"My Wife's Family" A Laugh Tonic

Adapted from a stage play of the same name "My Wife's Family," now playing at the Prince Edward is a regular riot of laughter from start to finish.

The story concerns the troubles of a young married couple with a suspicious, sarcastic, interfering mother-in-law, the unwinding of which is featured by almost continuous laughter. British pictures have been coming ahead fast the past year due to the fact that many British actors and actresses, who have been in Hollywood, have returned to the homeland. This is also true of technicians and directors. This is responsible for the wonderful improvement in every department of British pictures for the past year.

We have been accustomed for such a long time to the Hollywood brands that we do not give enough credit to the brand of pictures now being produced in the Old Land. Treat yourself and the family. See "My Wife's Family," and enjoy its clean humor and laughter.

UNIQUE DECORATION CEREMONY PERFORMED

QUEBEC, Que., May 25—An event unique in the railway history of Canada took place at a banquet given by the veterans of the Levis Division of the Canadian National Railways when eighteen employees, recently retired on pension, were presented with Imperial Service Medals. The feature of the presentation came when Ferd Haince, formerly General Foreman of the erection shop, Riviere du Loup, Que., had the honor of personally decorating his son, Joseph Z. Haince, engineer at Joffre, Que., with a similar Imperial Service Medal which he himself had received some years ago.

Together, father and son had served the Canadian Government and Canadian National Railways almost three quarters of a century. In commenting upon this unusual event, W. A. Kingsland, General Manager, Central Region, who had come from Toronto to be present at the conferring of the long service decorations, congratulated Mr. Haince upon the double distinction which had so worthily been conferred upon himself and his son and spoke of the magnificent records of service which characterized the veterans of the Canadian National Railways and of the great value their services had been to the country at large. The presentation ceremonies were attended by a number of officers of the Central Region.

STOCKPORT, England, May 25—(C.P.)—After suffering for almost 30 years from a broken back William Henry Bradley, 51 years of age, died in the Stockport Hospital. He suffered the injury in an accident in July, 1913. At an inquest, in which a verdict of death by misadventure was given, it was stated that Bradley fractured his spine when a connecting rod between two coal tubs on which he was riding snapped in a Wigan pit in July, 1913. He had told his sister he was riding on the tubs at his own risk and was not entitled to compensation.

Father: "Now you girls have talked for an hour about the new dresses you are going to have. Can't you think of something of a higher order to discuss?"

Girls: "Yes, dad. We're going to take up the hats now."

Professor: "I tell you that knowledge is power."

Student: "No, any more, professor. A thick-headed pugilist can make more in a single fight than a professor can make in a year."

ROAST LION THE LATEST

PARIS, May 25—(C.P.)—Roast lion was served at a banquet in Paris arranged by the managing committee of the Gingerbread Fair which has been running for some time, and the guests at the "lion feed" included several town councillors, journalists, actors and circus performers.

The lion in question was not a victim of big-game hunting in Africa. He was Sultan, the blind lion of a well-known French menagerie. As the oculists who had been consulted were unable to restore the animal's sight, his owner decided to destroy him. The execution was performed gently in the presence of a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. For two days the lion's carcass, with a piece of parsley in his royal mouth, adorned a butcher's window. One of the guests who took part in the feast declared the lion's meat was as white and tender as veal, and that it had a delicate flavor of venison.

Find Assyrian Grave Monument In Old Samaria

NEW YORK, May 25—(C.P.)—Marking the first discovery of its kind in Palestine a steel, or slab of stone, used to indicate a grave, dating apparently from the Assyrian occupation of Samaria, has been found by an archaeological expedition.

The expedition is being conducted by Harvard University in conjunction with the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, the British School of Archaeology and the Palestine Exploration Fund and announcement of the discovery was made by Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, President of the American Friends of the Hebrew University.

The expedition, which has resumed work for the third year at Sabaste, Samaria, has uncovered this month the area of the Israelite palaces of what was formerly the capital of Israel, according to a despatch to Dr. Rosenbach. The next excavating will be done on the site of what appears to be an ancient theatre, which already has been photographed by the Royal Air Force.

Although most of the masonry of the theatre appears to have been removed, foundations, many rows of seats and pavements of the orchestra enclosure are still plainly visible. A number of architectural fragments belonging to the stage building also have been found. The theatre was near the Augustan Temple erected by Herod and is on the northern slope of a hill.

During April, work on the Roman city wall is Samaria uncovered stretches of the foundations with three towers which appeared to belong to the Herodian Period, Dr. Rosenbach said. Repairs on the towers were found to date from a later time. Only a small area remains to be explored to complete the plan of the entire circumference of the Roman city wall. Work is now going on in the Street of Columns.

HONOR COMES SOMEWHAT LATE

LONDON, May 25—(C. P.)—Eighty years after Frederick Denison Maurice was deprived of his professorship at King's College, London, on the ground that he held certain opinions then unorthodox, Dean Inge lectured at the college in connection with the efforts to honor Maurice's name by raising a fund among admirers of his life and work.

He said that the opinions which led to Maurice's deprivation were not now to be thought a disqualification for a chair of divinity in any important college or university.

This is a story of which Mr. Roosevelt, the new President of the United States, is fond. It concerns an American who had had little education, but was very wealthy.

He was touring through England on a sight seeing trip and stopped his magnificent car at the little cottage in Chalfont St. Giles which is associated with John Milton, the poet.

He paid his sixpence and entered, viewing the humble abode with reverent awe. "Is this the place is it?" he mused, almost to himself.

"Yes, sir," replied the caretaker. "This is Milton's cottage, just as it was in his time."

"Milton's!" blurted the American. "Gosh, someone fooled me all right. I thought it was Lipton's!"

A FRIEND

A friend! What is a friend? My friend is he who laughs with me, who weeps with me; one who encourages, praises, rebukes; who eats terrapin and turkey or bread and salt with me; who comes to me at the wedding feast or stands with me beside the coffin; who listens to my hopes, my fears, my aims, my despair; who rejoices in my successes; who does not despise me in my misfortunes.

Commuter Lines Test Operations German Railbus

NEW YORK, May 25—(C.P.)—The Long Island Railroad, one of the world's biggest carriers of suburban commuters, plans to try out a new type of railbus brought here for the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition from Germany. The bus, made by the Austro-Daimler-Fuech Works, is 28.6 feet long, seven feet eight inches wide and eight feet eight inches high. It is propelled by two 80 horse-power motors and develops a top speed of 90 miles an hour.

The car has double control and may be operated from either end. It has a double set of wheels, one of rubber and one of steel, the former being on the inside. It was explained that the rubber wheels carry the weight of the car while the machine itself is directed by the steel wheels just as a locomotive is guided automatically by the rails. The rubber and steel wheels are on distinct axles.

With the car when it arrived was Oskar Hacker, chief engineer of the company which built it, and Josef Mansfelder, chief mechanic. Herr Hacker said six of the buses were now in use in Austria, two in Poland and several are now being shipped to Ecuador. They weigh 20,300 pounds and accommodate 42 passengers.

Pituitary Gland Sets Character Savant's Claim

NEW YORK, May 25—(C.P.)—The anterior lobe of the pituitary gland, situated at the base of the skull, is the master of human personality, Dr. A. S. Blumgarten, chief of the endocrine department, Lenox Hill Dispensary, says.

Knowledge of the activities of the glands of internal secretion has advanced to the stage where the personality of an individual may be predicted with a certain measure of accuracy by an examination of the glandular activities of the growing boy or girl, according to Dr. Blumgarten. Such an examination may lead to improvement of the personality by correction of gland disorders, if they exist, and may enable the physician to advise regarding the kind of occupation a young person should choose.

The anterior pituitary lobe, this scientist says, has two types of cells, one acidular and the other alkaline. The former controls growth and the latter controls sex by the secretion of two separate hormones. The growth hormone is most active before puberty and slows down in inverse proportion to the awakening of the sex instinct.

If the development of sex comes at a relatively early age, the growth begins to slow down and then stops. Such an individual will be of the active, aggressive, materialistic type, very practical-minded, full of initiative and bound to gain his objective. Napoleon was such a type.

Napoleon's anterior pituitary growth hormone was crowded out by his overactive alkaline hormone. When the secretion of this hormone slowed down with age and could no longer function as before, he was "doomed to meet his Waterloo," Dr. Blumgarten maintains.

When the acid growth hormone is more active, the alkaline hormone is correspondingly suppressed ed and the individual will be tall and thin. Dr. Blumgarten said such a person would be at a distinct disadvantage in competition with his short-statured, broad-boned "go-getting" brother and would be most happy in occupations that afford an outlet for his imagination, such as the arts, music, literature, the ministry, teaching. President Wilson was of this type.

"Why do you call your house a bungalow?"

"Well, if it isn't a bungalow, what is it? The builder made a blunge of it and I still owe for it."

"Do you know, John," remarked Mrs. Jags, as her husband stumbled upstairs, "that I've been awake for hours waiting for you to come home from the club."

"If that isn't just like a woman!" growled Jags. "And I've been at the club for hours waiting for you to go to sleep."
