"Nerviline" Cures Cramps End Misery Instantly

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT

A real cramp cure? Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, once you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the inside. This isn't mere talk—it's a solid, truthful fact. No other remedy—not a single one—will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It hits the spot in a jiffy and saves a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T. P. Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a sound sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of torture. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross my room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach I knew I was all right. It finished the cramps—just one single dose."

Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Nerviline is handy. It may be earache, toothache or cramps. Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

CASEMENT'S LAWYER BUSY.

LONDON, June 13.—Within half an hour of his arrival in London yesterday, Michael F. Doyle, the Philadelphia lawyer retained by Sir Roger Casement's sister to look after Casement's interests, conferred with Sir Roger's lawyers. He will see his client in the Tower to-day.

Mr. Doyle said that he was deeply gratified by the government's courtesy in allowing him to assist Casement, particularly as he understands that this is the first State trial in Great Britain in which a foreigner has been allowed to participate.

THE VOTE ON UNION AT GENERAL ASSEMBLY

WINNIPEG, June 14.—Surcharged with the excitement of three days' continuous debate of church union, in which all the arts of oratory were introduced, the General Assembly received the vote tonight of 406 to 88 to unite the Presbyterian with the Methodist and Congregational churches with almost painful calmness. There were tears in the eyes of Rev. Robert Campbell, of Montreal, leader of the forces which had just suffered defeat, as he checked off the figures which pronounced the conclusion of the supreme church body; but the spirit of resistance was still unbroken in the veterans; for a moment later he heard a clear, steady voice from the rostrum, the proclamation of the dissenters' committee, in which they announce their adherence to the Presbyterian Church and term those who had just voted for the united movement as outside the pale and, by their own admission, no longer entitled to seats in the General Assembly.

It was an unexpected climax of one of the most dramatic situations probably ever witnessed in an assembly in the Dominion. Though the gallery was crowded and almost every member was in his seat, the silence was almost painful at the conclusion of the announcement of the ballot. Then all eyes turned upon Dr. Campbell. They were expecting something, but not the bolt which the aged minister exploded. The roll of the members had begun at four o'clock and ended at eight. It was a moment of intense interest. During the intermission, Dr. Campbell and a committee of the dissenters had met and agreed upon the proclamation of defiance. It had been hurriedly written out, but there was not a surplus word in the manuscript the moment it held in his hand and read in well-modulated voice. For several seconds after the historic document had been proclaimed there was not a sound to disturb the Assembly. Then a dozen members were trying to attract the Moderator's attention and the murmur gradually swelled into a roar of excitement. The name of Winnipeg was recognized, and asked if the unionists would not be given a chance to reply formally to the dissenters' pronouncement. The Moderator said, "Certainly." Later he announced that he would name the committee to prepare a statement at the same time would announce the committee authorized by the resolution of union to administer and carry into effect the merging of the Presbyterian Church into the United Church of Canada.

Rev. Dr. Baird was obviously deeply moved by the circumstances of the situation, chiefly perhaps, due to the uncompromising attitude of the large number of eminent ministers and laymen who suddenly found themselves breaking away from their co-workers and religious institutions of a lifetime. So, too, was the aged leader of the minority, for almost immediately he withdrew from his official position on the rostrum and retired to a rest room, almost overcome. Here he was greeted warmly by many of the commissioners who have stood shoulder to shoulder with him in the great battle just closed. After arranging for a gathering tomorrow of all commissioners who are to continue and preserve the Presbyterian Church in Canada, he returned to the chamber and continued to perform his clerical duties as if he was not the chief figure in one of the great episodes of Presbyterian history on the American continent.

ANALYSIS OF BALLOTING.

An analysis of the balloting shows 282 ministerial commissioners for union and 46 against, and 184 elders for and 43 against. The Moderator announced that the figures might show on revision one or two differences, and the clerk was given authority to make any correction if necessary. Dr. Clark, the mover of the union committee resolution, and Dr. Scott, the mover of the minority resolution, admitted that while they had observed that the clash was inevitable for some time they were almost overcome when both sides almost ready to make any sacrifice short of actually abandoning the concrete principles for which they stood so firmly in the hope that a way out would be revealed that would prevent a divided church. This feeling was manifested in the amendment of Pres. Falconer, pronounced upon, but delaying consummation until after the year; and the amendment of Dr. Ballantyne urging further consultation and co-operation, each favoring union in the abstract, but evidently hoping that by this delay to induce the minority to gradually surrender to the union organization.

FALCONER AMENDMENT.

Earlier in the day the Falconer amendment brought out the high-water mark of the minority strength. The vote on this as against the minority report of the committee on union showed 333 for Falconer's amendment and 103 for the minority. A second vote between Falconer's amendment and that of Ballantyne showed 339 for the former and 170 for the latter. This process of elimination then brought the ballot on Falconer's proposition as against the majority report of the union committee, and the vote was 205 for the former and 238 for the committee report. Thus immediate action scored by a bare majority of six.

Then came the final action, and it is significant of the tremendously moving character of the situation that while the minority had showed a strength of 103 on the first test, at the last it had dwindled to exactly 88, while the unionists were steadily mounted from the low-water mark of 225 in the lowest of the eliminating process finally to the maximum of 406. The unionists point to this gradual disintegration of the minority as an evidence that now, with the supreme voice of the church as expressed for union, a considerable number who have steadily clung to the minority will gradually cast in their lot with the majority.

But Dr. Campbell and Dr. Scott

say not so, that the disintegrating movement will be toward the Presbyterian Church to be preserved rather than against it. But there was a considerable faction of the unionists who wanted the union committee report, which was ultimately adopted, made even stronger. This spirit crystallized in an amendment ably presented and ingeniously defended by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, of Regina, inserting the words in that report that required union to be consummated within two years, whether the war closes in that time or not. "Ours," he declared, "is the unalterable conviction, that the resolution of the union committee should go through exactly as it was framed and that the idea prevailed in spite of the compromising factors injected by the minority or another. It was the crux of all the years since union was mooted, and nothing could interfere with the overwhelming convictions of the great Assembly."

The minority leaders admit that they have taken formal advice to make their basis of continuing the Presbyterian Church wholly legal by ecclesiastical and secular law, and assert that even more definite steps will be taken in these directions after the Assembly work has been completed. In fact it is not unlikely that those congregations whose commissioners have placed themselves in the ranks of the dissenters will be at once sought to authorize a new organization and a General Assembly so constituted will meet in the very near future to take action toward preserving the financial interests of that body, which will be known as Presbyterians in the future in Canada.

UNION RESOLUTION.

Here is the resolution which was based upon the union strength in the committee which framed the majority report, and which is the authority on which the majority will proceed to consummate the vote for the united church.

1. That the report of the committee on union be adopted.

2. That in accordance with its recommendations this General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada do now resolve to unite with

The Methodist Church of Canada and the Congregational churches of Canada to constitute "the United Church of Canada" on the basis of union, approved by the General Assembly of 1915, and by the majority of Presbyteries since consulted under the Barrier Act.

3. That this decision be formally announced to the Methodist Church of Canada and the Congregational churches of Canada.

4. That a committee be appointed to carry out the policy of the Assembly, and to act in co-operation with committees of the Methodist and Congregational churches of Canada in obtaining the necessary legal advice and in taking such steps as may be deemed proper to prepare for making application to the Dominion and Provincial Legislatures for such leg-
