— HOME BEREAVED — The sudden death of Mrs. Martha Davison, Bedeque, took place Feb. 20, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harrison McFarlane, Fernwood, where she was residing during the winter months. Two years ago she suffered a slight heart attack, however, she regained a fair measure of health until about six weeks ago she was confined to her room and gradually weakened until the end came. Although advanced in years she enjoyed life, and community welfare activities up till her last illness. She was a member of the former Methodist Church, and later the Bedeque United Church of Canada, and was seldom absent from any of the regular church services. She was president of the Women's Missionary Society for over thirty years, and a great leader in the missionary work. She was also an active member of the Women's Institute at Bedeque and will be greatly missed in the social welfare of the district. She leaves to mourn one sister, Mrs. Minnie Gay, (Verginnia); one daughter (Hazel) Mrs. Harrison McFarlane; one son Bruce, at Bradalbane; three grandchildren and one great grandchild. Her funeral was held from the Bedeque United Church on Saturday afternoon and was very largely attended. Her pastor, Rev. J. M. Baxter, had charge of the service, assisted by Rev. Ernest Weeks, and Rev. C. A. Britten. Rev. Mr. Baxter took for his text 2nd Cor. 1st chap., 4th verse "who comforteth in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God", and delivered a very comforting message to the bereaved, referring to the devoted Christian life of the departed. Hymns sung were: "Jerusalem the Golden", "On the Happy Golden Shore" and a solo by Mrs. Edna Jenkins, "Ninety and Nine." The pallbearers were Ralph Callbeck, Clark McQuarrie, Edwin McFarlane, Daniel Noonan, Elliott Bell, Cyril McFarlane. Interment in Bedeque cemetery. Floral tributes were very beautiful.—B.

Aged Resident Of S'side Dies

The death occurred at Summerside yesterday morning at the residence of Mr. John P. DesRoches, Cedar Street, of Mr. Paul Perry, an old and highly respected citizen of this town.

The late Mr. Perry who was 92 years of age, was a former resident of Mount Carmel where in his younger days he engaged in farming. About forty-two years ago, he came to Summerside where he has since resided.

He had been in his usual good health up to several months ago and, although he had been in failing health since, his death came as a shock to his many friends in Summerside.

He is survived by his widow, the former Mary Margaret Gallant of Mt. Carmel, to whom the sympathy of the community is extended.

The funeral will be held on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Paul's Cemetery.—S.

Formation Of Maritime Commission Urged

MONTREAL, Feb. 26 — (CP) — Establisament of a maritime commission to supervise and regulate Canadian shipping was urged today by Dewar Ferguson, acting president of the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) at that organization's annual convention.

Mr. Ferguson proposed the appointment of a delegation to go to Ottawa to put the proposal, with other union plans before the government. Coupled with his suggestion of a maritime commission was the appointment of a special parliamentary committee on shipping at the forthcoming session to review the Canada Shipping Act.

The convention today received reports from union representatives in various ports and was told by Ben McKenzie of Lunenburg, N.S., that the Canadian Fishermen's Union, a C.S.U. affiliate, was growing rapidly and now had 2,000 members among Nova Scotia fishermen.

MOTOR VEHICLE PRODUCTION

OTTAWA, Feb. 26—(CP)—Production of motor vehicles in Canada in January was 8,495 units, compared with 5,907 in December and 13,745 units in January, 1945, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. The January output included 1,391 passenger models and 7,104 commercial vehicles.

Following is the text of the citations which accompanied the awards:

Award of: The Distinguished Service Order.

To: Lieutenant-Colonel William Wright Reid, E.D., Canadian Infantry Corps.

On 30 August 1944 during an attack on the Gothic Line, the leading company of the Perth Regiment was held up by heavy machine gun fire. After going forward to contact them, Lieutenant-Colonel Reid organized an attack and by first light the battalion, supported by a squadron of tanks, had captured its objective and had exploited to a point well inside the Gothic Line. The battalion was then ordered to capture Feature 204. At this time the whole area was subjected to very heavy artillery and mortar fire. Disregarding the fire, Lieut.-Colonel Reid contacted a squadron of 2 Canadian Armoured Regiment (Lord Strathcona's Horse, Royal Canadians) and planned the attack. By night fall, under intense shelling, the battalion had gained its objective, and although wounded, Lieutenant-Colonel Reid moved about organising the defence of the area. At 0150 hours 31 August 1944, the position was attacked by a company of Infantry, supported by two self-propelled guns. Lieutenant-Colonel Reid organized a counter-attack and personally formed two Piat teams to engage the self-propelled guns. One of the Piats was knocked out and Number 1 on the other became a casualty. Lieutenant-Colonel Reid took over the remaining Piat and crawling forward himself, knocked out the two self-propelled guns. The enemy attack was driven off with heavy losses, but some of the enemy had infiltrated the position and Lieutenant-Colonel Reid was again wounded by a German hand grenade. Although in great pain he refused to be evacuated until the position had been consolidated and the Second-in-Command was on his way forward to relieve him. The courageous leadership, energy and determination displayed by Lieutenant-Colonel Reid, enabled his battalion to be the first to gain a successful foothold in the Gothic Line.

Award of: The Military Cross,

To: Lieutenant John Allison McIntosh, Canadian Infantry Corps.

On 17 October 1944, Lieutenant McIntosh was in command of a daylight fighting patrol of two sections to destroy all enemy in the area of a house north of Maerle. Lieutenant McIntosh detailed one section to cover his approach and led the other section in to the house. After searching the house and finding nothing he looked outside the back door and saw two sentries whom he covered with his sten gun and who put up their hands. He motioned them inside and handed them over to one of his patrol. He then went to four weapon pits, each of which was occupied by two men and with the help of another man threw grenades into the pits, killing all occupants. Enemy machine guns then opened fire and under cover of this the two sentries tried to escape. Lieutenant McIntosh, with admirable presence of mind, fired at and killed both with his sten gun. Lieutenant McIntosh and his section then withdrew under enemy fire, covered by another section. For about seven hundred yards both sections withdrew in contact with the enemy and arrived safely back without incurring a single casualty. Throughout this operation Lieutenant McIntosh showed outstanding leadership and initiative with no regard for his own personal safety. He was entirely responsible for the great success of the patrol.

Award of: The Military Cross,

To: Lieutenant Ivan Joseph Harper, Royal Canadian Armoured Corps.

Lieutenant Harper commanded 2 Troop of "A" Squadron during the advance from Voorthuizen to Putten. Just North of Voorthuizen on 17 April 1945, the squadron came under extremely heavy anti-tank and machine gun fire and suffered several casualties to tanks and personnel. The fire was coming chiefly from the woods on the right flank of the regimental centre line which was covered by Lieutenant Harper's troop. The advance was temporarily held up. Displaying great initiative Lieutenant Harper immediately took his troop into the woods to locate the guns. Shortly after he entered the woods the enemy guns opened fire giving away their position. Disregarding the heavy fire this gallant officer personally led a charge, overrunning the position, destroying three of the guns and capturing fifty-three prisoners. The destruction of the enemy guns was done at point blank range and it was due to the surprise achieved by the boldness of this troop leader in leading his troop headlong into the opposition in the woods that caused the enemy to abandon their guns and surrender. The continued advance of his squadron and the regiment after a very short delay was entirely due to the audacity, courage and leadership of this outstanding officer. On the night of the same day, Lieutenant Harper again led his troop into action just South of Putten and encountered extremely heavy anti-tank and panzer-faust fire. He engaged the enemy and destroyed or captured two anti-tank guns and thirteen panzerfaust. The action continued and eventually three of his tanks were knocked out and Lieutenant Harper was himself badly wounded. He lay in a ditch for the balance of the night and returned to his squadron in the morning bringing with him a wounded soldier who had been hit in the same action. This officer, in a large part, was responsible for clearing opposition on the regimental centre line and by his dash and initiative permitting the advance to continue at a rapid pace.

Award of: The Military Medal,

To: F. 14223 Gunner Foch Edgar MacDonald, the Royal Canadian Artillery.

Gunner MacDonald was attached to A Squadron, 14 Canadian Armoured Regiment as co-driver and operator in one of the Field Observation Officer tanks. On 12 May 1944 the tanks attacked across the River Gari. The left-route bridge was damaged as the tanks approached it. While attempting to find a way to the centre-route, Gunner MacDonald's tank ran onto a mine, and was rendered useless in full view of the enemy. The tank then came under heavy shell and machine gun fire. With complete disregard of personal safety Gunner MacDonald remained at his set, thus enabling the Field Observation Officer to get to him from another set. He remained at his set, under fire, acting as intermediate station until the enemy were cleared from the high ground overlooking the river. His devotion to duty prevented a break in communications resulting in continuous artillery support for the tank attack.

Award of: The Military Medal,

To: F.26423 Corporal Ernest Augustine Stanley, the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals.

Prior to and during the attack on 19 February 1945 on the wood covering the approaches to Calcar, Corporal Stanley was in charge of the line detachment of "J" Section, 3 Canadian Infantry Division Signals. The tactical disposition of the units required that the line communications be laid along a road, which was in full view of the enemy and ran parallel to the wood. The plan to capture this wood was intricate and to effect success it was of paramount importance that line communications be maintained to all units under command at all times.

For forty-eight hours prior to the operation this road was under continuous mortar and heavy artillery fire and all during this time, without pause for rest or food, and with members of his detachment being killed or wounded about him, Corporal Stanley laboured to build this line. He succeeded just prior to zero hour in completing an air line thirty feet above the ground that withstood all mortaring and shelling throughout the operation, thus contributing materially to the success of the operation. This Non-Commissioned Officer's matchless courage, determination and devotion to duty was an example and inspiration to all ranks of "J" Section and his actions are worthy of the highest traditions of his Corps.

Award of: The Military Medal,

To: Guards/Sergeant Edward Joseph Corbett, the Royal Canadian Artillery.

At approximately 1000 hours on 9 March 1945, in the forward area, a party of Canadian Infantry were laying wire about fifty yards in front of the anti-tank gun position of Sergeant Corbett. One or more of the infantry personnel stepped on a schumine and four of the party were wounded. Sergeant Corbett, who had been trained in first-aid work, immediately organized a carrying party to remove the wounded and without the slightest hesitation proceeded to the scene of the accident although he knew that the area was thick with mines. Having tended the wounded, Sergeant Corsett was evacuating one man from the mined area when he stepped on a mine and was wounded to the extent of losing his leg. The coolness, courage and organizing ability displayed by Sergeant Corbett in tending and evacuating the wounded through what he knew to be an extremely dangerous area, was of the highest calibre and served as a magnificent example and steadying influence on all ranks.

Award of: The Military Medal,

To: F.60272 Private Raymond Joseph Noonan, Canadian Infantry Corps.

This soldier is a member of the Anti-tank Platoon and on 7 June 1944 his detachment was hurriedly dug in immediately North of Buron. While in their slit trenches they came under machine gun fire from a tank and from the ground. The standing grain did not provide a field of fire. Private Noonan immediately stood up in the open and opened fire with a Bren gun. This caused the tank to withdraw slightly which enabled the detachment to bring the gun in action when it reappeared, and to destroy it. "B" Company at this time received orders to withdraw on the carriers and Private Noonan maintained his exposed position for another ten minutes, giving covering fire which enabled the guns to come out of action and "B" Company to get on the carriers. Only when all were ready to move did he cease fire. Private Noonan's initiative and disregard for personal safety undoubtedly provided the means of getting a large number of his comrades out of a difficult situation without further casualties to them and, in addition, provided an inspiration for the men in his gun detachment and "B" Company which was a large factor in the success of the withdrawal of the Company.

Award of: Officer of the Order of the British Empire,

To: Lieutenant-Colonel Donald Campbell, the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps.

This officer has been in charge of the surgical division of No. 7 Canadian General Hospital since September 1942. When the unit landed in France he proved his ability to organize and operate an extremely efficient surgical division. He has shown leadership of a very high order, which has been reflected clearly by the loyalty and result of his division. By his keen and understanding appreciation he has stimulated the unit as a whole to a high and successful endeavour.

WINDSOR, N. S., Feb. 26—(CP)—L. P. Edwards has resigned as principal of Windsor Academy, at the end of this year's school term, and will take up new duties as assistant professor of mathematics at the University of New Brunswick, it was learned here today.

matter in hand in a report submitted by him but were unable to get the necessary approval from Ottawa in that it was suggested they had sufficient to take care of in the handling of traffic. Mr. Mutch stated he knew of a returned man interested in establishing tourist accommodation at Wood Islands, but last fall was unable to get the necessary approval for the scheme. The office turning down the application has been abolished since and the plan will in all probability go through.

In closing the meeting, President Hyndman said it was the aim of the Board to set up a committee to look into and consider various schemes in which war veterans were interested, but were unable to proceed with same on re-establishment grant facilities.

Three applications for membership were placed before the Board. They were from Lieut.-Col. G.G. Peake, D.S.O., Horace Willis and L.T. Beaton.

Guest at the dinner was Mr. A. Scales.

the current Royal Commission inquiry. It said:—

"....It has been ascertained that agents of a foreign power have been engaged in a concerted effort to obtain from public officials and other persons in positions of trust secret and confidential information the disclosure of which might be inimical to the safety and interest of Canada and friendly powers and that secret and confidential information has been communicated, directly or indirectly, by certain persons to the agents of the aforesaid foreign power to the prejudice of the public safety or interests of Canada and of friendly powers."

It added:—

"It is deemed necessary for the security, defence, peace, order and welfare of Canada that the Acting Prime Minister or the Minister of Justice shall be authorized to order the detention of such persons in such places and under such circumstances as the Acting Prime Minister of the Minister of Justice may from time to time determine."

(Prime Minister Mackenzie King was in Britain at the time the order was passed and Finance Minister Ilsley was acting.)

The order gave the Acting Prime Minister or the Justice Minister power to authorize any member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to "enter any premises occupied for use by a person whose detention is ordered at any time or times and to search the premises and every person found thereon and to seize any article found on the premises or any such person which the said member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police has reasonable ground for believing to be evidence that secret and confidential information has been communicated to agents of the foreign power."

The order-in-council, made public by Justice Minister St. Laurent, was accompanied by a copy of minutes of a meeting of the committee of the Privy Council Feb. 5, 10 days before Prime Minister King made the inquiry public.

The memorandum disclosed that at that meeting the committee approved the appointment of Mr. Justices Robert Taschereau and R.L. Kellock as Royal Commissioners to inquire into the ramifications of the spy ring.

The memorandum dealt largely with the powers of the commissioners in summoning witnesses for the taking of evidence in the inquiry.

The commissioners were appointed under the Inquiries Act of 1927 and "any other law thereto enabling, to inquire into and report upon which public officials and other persons in positions of trust or otherwise have communicated, directly or indirectly, secret and confidential information, the disclosure of which might be inimical to the safety and interests of Canada, to the agents of a foreign power and the facts relating to and the circumstances surrounding such communication."

Construction Of Homes Proceeding Slowly In Britain

LONDON, Feb. 26 —(CP Cable)—Only 352 permanent houses were completed by local authorities in the six months ending Jan. 31, the British Government said today in a white paper on housing covering England and Wales.

It has been estimated that 750,000 new houses costing less than £1,200 ($5,340) are needed before a larger type of building is permitted. The permanent houses completed are largely in the lower price category.

Temporary houses completed at Jan. 31 since the end of the war in Europe last May numbered 12,025. Preparations were underway for building 61,272 additional dwellings.

Better building progress was made in Scotland where the need is estimated at 500,000 additional houses. Permanent houses completed at Jan. 31 in Scotland totalled 1,580.

HOW IT'S SAID

TOKYO, Feb 26 — (AP) —Despite its novel name "Loose Button and Torn Sleeve Society," an organization of 15 Japanese seamstresses who planned to mend uniforms got little business. So Helen Arpin, of Neenah, Wis., a Red Cross worker, posted this notice: "We've got Nip skirts to sew your shirts." Business boomed.
