Refreshments were served and the prizes were won as follows: Ladies, Miss Leona McEntee; gentleman's, Mr. G. S. McKenna. On Feb. 9th the club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Murphy with a good attendance and the evening was a success in every way. Miss Margaret Delghan, won the ladies prize and Mr. Alfred Dunn, the gentleman's prize. Luncheon was served at the end of play.—E.

—AUCTION CLUB—The auction forty five club met for their weekly play in St. James Church hall, Summerside, on Wednesday evening, February 11th with a fair crowd in attendance. After the playing was concluded refreshments was served by the ladies and a social hour was enjoyed by all. The prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies, Mrs. Peter Delghan, gentleman's, Mr. Herman Lambe. The consolation prize went to Mr. Frank Delghan. The freeze out was won by Miss Minerva Curly.—E.

—FILL THE PITCHES—Pitches on winter roads of P. E. I. are a sort of pest with which we are afflicted to a greater or lesser degree. They might be classed in the same category as corns and ingrowing toenails. They take considerable joy out of life. On the other hand, they may be a bit of a blessing in disguise by reason of the sudden jar which they cause stirring up our sluggish livers and other innards. Most people will agree that there are sufficient undulations for health in an ordinary sleigh ride on a comparatively smooth road—that it is not necessary to encounter a sea of ripples like rapids on a mountain stream. We are pleased to report that a grand "pro bono publico" spirit in regard to filling pitches pervades the people of Kensington, and contiguous districts. The pitches are filled practically as soon as they become noticeable. The writer had the pleasure of a sleigh drive from Kensington to Summerside recently and took note of the fact that all pitches en route had been filled—denoting a patriotic pride in smooth roads by the dwellers all along the line.—K.

ANGLICAN SERVICE—Crapaud, Saint John's Church, Wednesday midweek service, 8 p. m.

TREACHEROUS FOOTING—Saturday's thaw with the resulting slush followed by frost during the night left the sidewalks in a very icy and slippery condition yesterday. Ponds of water which had become dammed up on the previous day became miniature rinks, while supersaturated snow frozen on the sidewalks made footing very treacherous. A few citizens with more foresight than others drained the water on the sidewalks in front of their premises into the street. Slush on the pavements made motor traffic difficult.

GORMLEY-MCGEE—An enjoyable event took place at Charlottetown on Feb. 11th, when Miss Annie May Gormley, of this city, was united in marriage to John Richard McGee, of Dorchester Street, Charlottetown, the ceremony being performed by Right Rev. Monsignor Maurice McDonald. The bride was attended by Mrs. Bessie McCloskey and the groom was supported by Mr. John McDonald. The bride looked charming, being dressed in white satin with hat to match and carried a beautiful bouquet of white flowers. The bridesmaid was attired in an old rose satin dress and carried a lovely bouquet of winter lilies. After the ceremony a sumptuous supper was very much enjoyed by many friends at the home of Mrs. Bessie McCloskey and the evening wiled away in dancing, singing and other pleasant amusements. The couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents, which showed the esteem in which they are held by many friends. All join in wishing this young couple a happy wedded life.

Worship Of The True God Is Needed Today

oo Much Discussion Of Moral And Religious Questions Today Tends To Lower The Standard Of The Thought Of God, Declares Rev. R. Moorhead Legate, B. D.

Preaching in St. James Church on Sunday morning, Rev. R. Moorhead Legate, B. D., appealed for a return to the worship of the True God, claiming that one of the things the Church member today needs very much to cultivate is a purer, higher, holier thought of God, too much time being taken up with the discussion of moral and religious questions and with the organization and administration of so many practical efforts in the name of religion. Taking as his text Isaiah I, 17, 15, "Thus saith the High and Holy One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy: I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit," the preacher said:

The prophet Isaiah is here trying to do one of the hardest things it has ever fallen to the lot of a man to do. He is trying to correct the wrong thought his people have of God. The history of the Jews is just the story of how a nation can rise and fall in its religious beliefs. At one time it would be on the high wave-crest of nearness to Him; at another it would be in the deep trough of distance from Him. Just at the point in this nation's history to which our text applies, their thought of God had fallen very low indeed; so low that many a Jew leaving Palestine, say, on a business journey, would consider that he had to leave God behind him in Palestine and would not find Him until he got back home again.

No Easy Task

You can see that Isaiah's task was no easy one. He knew what he was working for—he knew the many difficulties that stood in the way of his success—but he stuck faithfully to his purpose because he knew what issues hung on it. He knew, as you and I know, that the ideals and conduct of a nation rise or fall in accordance with their thought of God. The greatest force to shape the life and character of the individual or nation is its thought about God. A depraved conception of God makes depraved individuals and a depraved people. The ideals and conduct of any community just rise or fall according to what their thought of God is. The best starting-point, therefore, from which to reach all that is good and true is to gain and keep as correct a thought of God in our hearts as we possibly can. And this picture of God that Isaiah gives us in our text can do a tremendous lot to put our thought of God right.

Too Much Discussion And Organization

And the first thing the text does is to remind us of the overwhelming majesty and holiness of God. "I dwell," says God, "in the high and holy place." I am certain that one of the things the church member needs very much to cultivate today is a purer, higher, holier thought of God. The standard of our religion today is too intellectual and too ethical. We are taking up so much time with the discussion of moral and religious questions, and with the organization and administration of so many practical efforts in the name of religion, that we are leaving ourselves hardly any time for an immediate personal experience of God—for meditation, devotion, true worship. And we are sorely impoverishing our character and stunting the growth of our soul by the neglect. Of course true religion must express itself in fruitful service for humanity—but, devotion is the mother of service. And the richest service must flow from a heart that is in closest contact with the heart of God, warm with His nearness, and thrilled with a sense of His majesty and holiness.

Religion Lacks Depth

The religion of today lacks spiritual depth because it has lost too much the sense of eternal things. For our souls' sakes we need to win back the lost possession of the Divine Majesty and holiness; to think more of God the only great, the only good, the only wise, the only Holy. Do you remember, when we were boys and girls, we loved to hear and read about Kings and Queens and Princes and Princesses? In tales like that our youthful imaginations ran riot. To us the King wore ever a crown studded with priceless gems, sat on a throne of massive gold, swayed nations and led armies by a whisper, and was everything that was noble, brave, wise and good. We measured all wealth by his wealth, all strength and power and beauty by his. And it did us good to think of him. We wanted to be like him. We would emulate the virtues of our storied

"The Good News"

The God who lived in heaven, could also live in the human heart—"I dwell in the high and holy place—with him also, with him also who hath a humble and contrite heart." There is what makes the gospel, "the good news." A king on a throne so high, with a nature so holy that our best winged thought could never find Him, our keenest mathematics could never measure Him. A Spirit so holy and pure that the sunlight is in shadow when put side by side with His brightness—and yet a King whose throne is so set that its steps reach down to where the humble man lays his head, and up and down which the angels of God ascend and descend continually. A king who laid aside His crown of glory that He might assume a crown of thorns for our redemption. A king who has tasted my lot, knows my trouble and sorrow, enters into my longing for rest and peace. A King who has two homes—His highest heaven and my humble heart. Is not this the God we need—a God massive, grand and holy—and yet so approachable and accessible that we can call Him "Our Father" and give him a home in our hearts?

Elevation Of Thought Needed

We do need elevation of thought about God. We cannot have full satisfaction in Him as our Father, Saviour, Helper, Comforter, until we have raised Him in our constant thinking up to the height on which these glorious words put Him. "Thus saith the High and Holy One who inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy: I will dwell in the high and holy place."

Emperor And Father

One of the great Roman Emperors had returned from making great foreign conquests, and was carrying out the usual triumphal progress through the streets of Rome at the head of his victorious army. At one point in the procession, where the applauding crowds were densest, a little girl ran out into the open street, trying to reach the Emperor's chariot. The soldiers stopped her, telling her that it was not allowed that anyone should approach the Emperor. But struggling from the hands of the guarding soldiers, she cried out "He may be your Emperor, but he is my father"—and she reached her father's side. "Thus saith the High and Holy One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy, I dwell in the high and holy place—with him also, with her also, who is of a humble and contrite heart."

In the evening the Rev. Mr. Legate gave a special address to young men and women on "Graduating in the University of Life," in which he delivered a timely and inspiring message on life's work and objective.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. JOHN J. MACDOUGALL

The death of Mrs. John J. MacDougall occurred at her late home, 40 Brookside St., Glace Bay, C. B., on Saturday morning, Feb. 14. Besides her sorrowing husband, she leaves to mourn one son, D. H. MacDougall of Stellarton, N. S., former Vice-President and General Manager of the British Empire Steel Corporation, and six daughters, Mrs. Michael Laffin, New Waterford, C. B., Mrs. A. A. Dysart, Bouctouche, N. B., Mrs. (Dr.) I. E. Croken, Charlottetown, Mrs. (Dr.) J. A. O'Regan, New York, Mrs. Felham Winslow, Montreal, Mrs. Evans Carroll, Glace Bay. One son John J. MacDougall predeceased her a year ago last November, at the time of his death he was General Superintendent of Mines for British Empire Steel Corporation.

In Heaven And At Home

We can never hope to fathom the mystery or apprehend the holiness of God—and because he knows that He makes Himself known to the humble and contrite heart. James Russell Lowell, the poet, brings this truth beautifully home in one of his poems. A great Eastern philosopher had lost the consciousness of God in his heart, and wished sorely to get it back again. He thought, the only way to achieve this was to make a pilgrimage to Mount Sinai, where Moses had seen the face of God, and where he too might hope to renew his vision of the divine glory. Accordingly he set out for Sinai and after many hardships stood on the sacred mount and prayed God to reveal Himself. He waited for something striking and wonderful to happen—some flash of lightning that would reveal the divine presence—some peal of thunder that would echo the divine voice. But none of these things happened. Disconsolate he fell on his knees. When suddenly his downcast eyes descried a little violet growing in a cleft of the rock in which he knelt. And then he remembered that, on the morning he left home on his journey, his little daughter had picked for him a nosegay of violets that grew beside the door of his cottage. Violets on Mount Sinai and violets at home. The God who had shown to Moses His glory on Sinai could also be seen and found at home.

(Canadian Press) SACKVILLE, N. B., Feb. 15—The Moncton Athletics defeated Sackville one to nothing here last night and won a berth in the final playoff with the Amherst Ramblers for the championship of the Central Hockey League. Athletics won the round of home and home games between the third and second place teams by three goals to one.

Rheumatism Routed. Rapid Relief. Mr. Arthur Padgett, of Barnsley, writes:—"For the last few years I have suffered with rheumatism, also severe attacks of indigestion. I suffered great pain in the back and tried various remedies without relief. A friend advised me to try at once Carter's Little Liver Pills—this I did and received immediate relief. I am a miner, and I strongly recommend your valuable pills to all sufferers of rheumatism, indigestion and constipation." Take Carter's Little Liver Pills for sick headache and indigestion.
