THE PROMOTER'S WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

BARBARA'S FIRST LOVE LETTER.

CHAPTER IV.

Neil's letter commenced:

"Dear little friend Bab: I miss you more than I can tell you. I miss our walks together, our tennis, and the croquet—even if you did always beat me. New York seems awfully hot and stuffy after the cool, shaded streets of Huntington. I find myself wishing that I were sitting in the hammock with you instead of on a roof garden, these stifling nights. You know nothing of summer heat. Your cool, grass grown, shaded village has nothing in common with the sun-baked streets of this big town.

"Some day I am coming back for another visit. Will you be just as kind to me, or shall I find you have changed—perhaps (awful thought!) married to some of those good hearted youths I met? Please don't Bab. I should hate to find you Mrs. somebody, instead of Barbara Hill, one of the dearest playfellows a man ever had.

"Tell me all about yourself, Bab. I am going to send you some new books, occasionally, something I am reading. Then we can talk about it in our letters. Would that please you?"

"Remember me to your father and mother. They were good to spare you to me so often. Really, as I look back, I seem to have rather monopolized you during my stay with Aunt Grace. By the way, she is awfully fond of you. Perhaps you already know it doubtless you do. But in view of the fact that she told me, and that she is a relative of mine, go and sit with her occasionally, won't you? I see that I haven't given you any real reason that you should, but do just the same.

"I am having some pictures taken for mother. She has hounded me to death for months to have my face put on a card. Would you like one? Don't be afraid to say 'no.' It won't hurt—yes it will too. I find that I really want you to have one.

"This is quite a long letter for a first one, isn't it, Bab? Do write me soon. I shall be looking for a letter every day now until I receive it. Very sincerely, NEIL FORBES."

My first man letter. Yet no one could call it a love letter, I thought as I pressed it to my lips after reading it. How could he make fun about my getting married? That hurt. Just as if I would think of marrying one of the village boys, now—after meeting him.

I was delighted that he proposed sending me books he was reading. It would seem like being together in talk of them in our letters. But what delighted me most was that I was to have his picture. I had tried to get up my courage to ask for it before he left, but couldn't. Now I was glad I had not, it was so nice to have him offer it of himself.

Of course I would go and sit with his aunt. I had done so frequently, since he left and we had spent the entire time talking of him. Mrs. Carter had told me all she knew of his boyhood, of his people. It wasn't much, as they had lived so far apart and her brother's wife and she had not been very congenial. But it was all wonderfully interesting to me.

I said to myself that I would wait just as long as Neil had before I answered his letter. Two whole weeks. But I couldn't! I figured that the longer I waited to reply to his letter, the longer it would be before I received another. So at the end of a week I sent my answer.

I spent many hours, and destroyed several sheets of paper before I was satisfied with what I had written. Even then I realized it was very inadequate as far as either expressing my feelings, or in interest. But it was the best I could do.

I had told him how I missed him but tried not to let him see too plainly how much. I had thanked him in advance for the picture and the books. It was a very ordinary letter from one friend to another. I wanted awfully to sign it "with love" but I restrained the impulse and simply said: "You friend, Bab."

To-morrow—The Tone of Neil's Letters more loving.

Thomas predeceased her in Saskatoon in 1910. Of her own family there are left to mourn, her sisters Mrs. Norman Campbell, Charlottetown, Miss Margaret Carr, Mrs. John McCallum, Mrs. Anson Pybus, Winnipeg, Mrs. Joseph Vancouver, B. C. and brothers Nelson in Winnipeg, John in New York and Andrew in Centralia, Wash. Mrs. Casely was a true Christian wife and mother, always realizing that her first primal duty to God, was the care of family and home—she was kind, loving and charitable embodying the highest conception wife and mother. Her death is the more keenly felt at home as her daughter Margaret has been an invalid for some years, but she endures the sore affliction with heroic fortitude.—K.

MRS. NARCISSE GALLANT.

The death took place at St. Gilberts on Wednesday morning of Mrs. Narcisse Gallant an esteemed old lady who had passed the allotted span of life and who had been in delicate health for several years. Interment took place Friday morning. Besides her aged husband a large family of sons and daughters are left to mourn. The late Mrs. Gallant was a sister to Mrs. Prosper L. Gallant of Abrams' Village and of the late S. E. Gallant who died last winter. Other brothers and sisters have predeceased her.

MR. OSWALD CAMPBELL

The angel of death has again visited our community and carried away in the person of Oswald Campbell a loving husband and father. In his passing we lose not only a valued citizen but also a faithful member of the Methodist Church, a devoted worker and member of the Trustees, and L. O. B. The funeral which was largely attended was conducted at the home by his pastor the Rev. W. J. Donville and at the grave by the Orange Association of which he was a true member. He leaves to mourn besides a sorrowing wife, six sons and five daughters Fred and Darrel of Kamloops, B. C., Susie, Elva, Bertha and Katherine of Lowell, Mass., Raymond, Cecil, John, Chester and Doretha at home.

Heartfelt sympathy goes to the family in their sad bereavement and the prayer is that they may look to Him who has said "Let not your heart be troubled" For in Him we have hope of immortality." Interment took place at Lower Montague.

MRS. HUGH CAMPBELL.

The death occurred at North West-shire last Sunday night of Mrs. Campbell aged 67, widow of the late Mr. Hugh Campbell, who was a brother of Mr. Thomas Campbell of Charlottetown. Mrs. Campbell had been in failing health for some time and went to Boston intending to undergo an operation, but was advised then that it was not necessary. She returned home last summer, apparently in excellent health, but lately she took suddenly ill, and passed away on Sunday. The deceased was a daughter of the late Patrick Clarkin of Wiltshire and was held in the highest esteem by all who knew her. Four sons and three daughters, one son and one daughter at home, the others in the United States are left to mourn. The funeral held Tuesday at Lot 65 Cemetery was very largely attended, people coming from various parts of the surrounding country to pay the last tribute to her memory. High Mass of Requiem was celebrated in the church by Rev. Dr. Curran. The pall bearers were Messrs. Howard Balderston, D. McPherson, James Clarkin, Michael Cody, John Callaghan and William Cullen.

WELL SATISFIED WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative; are absolutely free from opiates, narcotics or other harmful drugs and may be given to the youngest baby with perfect safety and good results. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"He's Just Perfect!"

This exclamation of Barbara Forbes, is the eternal cry of the real wife when all the world turns against her husband. Although she, herself, may have opposed and criticized him, she is his staunch ally when the rest of the world fails him.

So, although Barbara had pitied herself above all women when she had discovered that Neil's business methods were not always laudable ones—although she had thought herself the most wretched of wives when she had had to entertain Neil's questionable business associates—still, with his creditors at the door and the arm of a vengeful world about to strike him down, she stood before her husband and, with flashing eyes, declared that he was the finest man on earth!

But Neil Forbes, sanguine and visionary by temperament, had made mistakes. There was no doubt of that. He did deserve punishment. He had chosen a crooked path; and it is just that we should suffer for our errors.

Barbara, however, was determined that he should not suffer—that she would protect him. And we all know the strength of that determination which lies at the heart of a woman who loves. So it appears that Barbara will save her husband from shipwreck, doesn't it?

To make sure of this, read: "The Promoter's Wife" which begins this week in The Charlottetown Guardian.
