BRITISH PRESS ON CANADIAN ELECTIONS

The Westminster Gazette Says Meighen's Advocacy of High Tariff Had Effect upon Electors

LONDON, Nov. 1.—"Nine cabinet ministers of Canada defeated." This is the heading appearing on more than one newspaper contents in the streets of London. London has indeed awakened rather than to the importance of the Canadian elections. The absence of any clear cut imperial issue was doubtless responsible for the comparative lack of interest in the earlier stages of the contest, notwithstanding the fact that leading newspapers for some weeks carried numerous articles concerning the campaign.

Canadians here all along hesitated to express prophecies. It was felt at this distance despite the most copious newspaper cables, impossible to prognosticate with any degree of certainty the trend of the election.

The Dominion is highly fortunate at this juncture," says Beaverbrook's Standard "in having as leaders men whose whole lives and actions discourage the baser side of the tariff issue. Mr. Meighen has also had to suffer some quite unjustifiable detraction in this country. He was the minister in the late government of Sir Robert Borden who negotiated the agreement whereunder the Grand Trunk Railway was taken over."

The Westminster Gazette says the Conservatives won their seats in the Dominion election chiefly at the cost of the Progressive party which is now one-third of its size in the last parliament.

The Dominion side that the Gazette considers what have been the motives of the electors, scattered over such a large area, and says the motives are difficult to understand.

The Gazette says that no doubt the taxation, which is regarded by Canadians as heavy, has had some weight in the result of the vote. But Mr. Meighen's advocacy of high tariffs has had much more effect upon the electors. "Probably, however, the more vague desire to have a change of government," the Gazette adds, "has had as much influence as any other factor in the result."

He also took an active interest in athletics. He was a member of Victoria A. F. & A. M., and the G. W. V. A.

Prohibition Has Justified Its Adoption

(Canadian Press.) WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—"Prohibition has already yielded results which fully justify its adoption." This is the flat statement of the administrative committee of churches after considering its policy on the subject in the light of the recent report on the prohibition situation issued by its research department.

There is nothing in the report, the administrative committee says, to justify modification of the stand of the churches for prohibition. The council renews in the statement its pledge of unequivocal support of national prohibition in the United States.

The statement urges the friends of prohibition in other countries not to be deceived by various attempts to interpret the research report as a confession of failure or even discouragement, and calls upon the churches to undertake a new moral crusade to strengthen the hands of those who are responsible for prohibition enforcement.

REV. W. BRUCE MUIR BEGINS HIS MINISTRY IN CH'TOWN

Large Congregations Heard New Minister's Inaugural Services in St. James Church Yesterday Morning And Evening.

The newly inducted minister of St. James Church, the Rev. W. Bruce Muir, entered on his ministry under most pleasing auspices. On Friday evening at the induction service he was introduced to a large number of his congregation and yesterday morning he preached his first sermon to one of the largest congregations seen in the church for some time, a congregation which was considerably augmented in the evening. The musical service was the direction of Mr. F. T. Watkiss was exceptionally fine, the choir having recently been greatly enlarged. Mr. Muir, whom none of his congregation had heard previously, made a most favorable impression in his first services and very favorable comments both on his manner and his matter were heard on every side.

At the morning service Mr. Muir chose as his text 2 Cor. 2:16, "Who is sufficient for these things?" and in his opening remarks said: "With a miraculous conversion in memory, with all the signs of the chiefest apostle in his possession, with a crown of righteousness laid up for him in prospect, St. Paul asks himself this momentous question, 'Who is sufficient for these things?' He thought, 'no one of the great apostle was as difficult of fidelity, as we see at once in the case following the discharge of this great office, 'Who is sufficient for these things?' 'Must I, who might have thrown in here a grain of flattery and there a scrap of indulgence; adapt it to the taste of the audience or take the Federal Council of Churches after considering its policy on the subject in the light of the recent report on the prohibition situation issued by its research department. There is nothing in the report, the administrative committee says, to justify modification of the stand of the churches for prohibition. The council renews in the statement its pledge of unequivocal support of national prohibition in the United States. The statement urges the friends of prohibition in other countries not to be deceived by various attempts to interpret the research report as a confession of failure or even discouragement, and calls upon the churches to undertake a new moral crusade to strengthen the hands of those who are responsible for prohibition enforcement."

Hugh P. Macpherson, D.D., Antigonish, N. S., and Major Hume Cronyn, K. C., London, Ont.

The commission will have the assistance of technical experts and will open its session in Sydney Tuesday. The terms of reference require the commission to inquire into "income rates of wages, hours and conditions of employment, prevailing in mines and whether and if so to what extent such should be revised; to investigate any inequalities between different classes of mine workers as regards wages and conditions of employment; to determine whether or not it is practicable to improve conditions under which miners live and to probe into cause or causes of 'constantly recurring disputes, friction and strife between operators and their workmen."

CABINET MEETING TODAY

(Special to The Guardian.) OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—A meeting of the Dominion cabinet will be held on Monday. Premier Mackenzie King will then discuss with his ministers the situation which has arisen as a result of the general election.

The great majority of the members of the government are still out of the city, but they will probably be in Ottawa for the meeting. The only ministers in Ottawa today are the Premier and Hon. Thomas A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, who went down to defeat in South Westport, N. B., and arrived and called at the Prime Minister's office. W. T. R. WASH. WATCHES OUTCOME OF ELECTIONS

Speculate as to Whether Tariff Policy Will Go Into Effect

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The decided gain by the Conservative party of seats in the Canadian federal House of Commons has stirred up keen interest in Washington among the members of the United States congress and officials who are watchful of tariff developments. While the Canadian contest has aroused it there on various grounds, undoubtedly the tariff feature has demanded most attention. Speculation today was keen whether Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Tory Leader, would win a majority in the House of Commons and if so would the road be clear for the Conservatives to put into effect their tariff policy.

Just what effect the higher tariffs proposed by Premier Meighen and the Conservatives would have on the United States is not altogether clear but it is recognized that it might make Republican leaders to throw open the tariff question and revise existing rates. Such a contingency has hardly been looked for by Republicans who had announced it would be their policy to let the present tariffs rest at least until the 1926 congressional elections.

The possibility that Canadian developments may react to cause tariff revision here sooner than anticipated, however, is thought quite certain, provided the Conservatives make sufficient gains to put their party in power of the Canadian House.

SITUATION IS YET SERIOUS
