Happenings Of The Week

The Bishop of Chichester believes the words and music of "Beauvais" "Until 'Friend of Mine' and 'I'll Walk Beside You' are not suitable for a marriage ceremony. In reply to a query by Rev. H. A. Thomas, Vicar of St. Wilfred's Church, Hayward's Heath the Bishop wrote that "such music is very unsuitable before or after a marriage service. It is not a question of being pedantic. It is a question of atmosphere and the atmosphere for the solemnization of marriage in church seems to me to be different from the atmosphere in which such music should be played. Everyone must admit each and all of them would be incongruous in a Nuptial Mass, or at a solemn Nuptial Communion, such as that of Rev. and Mrs. T. H. Russell Somers in Toronto University Chapel last Saturday.

Section Officer Muriel Weeks, C. W. A. F. returned to Moncton on Wednesday after a delightful holiday spent among her old friends here.

It is interesting to note that Mr. A. E. Morrison still has in his possession his father's and mother's invitation to the ball in honour of His Royal Highness Prince Arthur, afterwards Duke of Connaught, given at Government House on Monday, August 30, 1869. It is signed by Col. J. Hamilton Gray, one of the Fathers of Confederation, and father of the late lamented Mrs. Artemus Lord.

Mrs. E. S. Roy and Mr. J. C. Wilkins who have been visiting their parents Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Wilkins, Fitzroy Street are leaving this morning on return to Halifax. It is pleasing that Mr. Wilkins Sr. continues to make steady progress towards renewed health.

Mr. R. N. Taylor who has been visiting his mother Mrs. F. P. Taylor left Thursday on return to Westmount, P. Q. On Tuesday Mr. Taylor was host at a most enjoyable mixed dinner party at the Charlottetown.

Mrs. Horace McEwen who has been visiting her son and daughter for several weeks left Thursday for New York where she will be the guest of her grandson Mr. Horace McEwen and Mrs. McEwen before returning to her home in Vancouver.

Mrs. Ronald Stewart and young son John Ronnie who have been visiting Mrs. T. B. Woodman left Thursday on return to Ottawa.

Mrs. Cookson of New York arrived last week to take up her residence with other members of her family in Brighton.

Mrs. Herbert W. Kent entertained at a delightful luncheon at the Charlottetown Hotel on Thursday in honor of Mrs. Malcolm James MacLeod of New York City who is summing at Eldon, and Mrs. (Dr.) Wilson Hunt, Malden, Mass., who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Rogers.

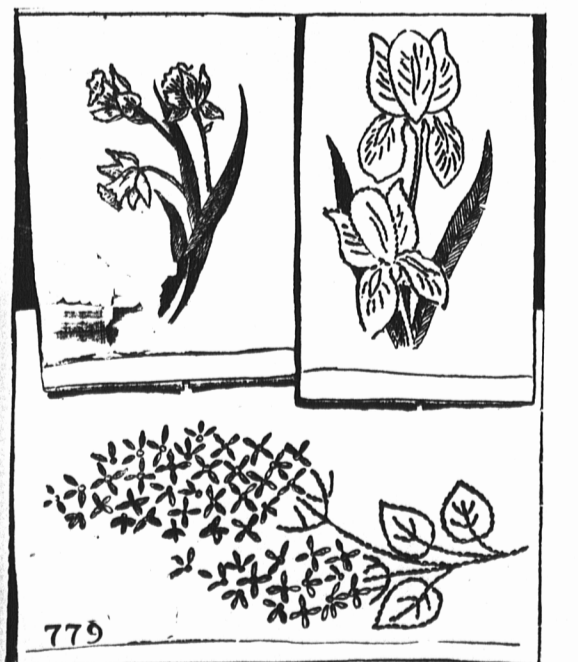

Mrs. E. Farnham Greene of Southport, Connecticut, is renewing many old friendships while the guest of her sister Mrs. Shaw and Dr. H. H. Shaw, Upper Prince Street.

Mrs. Grant Gregory of Moncton was among the welcome visitors here this week visiting her family.

The Queen knows how important a fitting for a wedding gown is to any young bride-to-be. When she arrived at a West End shop and learned a girl was waiting for a try-on she refused to take preference. "I'll wait—the bride comes first," she said.

Miss Jean Gill and Miss Doris Gill have returned from a delightful holiday spent in Fernwood.

whose marriage to Hendry MacLellan is taking place early in September, the staff of the Saint John, N. B. Provincial Red Cross gave a delightful party at the home of Mrs. Burton Cheyne, City Line, West, on a recent evening. Games and music were enjoyed. Miss E. M. Schofield, with appropriate remarks, presented to Miss MacLellan a basket filled with gifts for her kitchen. Later Richard Dole, honorary treasurer of the Provincial Red Cross presented to her a gift of crystal from the staff and volunteer office workers. When refreshments were served Mrs. Helen Smythe and Miss Frances Stoen presided. Mrs. Cheyne was assisted in serving by Mrs. E. P. Linton of Dartmouth, N. S., and Miss Hazel Hennessey.

A survey of recent baptisms in the town of Selby in England reveals that exotic names—usually inspired by the movies—are going out of fashion and that John and Ann (without the 's') are the most popular. The Vicar of Selby, Canon A. E. M. Glover, gave the name Ann to as many as three babies at a single Sunday baptismal service recently. Famous Christian names are most influenced by current literature, the stage, royal children, and contemporary history, as well as by more obscure causes. Florence Nightingale, Barrister Peter and Wendy, Wells' Ann Veronica, are four figures who left a noticeable imprint on the christening records.

During the vice-rear tour of Moncton recently, Royal Highness Princess Alice visited the W. C. A. where prior to afternoon tea, Mrs. Major Ernest H. Green, wife of the divisional commander of the N. B. division of the Salvation Army, and Mrs. Major T. B. Jennings, wife of the supervisor of the Red Shield hostel, were presented among others, Princess Alice recalled Mrs. Green, Barrister Peter visit to Saint John and during her chat spoke about the city. Her Royal Highness said that she was deeply interested in the work of the Grace Salvation Army Hostel in Ottawa and was interested in Salvation Army work in other parts of Canada.

Mrs. A.R. Wise has returned from a pleasant holiday visit to her daughter Mrs. C. W. Donpierre and Mr. Donpierre in Saint John, N. B.

Attendants at the wedding of Miss Pauline Willson to Surgeon-Lieutenant L. E. Prowse, R. C. N. Metropolitan United Church, Toronto, were Dr. Doris Denne, sister of the groom, matron of honour, Miss Dorothy Willson, R. N., and Miss Isabel Willson, bridesmaids; Flying Officer A. J. Denne, R. C. A. F., groomsmen, and Flying Officer F. H. MacLeod, R. C. A. F., and Dr. E. S. MacDonald, ushers. Outside guests included Mr. and Mrs. T. W. L. Prowse and Miss Fairlie Prowse who have been spending a holiday at Mrs. Prowse's old home.

Mrs. Fred Ellis of Rosindale, Mass., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Trainor, Prince Street. Mrs. Ellis is an annual visitor and is greatly enjoying her holiday.

Honoring Miss Catherine MacLean, formerly of Charlottetown.

Among those who entertained Miss Phyllis Much, popular young bride-to-be, this week were, Misses Felice Arsenault and Betty Forsythe at Miss Arsenault's home on School Street, and Misses Eva Irem and Isabel Sinclair, to bridge at Miss Irem's home on Victory Avenue.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES OF CANADA

TORONTO, Aug. 25—Officials of the Health League of Canada, which is making a nationwide survey of venereal disease, state that in the absence of comprehensive official figures, the gravity of the venereal disease situation is indicated by figures published in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

Figures given in the Journal deal with Military Hospitals only and state that in 1941 of 109,541 admissions "venereal disease presents 7.7% and would mean something over 7600 cases which, if averaging 15 days hospitalization, total 113,500 army days lost by Canadian soldiers.

Preliminary surveys of the conditions under which soldiers are infected indicate that at least half the infections are not derived from professional prostitutes and that the problem of preventing infection is largely a civilian one. Communities which permit moral laxity, especially with a regard to rooming house and hotel registration, are squarely charged with responsibility for these sinister conditions.

Failure to deal now with the problem, failure to implement methods of control and adequate police means that in the years to come provincial institutions will spend large sums of taxpayer's money caring for the victims of venereal disease.

BLACK SATIN TURBINS

For candlelight dining with the man in uniform, choose a small black satin turban to flatter your dark sheers. Whether you go to the little restaurant around the corner, or to the main dining-room of a city hotel, the touch of black satin will supply an extra fillip to your costume, the sophisticated touch you want.

To protect polished wood surfaces from the dampness of flower bowls, be sure to place a waxed paper cut-out under the dolly on which dish is set.

Dorothy Dix Says—

THOUSANDS OF MEN RUINED BY MATE'S EXTRAVAGANCE

How Money Is To Be Spent Should Be Discussed Before Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX—My wife and I have arranged our joint income problem satisfactorily, but I have two friends who are up against it because their wives seem to think they have no more responsibility for the expenses of the home than when they were single. Both women have jobs, but they spend every cent they make at the beauty parlor, on clothes, or unnecessary indulgences when they know there isn't enough to meet the bills for food and rent.

One of these men is having his chances for advancement killed by the fact that his wife keeps him continually in debt and dresses far beyond her means, while the other man has gotten himself into trouble over being driven by his wife's extravagance into an illegitimate racket. Believe me, no man has a more desperate problem to solve than how to deal with a wife who is a spender. PETER.

ANSWER—I believe you, nor has any woman a harder problem to solve than a husband who is a tightwad. And there are plenty of both.

That there are thousands of women who ruin their husbands with their extravagance is only too sadly true. All of us know plenty of men who are industrious and capable and good money-makers who are never able to save a cent because their wives throw all they make away on clothes and entertaining and trying to keep up with people who are richer than they.

Sometimes these women are self-indulgent and lazy and not willing to deny themselves anything they fancy. Sometimes they seem to have a mania for spending. They cannot see anything without an irresistible impulse to buy it, and actually cover themselves with things they do not really want. I think that any man who should be foolish if he lets his wife ruin him with her extravagance or makes him work himself to death to pay her bills. I think that when a man realizes he has married a woman with no money sense he should take matters in his own hands, stop all her charge accounts, pay the household bills himself, and give her whatever allowance all heretofore that should be thoroughly understood and agreed upon before marriage. More than any other thing, it determines the happiness and success of every marriage.

When the wife is also a money earner, this complicates the situation, but even then she should be required to pay her proportion of running the house and for the upkeep of the car if she has the use of it as much as her husband does. Certainly she should pay for her own clothes and beauty treatments.

Should pay her share. Certainly she should pay for her own clothes and beauty treatments.

Money is considered so sordid a matter for billing and cooling lovers to discuss in the days of courtship, but it is the most important thing they could possibly talk about. For money is a matter of daily necessity to every married couple, and how it is to be spent and who is to handle the pocketbook is something that should be thoroughly understood and agreed upon before marriage. More than any other thing, it determines the happiness and success of every marriage.

ACCEPT THE GIRL'S VERDICT
 DEAR MISS DIX—At the age of 42 I have been in love with a girl of 20. I have known her for six years, and have been taking her out for three years. Every once in a while we decide to break it off, and I manage to stay away from her for three months, but I'm utterly miserable when I do. She is the one who feels that the difference in our ages is too great, and on her insistence we avoid places where we may meet the people we know. She is the one who has been trying to break off our relationship. She tells me she is not in love with me. Still, when I go back to her she always seems glad to see me and I know that she has great respect and affection for me. In your judgment, is the difference in our ages great enough to be an obstacle to a happy life together? MIKE.

ANSWER—I'm afraid that it is. Twenty-two years is a long gap to cross, and it takes a lot of love to bridge it over. It all depends upon the girl. Sometimes a girl is born, middle-aged. She's never young, not even in the cradle. She's always thoughtful and quiet and sedate. She never wants to be silly or run around, or dance, or do any of the things that most girls are crazy about. Such a girl is perfectly safe in marrying a man twice her age. She is far more congenial with him than she would be with a boy.

But your girl is not of this type, and she honestly tells you so. She is one of the girlish girls who wants to play around with boys who have nimble heels and curly hair and the same line of chatter that she has. She goes about with you only because she has no boy friend to date her, or perhaps because you spend more money on her. She doesn't see the chance and attractions in you that an older woman would.

She tells you frankly that she is not in love with you and doesn't want to marry you. Accept her verdict. Don't try to persuade her into marrying you, for if you do you'll bring great unhappiness upon both of you. Believe me, no man is more miserable than the man who marries a girl he can give her.

A Morning Smile

TWO very modern young men managed, by some error, to get into a local concert. They stood it for some time, then one remarked: "Do you know much about music?"

"Oh, just a bit," replied the other.

"Then can you tell me what that chap's playing?"

"Rather! A violin, old man."

JUST WAIT
 It was her first day at the job, and the new maid was a bit slow in answering the bell. So the master of the house strode into the kitchen. He found her scrubbing the floor.

"You're pretty dirty," he remarked, eyeing her soiled apron.

"Yes, sir," she replied coyly, "but I'm prettier clean."

Letters May Be Written Quickly

Examples of this harmonized furniture are on view in several decorated interiors just opened at one store, with alternatives displayed nearby. One group is developed in oak, not the dark, heavy oak of the past but a modern light finish which fits in with the east. Modern, but not severe, the slight curves and subtle interpretations of straight lines give grace and distinction.

In a bedroom, for example, chests and cupboards of different sizes may be combined in a larger piece according to one's individual needs. Two chests of drawers placed end to end with a long frameless mirror hung over them form a dignified and convenient ensemble. For a living room, low open shelves and cupboards, some sections with diagonal ends to fit them into corners, can be placed in series which extends as household needs grow.

In Different Rooms
 Much of this furniture serves equally well in rooms of different types. A cabinet sideboard, for example, has a cupboard and drawer arrangement which adapts it for use in a bedroom as well as a dining room and it would look well, too, in a living room. Again, an open-shelf cabinet might be placed on another with cupboard doors to form a graceful dresser-like piece.

These combinations, whether longitudinal or vertical, make for compactness and orderly expansion when necessary. Pieces acquired at one time are easily combined with others bought later.

SAVE WATER FROM COOKED VEGETABLES

In this day, when everyone is requested to get all the value out of every bit of food, here are a few ideas.

If your family happens to be one that prefers its fresh vegetables served with just butter, salt and pepper and you have some liquid left over after cooking the vegetables, do not throw it out. Some like to use it for making soup, but in the hot summer soup is not so interesting. So chill it in the ice box and add it to that tomato juice cocktail you serve at dinner, or for the children's lunch. Liquid from green beans or fresh peas is particularly good in this way. In fact, it is not an inviting color, but added to the red tomato juice it gives an unusual flavor and takes on the appealing color.

Then there is a way for using all the apple or peach when you are planning on a pie or salad or an iced peach for dessert. Save the apple cores and the peach or saucepan and make them into a jelly. Even though you only add up with a cup of juice, you will have made use of every scrap and will not be too severely taxed at your time.

This is a good idea for Christmas presents if you place the jelly in little glasses such as are used for more livable than its original but certainly not true to type. Like-wisely, you may use the juice of gingham, and rugged homespun are in rapport with French provincial furniture.

THE COOK'S CORNER

MEAT LOAF
 1 lb. ground beef
 1 1/2 lb. ground pork liver
 1-2 lb. bulk sausage
 6 lbs. wheat germ
 1-2 a large onion, finely chopped
 1 tsp. salt
 1-4 tsp. each pepper and celery salt
 1-2 tsp. sage
 2 lbs. chili sauce
 6 tbs. milk
 Mix all ingredients thoroughly. Turn on to wax paper and mold into a loaf. Bake in a shallow pan in a 350 degree F. oven for 1 1/2 hours.

BOSTON BROWN BREAD
 1 cup cornmeal
 1 cup all-purpose flour
 2 tbs. baking powder
 1 tsp. salt
 1 cup milk
 1 cup Graham flour
 2 cups buttermilk
 3-4 cups molasses
 1-2 cups seeded raisins dredged with flour
 Stir together the white flour, cornmeal, salt, soda and baking powder twice. Mix in Graham flour, molasses, buttermilk and raisins. Pour into four baking powder tins filling each half full. Cover and steam for 2 hours. They may be uncovered and browned in oven, with top heat turned on, for 30 minutes.

When drying clothes in the house during hot weather, use a coat-hanger for each garment and hang them on a line. This will conserve space.

JUST PLAIN MISS PARKER
 Oh, well, she's dead and buried. She's vanished from our sight. No countess she, no duchess. Nor wife of famous knight. She was just plain Miss Parker, She lived (and laughed) next door. She did her own spring cleaning. She washed her kitchen floor. A simple soul, our neighbor. Had little cash to spare. But if you met with trouble You'd find Miss Parker there!

Bazaars she didn't open. She wasn't known to fame. But now she's gone to heaven Earth isn't quite the same.

She was no titled lady, But she had willing feet; God lent her for a season To brighten up our street.

HARMONIZING IN FURNITURE

The home-maker who is buying furniture may well give a thought to the new harmonized pieces. Here is a chance to get away from the old-fashioned conventional of the traditional living or bedroom grouping and at the same time to be sure of a unified effect, says the New York Times.

In these chairs, tables, chests of drawers and cabinets, all in the same wood finish and the same mood of design, there is an accommodation in color and texture. Furthermore, the pieces are adaptable enough to be turned to many different uses and to make themselves at home in dining room, bedroom or living room. This flexibility makes it possible to group newly acquired purchases with what one already has and suggests the formulation of a long-range decorative plan.

Examples of this harmonized furniture are on view in several decorated interiors just opened at one store, with alternatives displayed nearby. One group is developed in oak, not the dark, heavy oak of the past but a modern light finish which fits in with the east. Modern, but not severe, the slight curves and subtle interpretations of straight lines give grace and distinction.

Last year Sheila Moffatt, left, was a school teacher and before that she graduated from the University of British Columbia where she was prominent in music circles. Now, like hundreds of college girls, teachers, society girls, stenographers and librarians, she is a war worker, busy checking parts in a western aircraft plant. Sylvia Anderson, another west coaster, was a student at University of British Columbia last winter. Now, like many of her friends, she is on the job in an aircraft factory, having answered the urgent call for help in war industries.
