15 YEARS SUFFERING FROM PILES

Mr. J. McEwen of Dundas, Ont., writes:—"For fifteen years I suffered with Piles and could get no permanent cure until I tried Zam-Buk. Perseverance with this herbal balm resulted in a complete cure, and I have not been troubled with the painful ailment since."

Mr. Henry Fougere of Poulamond, N.S., says:—"I suffered terribly with Piles and could find nothing to give me relief until I tried Zam-Buk. This cured me. I consider Zam-Buk the finest ointment on the market."

The above are specimens of the many letters we are constantly receiving from men and women who have ended their suffering by using Zam-Buk. Why not do likewise?

Zam-Buk is best for eczema, blood poisoning, ulcers, sores, cuts, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Send this advertisement with name of paper and one cent stamp for free trial box.

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing that Causes It and the Cough will Stop Itself.

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—heal the inflamed membranes. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of the most pleasant and effective remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

It heals the inflamed membranes so gently and promptly that you wonder how it does it. Also loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

AUSTRALIA SENDS ANOTHER BIG DRAFT.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. —A further expeditionary force of 10,000 men has been offered by Australia, and accepted by the British Government.

This is in addition to reinforcements of 4,000 men monthly.

CRAFT THAT FAILED.

Signaller H. Hodgetts, of the Worcester Regiment, writes to a friend at Newport, Isle of Wight: The Germans are very crafty, as you are probably aware. One night, about ten days ago, at about 8 o'clock, the sentry on the lookout saw a man advancing towards our trenches.

It was too dark to see what he was dressed in or anything else, and until he got quite close, when the sentry halted him and he shouted out "Don't fire! I am Private Lewis, of the Worcesters!"

The sentry was suspicious, because he knew very well that no "Private Lewis" had gone out in front at all, so he roused a couple of fellows near him, and they fired. "Private Lewis" fell, and a couple went out to fetch him in.

When he was brought in he was found to be wearing one of our officers' uniforms. He also had upon him the field glasses of Captain Pepy's, who was killed some time ago.

Of course, this "Private Lewis" was a German and he had three bullets in him, so that stopped his gallop.

The Germans very often do this sort of thing. They send out five or six men accompanied by an N. C. O., and they advance towards our trenches to try and find out what we are doing or how we are situated, but they always get shot down in no time.

The men know it is certain death, but they are driven to it by the officer's revolver. The German officers are absolute beasts to the men.

TALES TOLD BY MEN IN THE FIGHTING LINES

The impressions of coming under fire for the first time are described by a young officer of Engineers in a letter quoted in the London Times:—

The writer set out to find a battalion, and almost the first man I met was on his way to their headquarters —a sergeant who had been back to arrange about rations—a delightful Irishman, who was as merry as a sandboy, and who regaled me with long-winded yarns of their doings in the trenches, until we got near up and it was unwise to laugh too loud. It was a piece of luck, because when I started out on this mission I was quite sure I was going to be in a devil of a funk, and when it was all over I was mighty surprised with myself to find I had been much too interested and amused by the Irishman really to take it in that there were bullets buzzing about; and it really didn't seem much worse than digging trenches on the hills with some of our fellows making rotten bad shots at the targets on the range near by.

Of course, there was a lot of noise of rattling rifle fire, but not nearly as much as at a public school field day, when every boy has a score of rounds which he is intent on blazing off before the "Cease fire" goes. Those were, roughly, my feelings the first time under fire.

THE "SALUT AU DRAPEAU."

A captain in the French Army writes: Yesterday morning my major and a captain of my regiment were decorated with the Legion d'Honneur. The ceremony was splendid in its simplicity. Our battalion occupied the place behind the church, and the first company, which is mine, was ordered to fetch the flag from the colonel's headquarters. I had therefore for the first time to order the company to render the honours to the flag.

I placed the men in a square group on the place just opposite the colonel's windows. I stood in the middle on horseback, my sword in hand. When the flag appeared I ordered the men to put out their bayonets; then I shouted, "Shoulder arms"; then, "Present arms." The flag was brought in the centre of the company, then with my voice trembling with emotion I said, "To the flag!" with all my strength, and the band played the "Salut au Drapeau" and the "Marseillaise."

I then saluted the flag with the sword and ordered the company to file off four by four. We joined the rest of the battalion on the field. There the major in his turn ordered the "Salut au Drapeau," the colonel inspected the troops, and then conferred on the major and one of the captains the Cross of the Legion of Honour. The sun was shining on the bayonets; it was glorious.

The other officers of the battalion and I presented the major with a £3 cross and gave him a little party. One of our lieutenants sang the beautiful patriotic song, "Brodons des etendards et reparons nos armes," and I recited "Apres la Bataille."

MET JACK JOHNSONS.

A Corporal now in hospital writes to his wife: I was sent out with two men on what they call patrol. I sent one man to the right and the other to the left and I was in the centre. I volunteered for the job. It is what they call sacrifice post. It was my job to get the two men and myself to fire twenty-five rounds so as to make the Germans open fire on us. While they were firing in our direction the rest of our troops got round on each side of them to surprise them.

The two men were badly wounded and I was shattered in the knee. I got over it. Then we were ordered out to meet a German attack. When the Jack Johnsons started, I was hit behind the head. The shock sickened me and I fell forward into a pit they had dug to bury their dead. I nearly smashed my legs. I tried to get up, but a funny sensation came over me. That finished me. When I next opened my eyes I was in hospital and my hands and knees were bandaged up. I wrote a letter to you saying I was bad with rheumatism. I happened to be reading my diet sheet when what do you think I saw. Under the heading "Disease" it had mental deficiency." I don't know what I had done for that to be there. An A.M.C. man said I must have been in the pit for six hours. I was covered with frost when they found me. That was why my hands were bandaged. They have got me in a ward now as "mentally deficient," but I think I write sensibly enough, don't you? I told the doctor I could teach him some things, and that has convinced him that I am all right.

An officer at the front writes home: Have you heard about that silly young ass ——, of the ——? Well, here's his programme for a four days' leave: Monday morning, 5.30 a. m., left—— in one of the G. H. Q. cars, blinded through to Boulogne, had a bath and shave at the Meurice, borrowed a clean pair of breeches from a man there, caught the 11 o'clock boat for Folkestone, arrived Victoria about 3, met by a beauteous damsel in a car, married by extra-special license 3.30, spent Tuesday and Wednesday getting lost in the wilds of Devon, and arrived back at Victoria Thursday in time to catch the afternoon boat train, met by car at Boulogne, and on duty again at midnight.

I think this is the sort of thing which our trans-Atlantic cousins would designate "some hustle." The funny part of the whole thing is that we fellows didn't know about the affair until we noticed something strange about his behaviour—a kind of moonstruck, "don't disturb me, my thoughts are with the angels" sort of manner which may be all right in the billets, but is dangerous in the advance sewers.

When we saw him standing up with his hands in his pockets gazing dreamily, head and shoulder over the trench parapet, at the German trenches not 200 yards away, —— went and tripped him up in the mud and sat on him till he started to curse. After that he came into my dugout and made a clean breast of the whole matter. He is much better now, but Heaven save me from having to act as nurse to any more newly "spliced" cubs on duty in the advanced works.

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few applications all dandruff disappears and the hair stops coming out.

CONDITIONS IN BELGIUM

Mr. A. S. Barnstead, Secretary of the Belgium Relief Committee of Halifax, has received from Mr. E. B. Elderkin, representing the Government of Nova Scotia in Holland, the following account of conditions there that will be read with interest by the people of Nova Scotia who have contributed so much by the timeliness of their aid to alleviate some of the distress the heroic Belgians are enduring:—

Westerstraat, 8a, Rotterdam, Holland. January 15, 1915.

The Belgian Relief work now being done by Nova Scotians in company with other Christian peoples gives the observer a higher conception of the human character. The whole-souled manner in which the Hollanders are sucoring the refugees in this country arouses one's admiration.

I have visited a civilian camp of Refugees which is under military control at Houda. This was in wonderful contrast to the conditions existing in the various camps on the occasion of my first visit, when one takes into consiredation the fact that the Dutch Government have over 450,000 soldiers mobilized and in training. Their commercial life is practically destroyed and there consequent distress because of unemployment. All this has to be provided for by Government and private donations, and it makes one amazed at what they are doing for the Belgians.

At this camp there are 1,500 Belgians housed in what were formally conservatories. These are now supplied with steam heat, electric light, baths, a shower bath, social halls, dining rooms and sleeping apartments divided for men, women and families. They are very comfortable and everything is spotlessly clean. I have no doubt in my mind that for quite a large percentage of these people, the conditions are as good if not better than they had in their own country.

On Friday last I visited a camp near Utrecht, where 17,000 Belgian soldiers are interned. The expression on the faces of these people is widely different from that of those in other Refugee camps. As one could readily see they feel the restraint and lack of possibility of doing that which is as much their hearts desire viz., defending their country and homes. Their enforced idleness is having an effect on their natures and temperaments.

The American Commission is doing a wonderful work. They have it so systematised, that every need is recorded and what is being done or has already been done to relieve the same.

One thing that pleased me very much was the work of the Rockfeller Foundation Committee of New York, under the direction of Mr. Jenkinson. It has always seemed to me that the enforced idleness would tell seriously on the future lives of the Refugees, but they have provided a sewing machine for every woman who will agree to work it for eight hours a day. They furnish material for the making of various kinds of garments for men and women. They have cutters of various kinds and a superintendent for each and every department. The garments when made are the property of the committee, and they distribute them where they are most needed.

The remuneration paid to the operators is one gulden per week. They are allowed to draw 50 per cent. of this, and the balance is placed to their credit, so that when the time comes for them to return to their country they will have a little money in their pockets. In addition to this there is a prize to the value of five gulden, which is distributed monthly to the most efficient worker in the department. Also when a woman has made six suits of underwear, she is privileged to keep one suit for herself or any member of her family. They have the intention also to start a tailor's shop so as to give employment to some of the men. What is being done at this camp is being attempted at the others, so as to eventually have them all in working trim. The committee are not buying the machines, but are renting them from dealers in Holland, paying five gulden a month. This seems to me to be charity taking its highest form, as it only helps the people to be above charity, but it also gives them something to occupy minds as well as their hands. As occasions may offer I will visit other encampments and give you my impressions in future letters..

I had the opportunity of examining a great deal of the clothing brought over by the S. S. Dorie, and it is very creditable indeed. In fact much of it is of superior quality, with a very small percentage of inferior quality. In going through these warehouses examining these goods, I was filled with pride and admiration for the people of my native province, and could those who have contributed come in contact with these people as I have done, they would be more than thankful of the opportunity presented to them by Mr. Murray to help in ever so small a way this most worthy object.

Yours very truly,
E. B. ELDERKIN.

Action of Single Spoonful Surprises Many

Charlottetown people who bought the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerene, etc., known as Adler-i-ka, are surprised at the INSTANT effect of a SINGLE SPOONFUL. This remedy is so complete a bowel cleanser that it is used successfully in appendicitis. Adler-i-ka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY case of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. E. A. Foster, Druggist.

GERMANS BUSY LEARNING ENGLISH.

BERNE, Feb. 5.—A Swiss schoolmaster who has just returned from Germany states that the war has given a tremendous impetus to the study of English at Berlin, Hamburg and other large cities.

Principals of the commercial high schools urge their pupils to acquire a thorough language of the English language, on the ground that after the world war Germans will find it useful in the task which will then present itself of capturing the trade with the Colonies and the United States once held by a disorganized and defeated British.

Soldiers who are not at present at the front are stated to be learning English in the hope that after the inevitable invasion it will prove useful to them in their relations with the natives.

GIRLS ANGLE GOLDFISH IN HOTEL LOBBY.

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 5.—A cane, a piece of bread and a bent pin, form the basis of a novel indoor sport, introduced at the exclusive Hotel Green here by two fun loving society girls. The gold fish in the fountain which graces the big lobby of the hotel form the prey, although to date there has been no serious casualties among the finny beauties.

To sit comfortably in a big Morris chair in the lobby of a palatial hotel and at the same time enjoy all the delights due to the follower of Izaak Walton is quite a novelty, declare the girls, who make great sport of luring the fish to near capture.

"Goldfish are fun to angle for," says Miss Marian Landers, who, with Miss Edna Walsh, introduced the odd sport. "We don't care to eat them, though, so any we catch we put back. It's great fun, don't you think?"

It certainly is, declare the prominent eastern guests who were interested spectators to the novel fishing.

SUGGESTION FOR K. OF K. FROM HALDANE.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(Correspondence.)—Here is a piece of hitherto unwritten history which will doubtless receive its due place in the archives of the war, and will certainly have to be taken into consideration by the future biographer of the notable British worthy, Lord Haldane, present Lord Chancellor and former Secretary of State for War, philosopher, jurist and much caluminated person.

Soon after the outbreak of the war, it will be remembered, Lord Haldane was the objejct of certain attacks, which went so far as to suggest that the admiration he had always expressed for German literature and philosophy, and the efforts he had made to ameliorate the political relations of Germany and Britain unfitted him for the work he was doing for his country, and even rendered that work suspected.

"Give use Kitchener—we don't want Haldane," was the cry. Kitchener was given to those who cried for him. It looked as if "K. of K.'s" advent at the War Office was a direct result of a newspaper campaign. As a matterof fact, Kitchener's appointment to the War Office was decided upon by the Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, before a single line had appeared in any newspaper advocating his appointment and the particular irony of the situation is that it was Lord Haldane himself who suggested Kitchener's appointment to Mr. Asquith.

PROVISION FOR VETERAN OF WAR.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—An Order-in-Council has been passed making special arrangements for Trooper Mulloy, the South African hero, who was blinded in both eyes. Owing to his disability he was unable to avail himself of the South African grant of homestead land in the West. It has been decided to allow him to select two adjoining sections of land available for homestead, which will be sold to him at the rate of one dollar an acre.

Ministers Recommend

Rev. John Davidson, of Thurso, Que., writes:—"I have had considerable trouble with my throat, caused by public speaking in heated buildings and exposure to damp and chilly atmosphere. I find PEPs very effective in soothing the throat."

Rev. Edward G. Heaven, Marksville, Ont., writes:—"I have used PEPs and find they give considerable relief to the throat. I have also found them very beneficial for colds."

PEPs is the direct treatment for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hoarseness, Larnygitis, and other ailments of the throat, chest, and lungs. As PEPs dissolve on the tongue, healing vapors are liberated which are breathed down direct to the sore places. Liquid cough mixtures, etc., cannot be inhaled, they go to the stomach not the lungs. PEPs get to the seat of the trouble direct.

PEPs are sold only in tin boxes. All druggists and stores 50c. box, 3 boxes $1.25.
