—MONTHLY MEETING — The regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society of Prince County was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, the President, Dr. J. A. MacPhee, presided. The agent and truant officer, Joseph A. Gallant stated there was practically no truancy, but he reported a number of new families had moved into the town lately, one family from Portage, Prince County with 4 or 5 children of school age had just moved in and he found one of the teachers at the school had forty pupils in her class so could not accommodate any more. It is understood, however, that the principal, Miss Ramsay, is taking care of the matter. There have been several cases of delinquency lately which have been dealt with by the Juvenile Court. In the case of a family on Myrtle Street, Mr. Gallant reported that two children had been placed in St. Vincent's Orphanage and two had been placed in homes in the country.—S

—HOME AND SCHOOL MEETING—At the regular monthly meeting of the Home and School Association of Kensington on Thursday Mrs. Fred Osborne of Summerside was the guest speaker. Mrs. Osborne lived for fourteen years in Labrador having gone there with the Grenfell Missions. In the course of her address Mrs. Osborne described this immense country with its rock-bound coast and barren land. The people who suffer many hardships are of a most hospitable nature, loyal and kind. The speaker gave a vivid description of the climate, habits and peculiarities of speech of the natives who are of Scotch, Irish, French and English descent. Her address was replete with pathos and humor and the rapt attention of the audience was ample proof of their appreciation. She told of the work of the Grenfell Missions and paid a warm tribute to the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell who has done so much to make Labrador a safer place in which to live. In the forty-eight years since Sir Wilfred first went to Labrador he established six modern hospitals and twenty nursing stations. Mrs. Osborne showed quite a number of interesting articles made by the convalescents of Labrador which are sold in the Grenfell Insitutes, and also samples of moccasins, parka and model of dog team which were viewed by the audience more closely after the address. Material for those articles, is supplied by the Grenfell Missions and the finished articles bought back from the makers. In this way many who are incapacitated for the hard work of fishing are able to earn something for their families. In moving a vote of thanks to the speaker, Mr. James Pendergast said: Mrs. Osborne's address was like a breath of old times to him recalling the years he spent in the north. The motion was seconded by Dr. Ingham Jardine who said that the happy faces of those around him was quite expressive of their enjoyment of the address. The regular routine business of the meeting was conducted in the usual manner. Mr. James Saunders spoke briefly on Education Week and the inspiring radio addresses delivered by Rev. Dr. Murphy, Mr. McDonald and Rev. Mr. Sullivan. Quite a discussion on educational problems followed and a resolution was passed to be forwarded to the Education Committee asking that more attention be paid to the teaching of Citizenship and Democracy. A social hour was enjoyed after the meeting while the ladies served refreshments.—K

Prince County To have new Industry

During the summer months developments have been made at East Bideford in bringing a new industry into being in that section of Prince County which is likely to prove of lasting benefit to that community.

Mr. George Miller, B.Sc., in mining and Metallurgy, and representing the firm of F. M. Connell of Toronto, (Mr. Connell is Deputy Metal Controller of Canada) has just returned to Toronto after spending some months in East Bideford looking into this new industry and organizing the preliminary arrangements for the development of the industry.

The peat bog from which this new industry is to be developed comprises about 600 acres and is situated on land owned by G. Shelton Sharp, Russell E. Ellis and J. Russell Murphy about three quarters of a mile off the highway at East Bideford School and some distance in from the shore.

The land or bog has been acquired by the Toronto company and for the past two months about thirty five men have been engaged cutting out the moss and piling it for drying. It is the intention of the Company to commence operations in earnest next summer, setting up machinery to process the deposit.

Mr. Miller examined the deposit during the early summer and reported his findings to the Government. The Federal Government report that the area at East Bideford is the best deposit in Prince Edward Island. The moss is of excellent quality and has a depth of from seven to thirty feet and if Mr. Miller's findings prove correct will give a daily output which should last for from 25 to 30 years and give employment during the summer for some two hundred and fifty men.

The peat moss is used extensively in horticulture and also for insulating walls, etc., and an entirely new and valuable discovery has been made in which the moss is used in the processing of magnesium ore which classifies it as an essential material in the manufacture of materials of war.

Before the war Germany, Holland and Sweden were the principal producers of peat moss, but now scientists on this side of the Atlantic are looking for sources of supply.

Peat moss is a vegetable growth of sphagnum moss unhumidified, yet retaining its fibrous structure. The deposit at East Bideford has probably been gradually building up for thousands of years.

With the oyster beds increasing in value every year and the gravel pits still proving a source of wealth in this district it looks as if Prince County is about to experience an era of prosperity should the peat moss industry develop as it is expected it will do.—S.

Declares post-war Mental epidemic Threatens world

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 —(AP) — The Royal Air Force's chief mental trouble-shooter, Dr. Robert Dick Gillespie, told a distinguished medical audience here tonight that a post-war mental epidemic threatens civilization.

The epidemic, he predicted, would hit nations and peoples in two ways: One is a revival of the almost-forgotten medieval mental trouble known as accidie, a serf-like apathy of the brain. The other as a mental restlessness which would rebel against social order.

Psychoneuroses were the danger signs he discussed. The person with a psychoneurosis looks and acts normally, but has a hidden, abnormal mental state.

"Surprisingly enough the war has given birth to two institutions which are highly successful as a preventive of psychoneuroses," he said. "They are the air-raid shelter and community centres.

"We have learned that shelter life with its common sharing of danger has helped people to withstand peril better than isolation in small groups.

"Now we find persons returning from safe areas to the shelters in large cities declaring 'I'd rather be bombed than bored.'

"One of the most significant symptoms of psychoneuroses is the apathy noted in the battle-worn soldier as well as in those whose homes have been destroyed and whose lives are completely disorganized.

"This apathy is usually the result of continual thwarting of simple desires—in the case of the soldier, the repeated thwarting of the instinct of self-preservation, in the case of the civilian, the thwarting of the desire for activity.

"The continual thwarting of the desire for activity produces restlessness and irritability followed by rebellion.

"After the war we may expect either a dangerous restlessness or an equally dangerous apathy unless we are as energetic in organizing peace as we have been in organizing war."

Airmen get Thrills in Low bombing

LONDON, Nov. 19 —(CP Cable) —Canadian airmen are flying new Hurricane fighters outfitted as bombers and dropping their bombs from a low level "with greater accuracy than can be achieved generally in dive-bombing," Squadron Leader Vaughn B. Corbett of the Royal Canadian Air Force declared tonight in a broadcast to the Dominion.

Describing recent operations of the R.C.A.F. squadron which he commands, Corbett, who comes from Belleville, Ont., and Montreal, said that "whoever thought of fitting bombs to Hurricanes is to be thanked for giving the squadron I command some of the most thrilling days' work that has ever fallen to the luck of fighter command pilots."

The squadron leader was among the Canadian airmen who chatted with Canadian newspaper representatives during their recent visit to Britain and told them of his most recent exploit, that of downing a German plane during an exciting battle. He also welcomed the Duke of Kent during a visit paid to an air station last Sept. 30, after the Duke's return from his trip to Canada.

Corbett said that the low-level bombing of ground targets made possible by the Hurricane fighter bomber "is something new to Royal Air Force pilots."

"In our Hurricane bombers we don't have to dive on our target," he said. "We come down almost to ground level before we reach them and drop the bombs in level flight."

He said that the Hurricanes, travelling sometimes more than 300 miles an hour, usually are on top of their target before the anti-aircraft gunners see them and though the pilot would have little chance of bailing out if the plane were hit "so far the advantage seems to be on our side and not on the ground defence."

TURKEYS FOR U.S. THANKSGIVING

Montreal, Que., Nov 19—American soldiers, sailors and airmen, serving outside the confines of the United States, are not going to be without their Thanksgiving day turkey, on whatever of the two dates they choose to celebrate the holiday, November 20 or 27. Yesterday, the Canadian National Express handled fifty boxes of these seasonal gobblers, enroute from turkey farms ajacent to New York city and destined for Uncle Sam's men on active service.

The turkey arrived from the American metropolis yesterday over the Rutland Railroad and were turned over to local Canadian National Express officials for despatch on the Maritime Express enroute to their final destination "somewhere."

More than 100,000 Deaths in hostage Terror in Europe

By Robert E. Bunnelle
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 20 —(Thursday)—(CP)— The "hostage terror" sweeping nine axis-occupied countries in Europe has resulted in the death of more than 100,000 persons, and the disappearance and imprisonment of countless other thousands, the inter-allied information committee announced today.

Britain, Russia, and the nine occupied countries are represented on the committee, whose report said:—

"No occupied country is free of the hostage terror. In seven out of the nine countries thousands of innocent men and women have died, and in all of them thousands live daily under the shadow of death."

The 4,500-word formal report said the hostage system was invented by the Italians in their eastern invasion of Albania in 1939, was perfected by the Germans and "received its most ruthless application" in Bulgarian reprisals on six Greek cities where 15,000 persons were killed in a single expedition.

Here is the picture as given by the committee:—

Greece—A total of 15,000 were killed in six small Thracian villages by a Bulgarian motorized force and bombers because of the death of only 19 Bulgarians. Thousands of hostages seized by the Italians have been killed or are missing. The Germans use the principle of "collective responsibility" in exacting similar lives, and have burned whole cities in Crete because of attacks on Nazi troops.

Poland—"No less" than 82,000 Poles executed in two years by the Germans and "death sentences are pronounced daily in great numbers." Hostages executed from every village unable to meet German levies. Three hundred ammunition workers were chosen from 2,000 and shot to break a strike. Thirty Polish actors executed for the assassination of the Polish film actor, Igo Sym, who was an informer for the Gestapo.

Yugoslavia—More than 5,000 were executed by the Germans aside from the "real warfare" now conducted against the Serbian guerillas. Axis-allied Croat officials are exacting "100-for-one" retribution for slain Croat soldiers, the hostages "including innocent women and children." The Germans use the same death scale. In some villages every tenth man is picked out and shot, and then the village is burned.

Belgium—"Although many thousands have been arrested and sent to concentration camps on trumped-up or trivial charges, no murders of hostages have been reported so far."

Luxembourg—Heavy fines imposed on towns of Luxembourg and Ettelbruck because of demonstrations in which the names of the exiled royal family were written on walls, but no deaths yet reported. A number of persons were deported to Germany.

The Netherlands —Hundreds of former government leaders, professors and Jews have been sent to concentration comps where many of them died. Among those arrested was former Prime Minister Hendrikus Colijn. Street riots and revolts have resulted. Many Netherlanders were killed by German troops. Amsterdam was fined $9,000,000.

Norway—Hundreds of fathers held as hostages because their sons fled to Britain. Several trade unionists executed to break work stoppages. Another Nazi hostage move was the establishment of "industrial guards" on Norwegian railways and in factories. These guards are shot if sabotage is committed on their properties.

Czecho-Slovakia— Hundreds of hostages executed, including former army generals and prominent Czechs jailed ever since the Nazi occupation, because of sabotage and underground activities of others. More than a 1,000 others were handed over to the Gestapo "for torture, if not death."

France—At least 250 Frenchmen shot by the Germans because of assassinated German officers. One Paris "pool of hostages" is comprised of those caught on the streets during curfew hours. Heavy fines levied on the cities of Nantes, Roubaix, Cholet and Alsace One Normandy town was deprived of meat for 40 days because Free French placards were found.

"These are endless," the report said.

Flying accident Record commended

OTTAWA, Nov 19 —(CP) —Veteran airmen said today that figures made public by Air Minister Power show that the "kid airmen" of the British commonwealth air training plan are going through their courses, including aerobatics, with as good an accident record as first-class civilian airlines.

Pilots with memories of the First Great War and the hasty, hazardous training which had to be given men before they went into combat said Maj. Power's figures on training in this war were "remarkable."

The minister said that 1,429,851 miles were flown for every fatal accident in the training plan. This compared with 1,269,231 miles flown for every fatal accident in United States civilian flying in 1940.

Officials said United States air lines were recognized as leaders in operational efficiency and passenger-carrying machines were manned by pilots with hundreds of hours of flying time behind them.

"The civilian pilot flies a straight course assisted by experience and by all the resources of his service while a military pilot of training is often on his own, flying a fast military machine in aerobatics in the later stages," they said.

In the 224,486,625 miles flown at an average of 125 miles an hour by the training plan schools to Sept. 30, there were 157 fatal accidents, or one fatality for every 11,438 hours in the air, Maj. Power's figures showed.

The fatal accident rate in September was .067 or one fatal accident to 1,818,279 miles flown, compared with .17 in November, 1940. With less favorable flying conditions during the winter months, Maj. Power said that an upward trend was to be expected.

From the beginning of this year to the end of September, training school planes spent 1,596,680 hours in the air and Maj. Power estimated total flying hours for the year would total 2,250,000.

Mr. LeBlanc breaks Treasured Violin

QUEBEC, Nov. 19 — (CP)—A sobbing musician carrying a treasured violin, smashed perhaps beyond repair, appeared on the stage before an audience of music lovers last night just as they were preparing to settle back and listen.

The musician was Arthur LeBlanc, a young Quebec violinist, who has given concerts in many parts of Canada and the United States.

The violin, made and signed by J. B. Guadagnini, a pupil of Stradivarius, was broken when LeBlanc slipped and fell as he left his home here for the concert hall.

He did not realize the instrument, which he valued at $30,000, was broken until he reached the concert hall and opened the violin case before appearing on the stage. Then, too shaken with emotion to tell the audience what happened, he appeared on the stage with the broken instrument while the impressario J. A. Gauvin told the story and called off the concert.

(Mr. LeBlanc gave a performance in Charlottetown a couple of years ago).
