In Memoriam

MRS. SARAH SKINNER.

At her home Georgetown P. E. Island May 28th 1926 there passed peacefully to rest Mrs. Sarah Skinner at the advanced age of ninety-six years. The late Mrs. Skinner's maiden name was Sarah Parker, she was born in Guysborough N. S. June 11 1830 and moved to Georgetown some forty years ago. Although Mrs. Skinner had reached an age that few attain nevertheless she was about her home with a about eight weeks after her death, and up to that time her mind was ever alert to the current happenings of the day in the passing of Mrs. Skinner Georgetown loses an honest upright citizen, one who by the interest she tendered in her own home commanded the respect of all.

The following sons and daughters are left to mourn the loss. Henry in Western Canada, Mrs. J. A. McKinney Georgetown, Mrs. A. R. Resim Rosindale Mass, Daniel and James, Georgetown, Mrs. W. W. Lavers, Georgetown, Mrs. R. S. Glidder, Mountket Mass. Beatrix at home.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. A.E. Crofton.

MRS. NATHANIEL EVANS

Mrs. John Nathaniel Evans, Irish-born, died on May 26 after a sudden attack of a fatal illness. Early last summer she fell a victim to a serious affliction of the throat that defied the power of the best medical skill and which finally caused death. Her husband, sons and kind neighbors had utilized every means known to human skill in order to thwart the ravages of disease, but fate willed otherwise.

She was the daughter of the late William Mann and the late Mary Fraser, his wife. She was a member of a family of seven, the surviving members being James W. E. and John N.

Throughout her whole life she maintained a firm Christian spirit, placing moral perfection before material gain. She made home a kingdom where her husband and she maintained a standard of life that measured perfection.

In 1908 she was married to John Nathaniel Evans, and the issue of the union was a family of three boys and one girl, the surviving members being James W. E. and John N.

Her social circles was most entertaining; her conversation was always commendable and her influence for good ever potent. She has left a reflex on her family that must endure their lives. Her amiable disposition and her kind sympathetic nature unfurled the home in her real personality and the void that her death has caused is a loss that human power cannot repair. But the sorrowing husband and family are sustained by the assurance that the pure moral life that she lived has merited for her the reward that true virtue alone can merit. The true sympathy of her sorrowing friends is tendered to the bereaved husband and family.

John Smith and His Car

By FREDERICK C. RUSSELL

John Smith is a character whom every motorist should welcome. He is not selfish, rather he is a motoring martyr, a chap willing and glad to have exploited, in an interesting way, his experiences for the benefit of the other twenty million or more members of the motor clan.

No. 15: Lost Without Maps

A mile or so farther along the detour I looked back to see if Smith still was following me, only to be startled by his absence from the scenery. Apparently he had lost his way. But how? The road had seemed simple enough to me. I had just followed without giving it much thought.

But then on recalling the course I had just traversed, I remembered that there had been a fork in the road about a quarter of a mile back. There had been no sign post, and the highway department had failed to mark the continuation of the detour plainly. I had taken the branch to the left without debating the question because I knew that the main road I was trying to get back to was somewhere to my left. Half the time when driving over strange roads I cannot tell exactly where I am or how far I am from last because I am to keep by general directions clearly in mind.

When Smith reached the fork in the road he was confused because he already had lost his main directions and the two choices he was being offered seemed to make matters worse. He might have noticed that the road to the left was the more traveled of the two, or that there were plain traces in the dirt of the road to reveal the imprint of the two new rear tires which he had helped me buy not three days before; but he chose to plan what he thought was a very common mistake in automobile pathfinding.

He said to himself: "I'll try the road to the right for a mile or so and if I don't overtake my friends I'll know then that I have chosen the wrong road. Then I'll come back and get on the right one." His plan went well enough until he got a long distance from the fork, ahead from the top of a hill. Suddenly that I wasn't in sight, he turned the car around and headed back to the fork again, but before reaching the original scene of his confusion he encountered an inverted pluck which he had passed by without noticing. Country roads are always filled with these jokers, and when travelling over an unmarked detour one has to be careful about them.

The upshot of Smith's experience was that he chose the left road this time (probably because his choice of a right road the time before had been unlucky) and soon found himself completely confused, isolated in the woods, lost!

Worse of all the sun was beginning to set. As I waited by the roadside I suddenly recalled that Smith did not even have a road map. He always was going to get one! Perhaps a map might not have shown him these side roads, but at least it would have revealed the high places, and with this encouragement he would have been justified in going straight ahead in some one direction, knowing that eventually he would strike the main road.

The situation called for action, so I went back to the fork in the road and followed Smith's line of reasoning. Within 15 minutes I had found him, proving to his astonishment that he had not been farther apart than a half mile all the while.

"Now you're lost, too," Smith complained.

"Nonsense!" I replied. "When we turn our cars around in the original direction of travel, the highway will be on our left. That's all we've got to bear in mind. Besides the sun is flickering through the trees straight ahead. When we turn our cars around, therefore, we'll be travelling in the opposite direction—or east—which is precisely the direction we are aiming for."

"You talk as though you know where you are," Smith commented. "I haven't the slightest idea where I am," I retorted. "But I know where I am going. That is the point to remember."

Before the sun had dropped over the top of a distant mountain I had demonstrated this simple rule of pathfinding by getting back on the highway, 20 miles from our destination. Pressed for time and tempt-

PIKE-HOWE—An attractive wedding took place Saturday, June 5 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theophilus Howe, Felix Street, Providence, R. I., when their daughter, Miss Stella M. Howe, was united in marriage to Charles A. Pike by Rev. A. Mason Brown. The bride was attended by Mrs. John Deigan, as matron of honor Walter J. Ritzen accompanied the bridegroom, and Mr. W. Leonard H. Bennett was usher. The bride wore a georgette and satin gown beaded with pearls and a tulle veil crowned with orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of Bride roses and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor wore a gown of peach tulle and carried a shower bouquet of Premier roses. The bride entered the room accompanied by her father to the music of the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," played by Miss Ruth H. Briggs. After the ceremony an informal reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Pike left for a motor trip to New York and Philadelphia, where they will attend the sequentennial exposition.

—Providence Journal. Mr. Pike has many relatives in this Province who will join in happiest congratulations.

By a new stretch of concrete road we "stepped on the gas," swinging logically into a new experience for Smith. There was every reason to believe that he would be "lost" at "sixty". Most motorists go wrong when they're running smoothest.

Western Woman Is Church Commissioner

Mrs. L. C. McKinney of Claresholm, Alberta is dead of the delegation of women elected Commissioners to the General Council of the United Church. Mrs. McKinney's principal work has been for the W.C.T.U., but she sat for a term as member of the Legislative Assembly for Alberta. During the past year she has served as the only woman member of the commission of permanent organization of the United Church.

TO SPEND SUMMER HERE—Rev. Dr. F. J. Coffin, Principle of the Presbyterian College, Trinidad, arrived in the city yesterday morning and purposes spending the summer here. The Doctor had been in somewhat poor health for some time, but his friends will be pleased to learn that he has made a good recovery and is now on a fair way to complete recovery. For the present he is a guest at Th. Russ.

COMMUNITY MEETING.—The May meeting of the Community Club, Cornwall was held in the hall with forty members present. Plans were made for completing the rink. The officers elected for the year nineteen twenty six are: President Gordon Macmillan, Secretary John Heartz, Treasurer Miss Lillian Hyde, Meadowbrook. Contests were held and refreshments served. The June meeting will be held on Monday the 14th in Cornwall Hall.

Y. W. C. A. MEETING.—The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. W. C. A. was held in the Cuedall Home Tuesday. There was a large attendance with Mrs. John Richards, Vice President, presiding. The General Secretary gave a report on the work of the students during the past term. A large number of guests have already booked for the summer season. At the close of the meeting the members of the Board presented Miss MacCallum with a lovely bouquet of carnation as a token of their appreciation of her work.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea" TEA And because you like good things you'll like Red Rose.

From Savagery to Civilization

Five years ago they were unclothed savages of the wildest tribe of Igorots in the Philippine Islands and work was an unknown blessing or affliction, according to the way you look at it. From sun-up, to sun-down there was nothing to do except swimming, canoeing, fishing and generally taking things as they came and life easy. Today they are garbed in the dress of civilization as you see them here waiting on the Windsor Street Station, Montreal, for their train to New York. Bernard Manning, 18, and Javier Cardenas, 17, forsok the care-free life of their ancestors and under the expert training of two American women missionaries, arsed something of the great white world beyond the seas. They will work through High School and University in the United States. They travelled the eight thousand miles from Kavan, in the Philippines, board the Empress of Asia, landing at Vancouver, and thence across Canada to Montreal on their way to New York. All their belongings are in the three straw suitcases standing beside them. "This is the smallest quantity of baggage over a trip of this length I have seen in 25 years," commented I. G. Turnbull, Canadian Pacific steamship passenger agent who advised them on their trip. Canibals and head hunters still flourish in the Philippines, said the two youths, but they are now way back in the wilds of the Islands. It will be many years before they are stamped out. Javier and Bernard hope to help in the stamping when they have completed their training.

Fine British Types for Canada

The emigration of families from Great Britain to the Dominion is rapidly increasing. The £3 fare and generous arrangements under the 3,000 families scheme are inducing more to travel. Fifteen of these families sailed recently from Glasgow to Canada on the Canadian Pacific Liner Montcalm, and in addition there were quite a number of young fellows who were going to try their luck in the land of promise. The above group is a good indication of the class of sturdy energetic young men that Canada wants and which Canada is certainly getting under the auspices of the British Immigration and Colonization Association.

Freetown Notes

Mr. Charles D. Taylor and daughter Roberta left for Boston Saturday June 5th. Mrs. Taylor expects to be away about two months.

Mr. Fred Reeves had the misfortune on Monday last to lose a small fox. The fox has been seen several times by some of the neighbors but as yet has not been captured.

Mr. Samuel Bernard, Kensington spent a few days in Freetown visiting his relatives and friends.

Mr. Fred Reeves had the misfortune on Monday last to lose a small fox. The fox has been seen several times by some of the neighbors but as yet has not been captured.

Mr. William Burns is recovering rapidly and is now able to be out again.

Mr. A. C. Gardiner and D. M. Ward have purchased a new over potato planter.

Practically all the farmers around Freetown are busy at the potatoes. If the weather stays fine the crop of the potatoes will be planted by the 15th of this month.

The new car drivers are getting on fairly well, some of them are found it harder to back than to go ahead straight. Generally speaking there has been much property destroyed.

Take advice from John R. and do not park your car where you have it facing home. R.
