unfurnished room may not be so impossible in itself, but the colorings are impossible with the furniture, et cetera, to be placed in it. My advice in most cases is to paint the woodwork white, or else to stain the wood to harmonize in color with the furnishings.

If the woodwork to be done over is dark and the room is to be repainted in all white, about three or four coats of plain white inside paint will be needed, with the last coat of white enamel, which comes ready mixed with varnish.

For bedrooms, living rooms, et cetera, the woodwork is sometimes painted a soft, rather dark green, with very good effect, a flowered paper on a white ground being most suitable when this treatment is used. The idea of painting the woodwork green is also excellent for a kitchen.

The curtains were of white Swiss ruffled and shirred on rods, and narrow side curtains, with a valance over the top, were made of white cretonne flowered in pink roses to match the paper.

The question of papering a room is not so simple as the repainting of one.

For instance, for certain room papers with a rather large design over the surface are most successful and artistic, while in others a wall-paper of striking design would be ruinous. For the living-room, drawing-room, dining-room, et cetera, a plain ground paper, or one with a self-toned figure, is always a safe choice.

For the nursery, friezes or panels representing Mother Goose or Kate Greenaway characters may be purchased as well as many of the designs of like character, and for the smoking-room, living-room or den come friezes showing red-coated riders galloping over the hunting field and such scenes.

Whenever possible rugs should be used in place of a carpet-covered floor, having hardwood if one can afford it, or else placing the rugs on the stained floor.

"I had a very bad cold which settled on my lungs. I tried many remedies but could get no relief. On the advice of a friend I procured a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Before the bottle was half finished I had not the slightest trace of a cough, and in my opinion Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has no equal as a cure for coughs, colds, or any affection of the throat and lungs.

"COMPASSED ABOUT WITH WITNESSES" to be encumbered in the r ace. The reasonableness of this goes without saying. In every effort made to-day where men struggle for prizes they lay aside everything that would impede their progress or imperil their success. The foot ball player, as well as the man in the race-course, rids himself of every superfluous ounce of flesh and clothing, so that he may in no wise be impeded in the struggle. Thus the Christian has to lay aside everything that would weigh him down or imperil his reaching the goal. Let us remember that these weights are not necessarily wrong in themselves. They may be perfectly right, yet if they impede our progress, they must be laid aside. You may be able to carry and run successfully, that which would ruin me. I do not know but you may press it farther and say you may be able to carry that which assists you in the race which if attempted by another would ruin him. So you see we have to be our own judges as to what ought to be laid aside, but we can easily test them in our own personal experience. That which makes it hard to pray, hard to trust God and His promises, must be laid aside, that which damps our zeal for God's glory and renders His service in any way distasteful or irksome must be laid aside. It may be social position, some social relations, some form of business, all perfectly right in themselves but for us their influence is leading us from God. In such a case, though they be as dear to us as a right hand or a right eye they must be laid aside, they are costing us too much, they are imperilling our souls. Let us then look into our own hearts, our own lives and if we discover any thing that is hindering us from fully dedicating ourselves to the service of God, let us lay them aside, as we value heaven. But it is not only weights that are to be laid aside, but we are to lay aside the sin which doth so easily beset us. I suppose none of these Hebrews to whom the Epistle was written were what would be called great sinners men and women who were practising the whole catalogue of sin. The same is true of us at the present day. Few of us profess to run the whole round of sin, but if we examine ourselves closely we may discover that each of us has his or her besetting sin. That is to say the sin that has been practised so long, or so sanctioned by polite society that to us it has lost its sinfulness. The thought in the writer's mind is that of a garment worn so long that it fits us perfectly, sits upon us so easily that we are unconscious of its contact with us at any point. So our sin may have been worn so long that we become unconscious of its effecting us. The tendency toward it may have been handed down to us through the ages by the law of heredity, and thus become a part of our being. It may be some temper or disposition of the soul, a haughty or covetous spirit, or some relation that we sustain to our fellow-men. Whatever it is, it must be laid aside, for any sin participated in with the consent of the will will ruin the character, destroy faith and bar the way of holiness. "Let us therefore lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us and run with patience the race that is set before us."

The last thing I want to study this morning is that the race has to be run on a course, not prepared by ourselves. We cannot condition it in anywise, this lies beyond our powers. The Hebrews had to run the race under conditions which they had no hand in forming. So you and I have to run the Christian race today, not in some ideal state, but here in Charlottetown, and surrounded by influences over which we will have little control. So far as we ourselves are concerned, we came into the world loaded with the weights and tendencies of heredity. We were born into a society that we had no hand in forming. We brought with us a nature as sensitive to sourroundings as the nitrate of silver is to the sunlight. And under these conditions we are called upon to run a race on which hang eternal issues. Let us remember then that in the struggle, God and angels are on our side and we are watched by a cloud of witnesses who have won the goal for which we are running. To win the goal we must lay aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset us. To reach the goal is to possess the personal goodness of Jesus Christ and His passion for God's glory and the salvation of men.

A WONDERFUL POTATO

Most Enormous Cropper, Perfecly Blight Proof.

Double the crop off the same ground, and every one a sound one. Introduced in England in 1903 at $100 per 14 lbs; three months later its blight proof and enormous cropping features caused the greatest sensation, resulting in record prices of all time, as high as $1250 per lb. being paid and $2.50 for one tuber.

"Even so recently as September last, when Mr. G. Massey sold 14 lbs. of Eldorados for £20 ($100) people were amazed and incredulous; yet three months later the same gentleman received a cheque for £1,400 ($7000) for 14 lbs of the same variety."—Free Press, (England) Jan. 19th, 1904.

"The yield of the Eldorado potato, the kind that bought the record price, is reported to run from 150 to 300 lbs, from one lb, of seed tubers."—Rural New Yorker, New York, Jan. 14, 1905.

Introduced here by us in 1905 at $16 per lb, Eldorado is repeating on a smaller scale the sensation it created in England, making the record prices of all time for the U. S and Canada. April 30 to S. J. Connolly, Fishers. N. Y., 2 bbls. (230 lbs) of Eldorados for $100. April 25th last to Mr. F. S. Beherrill, Jarvis Street, Toronto, 40 lbs, for $40. A great many sales of 30 to 60 lbs. made to the leading seed potato growers. Experimental Farms, etc, in Canada and the U. S. These are aware of the history of the truly wonderful potato.

One lb. planted now, within two years will yield enough to plant all the acreage you want. Every lb. planted now is worth $10. Plant now, next year sell seed to your friends.

One lb. planted by us 20th June last, raised 140 lbs, that year. Crops of 800 to 1200 bushels per acre common.

Pure Seed Eldorados $1 per lb. Sold only by us in Canada. Send for list containing history, photos of potatoes, checks paid, extracts 81 papers, etc. Also 26 others kinds.

To Strain the Eyes

To strain the eyes is to spoil the eyesight sooner or later. It may not be right away; it may not be till years hence; but some time or other you will pay the penalty. How much better and wiser it would have been to ease the strain by the use of glasses. You may dislike them; but if you get the proper kind and have them properly fitted you will not find them the bugaboo you imagine. The E. W. Taylor Store has been famed for over 30 years for both good glasses and good fitting. Could you go anywhere else for glasses with such certainty of satisfaction?
