Her Majesty Fond of Chocolates

LONDON, Oct. 1. — Here is an interesting little tale about Queen Mary. It's just a deeply human touch we want to tell you about. Unlike most English women, she has a sweet tooth. She does not like to have no state occasions on her programme, no royal progresses to make, no foundation stones to lay, no hospitals to open—but just to sit in her sunny sitting room in Buckingham Palace and do some sewing for her granddaughters—and with a box of "chocs" at her side.

And she buys them herself. There is none of this haughty business of saying:

"Joan, will you please ring up Umpty and Umpty and tell them to send a two pound box of my usual and charge them to me?"

No. Queen Mary likes to do her own buying, and she is one of the best shoppers in England. In fact, she enjoys it, just as much as the ordinary woman. Moreover, she is a scientific shopper. This means that she knows what prices are fair and she only pays fair prices. She wants value for money. She is not like some women who expect to be strung simply because they are rich and take it all as a part of the game.

Good Shopper
So it is with this chocolate business. It is good for the King's digestion.

ness. There are plenty of swank places in and around Bond street where the prices for candy are from $1.75 a pound and up. The upper you are in society, the upper the prices. But Queen Mary, like a good shopper, does not patronize them. Not a half mile from Buckingham Palace there is a little shop, whose front is painted in bright blue and orange. It is run by women, and all the chocolates are hand made. Only the best stuff is put into them. And, after they are made, they are carefully packed away in chests of drawers where no dust and no insect can get at them. The prices vary from $1.25 to $1.50 per pound.

New Favorite

It is this little shop that the Queen patronizes. For herself she prefers chocolates with soft centres. She does not like the hard, scrunchy kind. Her latest favorite is a chocolate with a coffee cream centre. Also she is partial to chocolates which have inside them candied orange or tangerine peel. If the owners put out a new chocolate, they always offer samples for the Queen to try.

Also, like a good wife, she does not forget her husband. She usually takes home with her some chocolates with ginger centres. Ginger is good for the King's digestion.

Also he happens to like ginger, so that eating this kind of chocolate is no medicine for him.

New Noiseless Engine Designed

An engine that will make even a flyover almost noiseless has been designed by Prof. A. M. Low, noise-hating young British scientist, who has for many years specialized in the design of internal combustion engines.

Low's latest design provides for the nearest thing to a completely noiseless car engine yet designed. It will have only two gears, and one of those is for emergencies only, the car supposedly running on one gear under normal circumstances. Objectionable sound is eliminated on the continuous noise theory.

The idea occurred to Low while studying the causes of mine explosions. He noted that there were usually several separate explosions in a mining accident, not a single loud detonation, as often believed. After considerable experimenting, Low succeeded in tracing the manner in which sound travelled through mine tunnels during an explosion. Then he conceived the idea of building an engine, the explosions of which were to be "controlled" as nature controls the explosions in a mine, and in the same manner as they are controlled in a Diesel engine. But whereas —PROMINENT CITIZEN PASSES—Citizens of Summerside learned with deep regret of the death in the early hours of Saturday morning of Mr. William A. Stewart, at the age of 67 years, at the residence of his son, D. O. Stewart on Notre Dame Street. Mr. Stewart was born at Summerside the son of the late David Ross and Fannie Stewart. He married Miss Emma Blanche McPhail, who predeceased him, April 19th 1929. The deceased was educated at the public school and afterwards graduated from the Mitchell School, of Cutting, New York. In 1885 he opened a tailoring establishment at Cape Traverse in partnership with the late Jack Arnett. In 1887 he removed to Summerside and took a position as head cutter with the late David Stewart, who conducted a men's furnishing and tailor shop in the old Crabbe Block. Shortly after he purchased the business and has since conducted a custom tailoring business very successfully until his retirement two years ago. Mr. Stewart's pleasing personality won for him many friends and his genial smile and pleasant companionship will be much missed by his old associates. He was a staunch Presbyterian and a member of the local I. O. O. F. and received the veteran's jewel from that organization. He leaves to cherish his memory two sons, Colin H. and Donald O. and one sister, Lucy (Mrs. K. F. Ellis) all residing in Summerside and to whom much sympathy is extended. The funeral will take place today at 2 p. m. from the residence of his son, D. O. Stewart on Notre Dame Street.—S Diesel engines are too heavy for use in the average automobile. Low's engine can be built for even the smallest cars at no greater cost than the everyday engine is built today. The new Low engine is also approximately the same size as the ordinary automobile engine.

Games and music were indulged in and later they adjourned to the Martha Ann tea rooms, where a dainty supper was spread and heartily enjoyed. Earlier in the evening Miss Marlett was the guest of honor at a birthday party at her home, where she was the recipient of some lovely gifts.—S

—HONOR NEIGHBORS — The neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Reeves, Freetown, took cognizance of the Golden Jubilee of their marriage a few days ago. Mr. D. M. Bernard very ably discharged the duties of chairman. Mr. Lewis Cairns read the address and Mr. Scott Cairns, in the name of the donors, presented each with a $10 gold coin. Mr. Darrel Picketts acknowledged the event in the name of the recipients. Rev. J. W. Nicholson and others made some very appropriate remarks. A program of vocal and instrumental music was rendered and the rousing chorus, "For They are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung with animation. "Golden Wedding Day" was sung in silvery tones, and other musical numbers were capably rendered. Delicately luncheon was served, and thus the whole being was gratified.—Y
