French Canadian Horses

(Experimental Farms Note)

It is not generally known that the largest horse breeding establishment east of Manitoba is situated at St. Joachim, County of Montmorency, Province of Quebec. This farm was started by the united efforts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, (Experimental Farms Branch), the Quebec Department of Agriculture, and the French Canadian Horse Breeders' Association, and is under the direct supervision of Mr. Gus Langelier who is also Superintendent of the Cap Rouge Experimental Station.

In 1912, a few French Canadian mares were bought by this station, amongst which was Helene, due to foal in the spring of 1913. She dropped Albert de Cap Rouge, now admitted to be the best stallion of the breed. When only 22 months old, she was used on a small but select band of mares and, from the very first, it was easily seen that it was an excellent and prepotent sire. Encouraged by the quality of the growing youngsters, the department enlarged operations until there was insufficient land available at Cap Rouge; then some 500 acres of land were leased from the Quebec Seminary at St. Joachim, 25 miles east of Quebec City.

Thirty brood mares were then bought with the intention of starting an experimental station in the breeding, feeding, housing and management of horses, also with the aim of regenerating the French Canadian breed. Operations were gradually enlarged until about 100 head, young and old, were kept, this number being decided upon as the maximum, and from 15 to 25 mares drop foals each year.

Amongst the projects are comparison of in-breeding, line breeding, and out-crossing; the cost of horse labor; the cost of raising colts until of working age; wintering the horses cheaply; wintering in the stock in single-boarded open-front sheds; work versus no work for brood mares, and raising autumn foals. Incidentally, further valuable information is gathered. For instance, a mare bought in foal to an outside stallion dropped a colt which had to be gelded because a cull, whilst the next year, to the service of Albert de Cap Rouge, she gave a youngster which has since been a winner at the larger exhibitions. This shows the value of a good stallion.

MRS. P. J. CAIRNS

A sad gloom was cast over new-light and vicinity, Tuesday morning, when it was learned that the wife of Mr. P. J. Cairns had passed away after a long and lingering illness which she bore without a murmur of complaint. Although long her days yet her Saviour will ed otherwise and she was taken from this world of woe and suffering to be with Him forever more.

The late Mrs. Cairns was a very esteemed neighbour and friend and their loss shall be deeply felt in the community where she lived. Her childhood days were spent in New Annapolis where many recall and speak about her sunny disposition and her ambitious nature. Many are the kind tributes paid to her departed soul far and near. A large crowd gathered at her late residence and funeral chapel Thursday morning where her funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Father Smith who attended her during her long sickness.

She leaves besides a sorrowing husband, a loving mother and a family of brothers and sisters, to mourn the loss of a devoted wife, loving daughter and dear sister, who will long remember "Annie" even after years and years have rolled away.
