KINDS OF BULLETS

Projectiles Have Changed From the Ancient Lead Sphere

For more than three centuries, counting from the invention of gunpowder and the use of firearms, the bullets used in army weapons remained similar in form and composition to those used for sporting game; that is, they were round, and formed entirely of lead. Although the old spherical leaden bullet was the most ill-conceived and defective that could be imagined, it was only toward the second half of the last century that efforts were made to change the form. At first the diameter of the bullet was reduced, owing to the fact that the resistance of the air increases in proportion to the diameter of the projectile, but as it was necessary, nevertheless, to retain a sufficient weight, the power of wounding being in proportion to the projectile's mass, they were lengthened at the same time. Thus, instead of a sphere the bullet took the form of a cylinder, except the inferior portion, which gradually was made more pointed.

The "Cubist" Frock

This design is called the "cubist" gown and is made of Bulgarian brocade pale green satin, and ribbon black velvet. You see that the designer has followed the cubist idea thus far, that the two sides are not alike. The neck trimming is longer on one side than it is on the other, and the drapery is high upon one hip and low on the other.

MUCH PRIZED HEIRLOOM

Indian Chief Has Valued Relic of Troublous Days

Chief American Horse, of the Caughnawagas, is a staunch Britisher, despite his name. American Horse is the proud bearer of a tribe trophy which has been handed down from father to eldest son since the war of 1812. This trophy is a silver epaulette such as were conferred on the Indian leaders of courier bands during the war, by the British generals. To win one was an honor such as the decoration of the Garter or the Iron Cross. Chief American Horse may therefore, quite properly be proud of the distinction of belonging to the first Canadian nobility. True, the epaulette is a bit tarnished now from its century of use on state occasions, but it has been rather well preserved, and the distinguished looking son of the forest wears it with quite a military air on state occasions. He is with a travelling Indian show.

Sea-shell Windows

In the Philippine Islands sea-shells are used for window-panes in the same way that glass is used in other countries. The sunlight streaming through these shell-panes gives a beautiful, soft, glowing iridescence, which is particularly noticeable in the large windows of the grand old churches with which the islands abound.

The most magnificent sea-shell windows in the world, however, are those of the General Hospital at Manila. In Manila alone no fewer than 5,000,000 Kapas shells—the largest of which are about 3 inches square—are used each year for making windows. Windows made of sea-shells are much stronger than those made of glass.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

Local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear, there is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
