PERSONALS

Messrs Louis Brehaut and Eldon McKenzie motored to Souris on Thursday on a business trip.

Miss Edith McKenzie, Fortune, is visiting at Bedford the guest of Mrs. Morris.

Mrs. Fred Beers and son Kenneth left for Moncton yesterday after a pleasant visit with Heath and Mrs. Vesey, York.

Miss Viola Beers, R. N., leaves Saturday morning to resume her duties in Montreal.

Mr. Arthur West Vesey, York, is spending his vacation in Moncton and St. John.

Miss Hilda McCannell, Pisquid, is spending a few days at York the guest of Mrs. Melvin Jay.

Hammond and Mrs. Mellett, Boise City, Idaho, spent yesterday at York visiting friends and relatives.

The Guardian regrets to learn that the condition of Mrs. Norman Brown Covehead, does not improve as fast as her friends would wish.

Miss Mary C. Daming of N. Y., is visiting at her grandfathers, Fort Augustus and her cousins in Charlottetown.

Mr. Elmer Campbell of Rollo Bay representing the International Harvesting Co., was in Charlottetown on a business trip.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Thos. and Mrs. Woolridge, Thursday evening at Cove Head, the occasion being the departure of their daughter Mrs. Perry C. Wilson and Miss Florence Woolridge to the U. S. The former to Cambridge and the latter to Medfield.

On Monday evening, Aug. 25th. at St. Patrick's Hall, Souris, before a large and appreciative audience the Elmer Parnell party delivered a real musical treat to the people of Souris and surrounding country. The party consisted of Mr. Elmer Parnell, Mrs. McKay, Mrs. Fraser and Messrs. Fraser, Shiers and Miner, all of Amherst, N. S. The audience were enraptured by the different solos both vocal and instrumental and the quartettes which were so beautifully sung. The mixed quartette "Steal Away Manny, Negro Spiritual" was exceptionally well rendered. Mr. Dean Miner's solos were especially pleasing displaying the skill and technique of the master musician. The concert was presented under the auspices of the St. James United Church and a substantial sum was realized from the door receipts, the candy sale and cakes which were so skillfully sold by the genial and mirth provoking auctioneer, Mr. C. C. Carleton. We hope that in the not distant future we may have further opportunity of listening to another program from the talented Parnell party.—G.

The Robert Raikes Monument In England

(The First Sunday Schools) tutored beings I employ." It may be said here that Raikes did not found the first Sunday school, but Raikes's claim to pre-eminence is that he waited for three years to prove his system and then set to work on a publicity scheme to spread the good work. He wrote it up in his own journal first, modestly refraining from mentioning his own name and to his joy it was copied in the London Chronicle. Numerous enquiries came to him and a letter he sent to Colonel Townley, of Shetfield, was published by the latter in the Gentleman's Magazine. The result was that John Wesley could write in his journal in 1784 that he found these schools springing up everywhere. Raikes succeeded beyond others because he was not only a deeply religious man, but also an enterprising journalist and a liberal-minded newspaper proprietor.

The most striking demonstration was at the festival of Painswick, near Gloucester, in 1786, an event usually attended with all sorts of disorders, especially drunkenness. Through his paper and printed leaflets Raikes invited the people to "come and see a novel sight," and on Sunday, September 24, they flocked from all parts. After the service an old man of 80 years of age said to Raikes, "Oh, sir, that I should live to see the day when poor children are befriended!" The collection amounted to £57, and a carpenter, in gratitude, put a guinea in the plate and brought four more afterwards, "since," he said, "it would have seemed ostentatious for a man in my position to put them in the plate."

About Christmas-time, 1786, Queen Charlotte, who had heard of the work from Mrs. Sarah Trimmer, a famous authoress, summoned Raikes to Windsor Castle for an interview, and as a result gave her cordial support to the movement, exhibiting it in a practical form by starting a school at Windsor. Mrs. Trimmer began others in London and got George III to visit one at Brentford, of which visit she wrote.

"The King won the hearts of the children by his kind and condescending behavior. A general joy prevails among the conductors of Sunday schools."

"No plan," declared the great Adam Smith, "so simple and promising for the improvement of manners has been devised since the days of the Apostles."

It was chiefly responsible for the fact that the French Revolution of 1793 had no repetition in England and if, seven years before, there were 200,000 young people being instructed in the Scriptures there would be nearly half a million when the Revolution occurred. Amongst other precepts, this large proportion of the population would have been taught—"Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the King." Raikes should have his place in an Empire Parthenon.

The most notable development of his work was the founding of societies for the educating of the poor, the chief of which were "The Royal Lancasterian Institution" and "The National Society for the Promotion of Education of the Poor," and just as his efforts were being crowned with success and his dreams realized, Raikes died on April 5, 1811. Raikes lies buried in the family vault in the crypt of St. Mary de Crypt and a plain tablet near his grave is thus inscribed.

"Sacred to the memory of Robert Raikes, Esquire (late of this city) Founder of Sunday Schools, who departed this life April 5, 1811, aged 75 years.

"When the ear heard me, then it blessed me, and when the eye saw me it gave witness to me, because I delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless, and him that had none to help him. The blessing of him that was ready to perish came upon me, and I caused the widow's wail to sing for joy."—Job 39: 11-13. Also Anne Raikes, relict, who died March 9, 1823, aged 85.—F. J. Ashley, in Johannesburg Star.

Senator Brookhart said at a banquet in Washington: "This new legislation for the farmer's benefit is all wind. It's like the story.

"A poor, weak, from hunger, collapsed in Main street. A crowd gathered round his prostrate form, and then three or four chaps began to shove the crowd back.

"Give him air!" they yelled. "Give him air!"

"At that the poor down-and-out raised his head from the sidewalk, and laughed short and bitter, and said:

"'Air? Give me air? Why, gentles, I've had nothing but air for the last three days.'"

An old manuscript recently came to light says that Columbus was born in Milan, not Genoa. It does not, however, clear him of the more serious charge of discovering America.—"The New Yorker."

MR. JOSEPH MEADE

On June 28th, at the home of his daughter Mrs. L. M. Jenken, Niagara Falls, there occurred the death of one of King's County's well known and popular men, namely the late Joseph Meade.

Mr. Meade was a resident of Rollo Bay, until a few years ago when he and his wife moved to Fortune to be near to two of his daughters. About two years ago Mrs. Meade was called to the Great Beyond and shortly after that Mr. Meade went to reside with his daughter Hannah, at Niagara Falls. Up till a short time previous to his death he enjoyed wonderful health, but the call came when he was taken ill with a paralytic stroke from which the best of care and medical skill could not restore him. The funeral was held from Niagara on June 30th, under the auspices of the L. O. L. of which order he was a life long member. The body was brought to the home of his daughter Mrs. Wesley Jackson, Fortune, and subsequently the funeral, also under the auspices of the L. O. L., was held to Bay Fortune Cemetery.

The hymns Safe In The Arms of Jesus; Just as I Am, and the nineteenth psalm The Lord's My Shepherd, were beautifully rendered by the choir.

Mr. Meade was a kindly neighbor and deeply respected by all who knew him. He was a splendid citizen, ever anxious to help in anything that tended towards progress. He will be greatly missed by his numerous friends both here and abroad. He is survived by five daughters Mrs. Wm. E. Burke, (Addie) Niagara, Mrs. L. M. Jenken, (Hannah) Niagara; Mrs. Wm. Ward (Florrie) Pennsylvania; Mrs. Wesley Jackson (Carrie) and Mrs. Percy Burke, (Etta) Fortune Bridge, to whom we extend deepest sympathies.

The New York State Reformatory at Elmira boasts a weekly newspaper published by the inmates, a recent issue of which contained a parting message to a temporary boarder who was about to return to civil life. Its concluding sentence is commended as a model to those who, in writing testimonials, aim at avoiding the Scylla of untruthfulness and the Charybdis of a libel action: "Knowing you as we do, we have no doubt about your future success.—Manchester Guardian."

MALPEQUE

The coming of Mr. Paul Kollins, well known reader and actor, was undoubtedly the principal event of the season in this place. It is seldom, if ever, that one has the opportunity here of hearing such a talented reader, and general regret is felt by all that he has intimated that this is his farewell visit to the Maritimes—at least for some years.

Mr. Kollins's presentation of "Macbeth" was most realistic and called for great applause. Every selection on the programme was choice and many of them carried with them a moral that cannot fail to make a marked impression on the boys and girls and the older folk in his audience; especially was this true of his selections The Snow Bird and Father and Son which were given in a manner that was possible only for an artist to give.

The musical selections by Mrs. Preston Kennedy and Mrs. Harold Leard were splendid numbers and formed a pleasing variation the former singing "The Little Damsel" while the latter gave the solo "Kashmiri" Indian lyric. Mrs. James A. Campbell was the piano accompanist for both selections.

The Choir of Princetown United is to be congratulated on being instrumental in bringing to this place an artist of such high order as Mr. Kollins, thus giving the public a literary treat of such unusual merit. The following is the list of teachers:

Fanning School: Miss Alice Fraser and Miss Margaret Waller.
Hamilton: Miss Victoria MacLean, Darnley: Mr. Gordon Rice and Miss Anna Coady.
Sea View: Miss Helen Rogers and Miss Annie Woodside.
Baltic: Miss Jane Manderson.—M.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ramsay and family were among the motorists to Charlottetown exhibition on Wednesday. On their return, they were accompanied by Miss Ella Simpson, R. N., Charlottetown. Miss Simpson will spend a holiday with their friends here.

Mrs. Harry L. Hodgson entertained the following guests during the week: Mrs. J. A. Cameron, Mr. Allan and Mr. Jack Cameron of Charlottetown, Mrs. B. Stratton Barie, Vermont, Mr. and Mrs. W. Winters, of Montreal, Mr. G. W. Gardner and Mr. Tom Morris, of Charlottetown, Mrs. Minnie Wright, Montreal, Miss Georgie Green, Summerside, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Furlong, Toronto.

Dr. Pearl Hopgood, Dartmouth, N. S., and Miss Vera Smith, supervisor of the Nova Scotia Hospital, returned by motor to their respective duties in Dartmouth, after a pleasant holiday here with Mr. and Mrs. Hume Hopgood.

Mr. and Mrs. David McKinnell and son Master Jimmie of Norfolk Downs, Mass., Mrs. Harold Bedwin, Sydney, N. S., and Mrs. Oriel Miller, Kentville, N. S., are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Ramsay, Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Howatt, of Augustine Cove, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wright, of Centreville, were recent guests at the home of Mr. Percy Stewart, Hamilton.
