Why we Demand Cheaper Life Insurance for Total Abstainers.

Here are facts to shock the puke-nerve.

1. In 1884, 62 leading life-insurance companies testified with one voice that habitual users of intoxicants are not as good "risks" as are abstainers.

2. J. W. Alexander, vice-president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, wrote Dec 5, 1884.

"We believe that the recuperative power is very much reduced among habitual consumers of alcoholic drinks, and that they often succumb to such diseases as pneumonia, when total abstainers would pull through; and we believe that much bear affects especially this recuperative power."

3. W. R. Gillette, M. D., medical director of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, wrote Jan 3, 1885:

"The expectation of life of temperate persons at the age of 20 is 44.2 years, and of intemperate persons only 15.6. At 50, the expectation of the former is 21.25 years, and of the latter only 10.8. There can be no question but that total abstainers have a much better chance of longevity than those who drink even in moderation. . . . This applies to the use of malt liquors as well as to spirituous liquors. . . . With all our care and investigations the company is called upon yearly to pay losses due both directly and indirectly to the use of alcohol, which, could the figures be accurately ascertained, would be appalling."

"Appalling" to whom? Manifestly to the insured, because the companies promptly pass these swollen death losses over to them in the form of increased premiums or decreased dividends. Drinking policy-holders cause this loss. Abstainers are mulcted for it.

Can not these figures be accurately ascertained? Let us see:

1. The Leading Total Abstinence Assessment Company states that in a company composed

"equally of abstainers and moderate drinkers, for each $70 of death loss among the total abstainers, $100 of loss is incurred among the moderate drinkers; but as the total abstainer is on an equal basis, he must pay one half the entire loss, or $55. . . . With each and every $5 he pays the company as the legitimate cost of his own policy, he pays $1.07 additional for the privilege (?) of carrying his insurance with drinking men."

2. Emory McClintock, actuary of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, submitted April 25, 1895, to the Actuarial Society of America a valuable and carefully prepared paper "On the Rates of Death Loss among Total Abstainers and Others." It covers the record of all policy-holders who, since 1875, in their applications, "had stated their habits as to using or abstaining from alcoholic beverages," together with "many" non-abstainers of older date. The record closes with 1889. It states:

"Upon those who on entering stated that they abstained from alcoholic beverages the maximum expected loss was $5,455,669, and the actual loss was $4,251,050. Upon those who stated otherwise, the expected loss was $9,839,462, and the actual loss was $9,469,407. The abstainers, therefore, show a death loss of 78 per cent of the maximum, and the non-abstainers 96 per cent."

The reports show also that during the first four years the non-abstainers died rapidly, showing death losses as compared with the maximum expectation, of 106 per cent in the first year, 101 per cent in the second to fourth years, and 90 per cent after the fourth year. The abstainers show about equally well at all periods, ranging from 75 to 80 per cent of the maximum.

3. J. G. Van Cise, assistant actuary of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, writes in June of the present year:

"All the officers of the Equitable are aware that our death-rate is largely increased because of the use of alcoholic beverages by our policy-holders. . . . The United Kingdom Temperance Alliance, [which has a "General Section" of 14,000 members, and a "Temperance Section" of 15,000 members], I believe, for the past 30 or 40 years, has uniformly shown an experience as regards the death-rate more favorable by about 30 per cent, among total abstainers as compared with moderate drinkers."

He also refers to the foregoing figures from the Mutual Life "leaving 23 total abstainers alive as compared with 4 moderate drinkers," in the following words:

"This experience can not be considered as doing full justice to the total abstainers, for the reason that no doubt some moderate drinkers called themselves total abstainers when making their applications, because they thought the quantity drunk was so small as not to be worth noticing; and, again, there is no doubt that some of the young men who were total abstainers when taking out assurance became moderate drinkers in after years. Nevertheless, this experience in the Mutual Life, imperfect as it is, is conclusive as showing the longevity of total abstainers compared with moderate drinkers, and the statistics are, I think, the best that can be furnished from any source in the United States."

Here, then, are exact facts from the highest existing sources.

The conclusion is irresistible that total abstainers are paying hundreds of thousands and perhaps millions of dollars per year for insurance on the lives of drinkers, over and above the proper amount for their own insurance. This stupendous waste is an imposition. We call upon the newly formed Central National Temperance Advisory Board to take this matter in hand, and we promise them hearty co-operation in the steps necessary to end this loss. And we appeal to the insurance societies to make whatever changes are necessary to do justice to their abstaining patrons. New York Voice.

Almost Distracted

Dreadful Suffering by a New-market Woman.

The Bones in the Nose Affected—Face Would Swell Until Her Eyes Were Closed—How Relieved.

NEWMARKET, ONT.—"I have had a good opportunity of noting the great medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla. My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years, and the disease had gone so far that the bones of the nose had become affected and particles had come away through an opening in the left side. Her eyesight was also affected to the extent that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered Severe Pains in the Head and at times was almost distracted. She was treated by four different doctors, one of whom was a specialist. They all said they could not do anything for her, as the disease had gone too far. Her nose would swell about every three days until her eyes would almost be closed. Then it would break through and the swelling would subside for a day or two. About Christmas she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has not been troubled with any swelling since, and the sore on the side of the nose has all healed. She is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it to any person who is suffering with catarrh."
