Quarterly Division Sons of Temperance

The third quarterly session of the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance was held in the Odd-fellows Hall, O'Leary, on the afternoon of Tuesday, Aug. 25th.

The attendance was quite large and the session was an inspiring and enthusiastic one throughout.

In the absence of a number of the Grand Officers, their places were filled by other members of the Grand Division.

The following is the list of officers in charge of the afternoon session:

Grand Worthy Patriarch, Rev. R. Hensley Stavert.
Grand Worthy Associate, Rev. C. W. Waterworth.
Grand Conductor, Mr. Alfred Dignan.
Grand Chaplain, Mr. Allison Profit.
Grand Sentinel, Mr. Rayford Locke.
Past Grand Worthy Patriarch, Rev. A. F. Baker.

The following were the committees appointed:

State of the Order—Rev. A. F. Baker and Messrs. A. J. Matheson, Ralph McCaul and Allison Profit.
Finance Committee—Messrs. W. E. Brooks, Alfred Dignan and Rayford Locke.
Resolutions Committee—Rev. R. Hensley Stavert, Rev. C. Waterworth, Mr. W. T. Costain.
Programme Committee—Mrs. A. P. Baker, Lloyd Henderson and Miriam McNeill.
Enrollment Committee—Irma Palmer and Ruth Baker.

The reports of the Grand Worthy Patriarch, the Grand Secretary and the Grand Treasurer, were all quite encouraging.

This grand old order which has braved the battle and the breeze for upwards of one hundred years is still doing splendid work. There was perhaps never a time in the history of our land when the type of work that this order of the Sons of Temperance is doing is more needed than it is today. We have in this order a splendid training school along the line of things that are most worth while for the young people of the oncoming generation.

In the absence of the Grand Patron the report of the work being done by the Bands of Hope was given by the Grand Worthy Patriarch. As the years go by our people are coming more and more to realize the great importance of the work among our boys and our girls. When the principles of total abstinence have been instilled into the lives of those who are young in years and have taken the pledge against the use of intoxicating liquors, it is only in very rare cases that these pledges have been broken.

The Grand Division is urging upon Rev. C. Waterworth, the Educational Secretary of the Temperance Federation, the necessity of spending as much of his time as he can spare from the rest of his work in organizing Bands of Hope wherever possible.

During the afternoon two new members were initiated into the membership of the Grand Division.

Considerable time was spent in discussing plans for aggressive work in the future. At the annual session of the National Division held recently in Sydney, N. S., it was agreed that by the year 1944 when the old Order shall have reached its centenary milestone, we should strive to have, within our ranks, at least one hundred thousand members.

An appeal is being sent out to all members of the Order to get ready as soon as possible to do their share of this work so that the reaching of this goal in 1944 will be made possible.

The Grand Worthy Patriarch, Rev. R. Hensley Stavert, read an inspiring letter from the Most Worthy Patriarch, Mr. H. Philip Newcombe, Halifax, N. S., bearing on the work of the Order. In the earlier part of his letter the Most Worthy Patriarch expressed his deep regret at not being able to be present at O'Leary because of circumstances over which he had no control.

In the latter part of this letter he wrote as follows: "The National Division is anxious that the proud position of Prince Edward Island as a prohibition province be maintained, and as a member of the Nova Scotia Grand Division I can assure you of our heartfelt interest here always. We must work together. I hope that you will take serious consideration of the launching of our century campaign to the end that each division member will take it to heart to bring a new member into their division."

"The work of Satan is behind the liquor traffic. It is corrupting both the individual and the nation. It has even bound shackles upon some of our christian institutions and many christian people are being ing led astray by false argument. So we must be vigilant and we must be courageous in pushing daring measures, for God is with us. The only failure can be that we neglect to act. Let us go forward together with increased faith, for of such will be the measure of our triumph."

At this session of the Grand Division a number of resolutions dealing with the different phases of temperance work were adopted. These were as follows:

1. That we the members of the Grand Division and the visitors who have been present at this session of the Grand Division hereby extend our hearty thanks to the citizens of O'Leary for the kindness in entertaining us so splendidly when privileged to sojourn for a while in their bright little town.
2. That we appoint a committee of three to work in conjunction with a proposed committee made up of representatives of other temperance societies and social service organizations for the purpose of working out a definite programme of temperance work for our Educational Secretary to cover the whole province. We would suggest that this committee be prepared to submit a feasible programme at the next annual meeting of the Temperance Federation which is generally held in the latter part of September. The committee was later appointed and consists of Rev. R. Hensley Stavert, Grand Worthy Patriarch, Rev. A. F. Baker, Past Grand Worthy Patriarch and Rev. T. R. Goudge, Grand Chaplain.
3. That we as a Grand Division must pay more attention to the organizing of Bands of Hope wherever possible so that we shall thus be able to begin to train our boys and our girls from their earliest years in the principles of total abstinence and on up to the later years of manhood and womanhood and that we urge upon our Educational Secretary that he devote as much time as he possibly can to this very important work.
- Also that we urge our Sunday School Superintendents and teachers to put forth a much greater effort to teach temperance to their pupils. And further, that we request all of our Christian leaders—our ministers, our Sunday School superintendents, teachers and others—to give all of our young people the opportunity of taking up a study of those temperance lessons as prepared by the members of the W.C.T.U.
4. That whereas the Fish and Game Association by united effort have succeeded in procuring the services of ten special Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen for the protection of our migratory birds such as Willets Godwits, Avocets, Dowitchers and Phalaropes, therefore resolved that we as a Grand Division press for a still better enforcement of the prohibition law for the protecting of our young manhood and our young womanhood which is surely of infinitely more value than the lives of our various types of birds. And further that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Attorney General and another copy to Inspector Tappin.

In the evening a large audience was present, the Grand Worthy Patriarch presided and the following programme was well carried out.

Lemon Juice Has Uses For Beauty

Most skins can be improved by so inexpensive a thing as more careful cleansing methods. This means that one should have a good cream—an all-purpose cream if the skin is normal or dry—a quick-melting cleansing cream if it is oily. Also needed is a soap that lathers freely in water.

A skin that is old and dry may need a specially rich lubricating cream, while a blemished skin may need a special cleansing preparation and an astringent lotion, but there is no earthly use in loading the dressing table with a lot of things that are not really needed.

When economy is to be considered, the best thing for beauty, always and in every way, is lemon juice. It is used for the greatest number of things. For instance, lemon juice has a dozen beauty and health uses.

When you get up in the morning, take the juice of half a lemon in a glass of cool water—or, better still, two glasses of water. The lemon juice rich in vitamin C and mild fruit acids that are alkaline in reaction, tones up the system and improves the appetite. Use lemon juice occasionally for brushing the teeth and as a mouthwash. It is mildly astringent.

Lemon juice makes an excellent lotion for counteracting oiliness of the skin or for bleaching and softening the sallow, neglected skin. When 1-2 cup of it is blended with 1-4 cup glycerin, and 1-4 cup rubbing alcohol. This lotion leaves the skin cool, and smooth. Store in the refrigerator until all is used.

Use the lemon juice-glycerin lotion on the hands when they are chapped or on exposure or stained and roughened from gardening or housework. In addition keep a cut lemon rind near the kitchen sink to remove stains and unpleasant odors of fish or other strong foods, from the hands.

Add lemon juice to the bowl of water in which you soak your fingertips before you manicure. It will soften the cuticles and hang-nails and will remove the stains around the nails or under the tips.

If you haven't used it before, try adding the strained juice of a lemon to the next-to-the-last rinse water when you shampoo. It cuts away the soap curd and leaves the hair silky and fluffy. It also brings out the highlights without injuring or changing the natural color of the hair in any way.

And finally, when you are in a self-coddling mood, add the juice of three lemons to your bath water. You will get foamiest, more lasting suds and your skin will feel clean cool and soft—a good idea for these hot days and nights.

ST. JAMES W. M. S. JUBILEE—In connection with the Golden Jubilee of the Women's Missionary Society of St. James Church, an interesting and inspiring meeting was held in the Hall last evening, presided over by the Minister, Rev. R. Moorhead Legate, D. D. and addressed by Dr. Howie, Medical Missionary at Jobat, Central India.

The chairman dealt briefly with the long and successful history of the Kirk W. M. S., of which Mrs. Artemas Lord is the sole surviving charter member, and made the pleasing announcement that in connection with the Jubilee celebration fifteen young girls had yesterday formed an organization to be called the Goodwill Girls' Missionary Society of St. James, the name chosen being in honor of the late Rev. and Mrs. Goodwill so long connected with the foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church. Dr. Howie, who has a very pleasing personality, made a fine impression on his audience with the valuable information he vouchsafed about the people among whom he works, and the response being made to missionary efforts during the evening.

Solos were effectively rendered by Miss Marguerite Cudmore and Mr. Arthur Bruce, accompanied by Mrs. Keith Rogers. Votes of thanks were recorded on the motion of Mrs. Jamieson, seconded by Miss Mary Irving.

SONG SERVICE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH MURRAY HARBOR SOUTH—On the evening of Sunday, Aug. 30th in spite of a heavy rainfall a large congregation assembled in the Presbyterian Church Murray Harbor South to enjoy listening to the singing of a large number of the old time hymns splendidly rendered by a large selected choir quite a number of the members of which came from outside sections to assist their friends in the Murray Harbor Church and to enjoy the service of sacred song. Rev. R. Hensley Stavert, the minister presided and after a short devotional service was held the rest of the time was spent in song.

Those who came from outside the church and who so willingly assisted in the service were Mrs. Cecil Senebaugh, Mr. David Glover, Mrs. Waldo Hawkins, Miss Carrie Chapman and Messrs. Solomon Senebaugh, Percy Senebaugh, Louis Harris and James McLeod. In the unavoidable absence of the organist, Mrs. J. J. MacKay Miss Cecilia Senebaugh very graciously and skilfully filled the position. At the beginning of the service quite a long list of the names of those who had been disposed of quite a number of other favorites were suggested by those in the body of the church. The service was a very inspiring and helpful one throughout and was closed with the benediction.

MISSIONARY MEETING—The August meeting of the W. M. S. of Bonshaw Baptist Church was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Spurgeon Hickox, Bonshaw, on Wednesday, August 5. The special visitors of the evening were members and friends of the Long Creek, W. M. S. Mrs. Judson MacEachern, a president, also extended a hearty welcome to the visiting society. Minutes of previous meeting were read by the Secretary, Miss Belle Smith, also the minutes of the first meeting of the society held in August 1892. Scripture was read responsively, followed by readings by Misses Myrtle Crosby and Annie MacEachern. Remarks were made by Mrs. Wm. Stretch, Mrs. MacLean and Mrs. Hector Currie, all of Long Creek; also Mrs. Fred Stretch, president of Long Creek Society, who responded to the address of welcome and expressed the thanks of the society for the kind invitation and pleasant evening spent together. Included in the programme was a duet by Messrs. Norman and Wilfred Stretch, accompanied by Mrs. Hector Currie. After singing and Mizpah benediction, a social time was spent and refreshments were served. Next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. F. Rose. The September meeting of the W. M. S. of Bonshaw Baptist Church was held at the home of Mrs. F. R. Rose, Riverdale, on September 2 with a good attendance of members and visitors. Included among the visitors of the evening were several friends and neighbors of Mrs. Rose. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Judson MacEachern, vice-president, presided. Meeting opened with singing and prayer followed by the minutes of the previous meeting. After scripture reading, reports on the Mission Work were read by Mrs. Everett Crosby and Misses Violet Gillespie and Annie MacEachern. A reading "The Starless Crown," was given by Miss Myrtle Crosby. Meeting closed with singing and Mizpah benediction, after which a pleasant social hour was spent and refreshments served. Next meeting to be held at the home of Miss Belle Smith.

Second Toast to King Caused Trouble

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) CAPETOWN, Sept. 8.—(C. P. Cable)—A toast to King Edward VIII, as King of South Africa, caused Lieutenant-Colonel C. F. Stallard, to walk out of a government banquet at Johannesburg tonight.

The loyal toast was given twice—first to the King of the United Kingdom and Ireland, then to the King of South Africa. Stallard left the hall as a protest against the second toast.

Stallard said afterwards he considered the fact that the King was singled out as King of the Union of South Africa for a separate toast was a "specific division of the Sovereign", and deliberately emphasized a doctrine against which he has always protested.

Commenting on the affair the Argus said:

"The official explanation that the toast list was arranged in accordance with the usual practice of international etiquette does nothing to resolve the absurdity. It shows the external affairs office is not equal to the task of preserving the inequality of the King."

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

First - Last - - Always GOOD tea

"Daughter Of Venus"

BY ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

"Not at all," said Juliet in a low voice.

It mattered to her scarcely at all what the manager or any one else would be a guest under this exclusive and expensive roof. Within twenty-four hours her splendid career had blown up as though dynamite had been set off beneath it.

Over again would the old nerve-racking search for the right opportunity.

Either that, or the gamble of a new life as mate of the somberly attractive man who held her arm so firmly going up in the elevator. O'Hara had lost any pretense of gaiety; he hung on to Juliet grimly as though she might at the last elude him. Only when he had her safely in the apartment did his tension relax.

"Now I want you to quit worrying about anything," he said with commanding energy. "We'll straighten everything up at the Institute and leave it clean. By the end of the week, at least, we'll both be gone."

Juliet made him no answer. She was too fatigued emotionally to attempt solving anything with words. Ever since she had entered the Institute she had slowly been discharging her strength. The pace had been terrific—not the business responsibility alone, but the vitality expended in daily contact with O'Hara and Von Guerdon. When she visioned a great commercial success she had released a prodigious escapement of nerve-force. She had held nothing back as a recuperative reserve—she was as spent as a beaten runner at the end of a hard race.

"Come here," said O'Hara, and it was easier to obey him than to resist.

He picked her up—her weight was nothing in his arms—and carried her to a deep chair. Sitting down, he held her in his lap, and cradled her restfully. Her face was flushed and warm and there was tiny black smears on her lower lids. His large strong hand stroked her hair, soothing her.

"Don't you worry about anything, honey," he said consolingly. "You made a swell fight and it wasn't your fault it flopped. You're not a hard, cold business woman—you're just a little girl. I'm going to turn over a new leaf. We'll make a paradise out of just being alive!"

Juliet, tired yet comforted, lost herself in long silent reflection. It was extremely difficult to decide with the mind a matter that only with the heart, really, could determine. "You promise me paradise," she speculated aloud. "I wonder if you can deliver. It's such a lot to expect, isn't it?"

The former throbbing and seething in her brain when she was near O'Hara had ceased to disturb her. His resemblance to the man she had once loved no longer had the potency to make her tremble and melt and yearn.

O'Hara was a virile man in his own right. His personality was definite and unique. He was not a ghost.

"I can't resist making promises," said O'Hara warmly, "because I know they'll come true."

But there were too many considerations in conflict to give him a definite answer. Without being wildly in love with him, it was possible for Juliet to imagine, nevertheless, a steady devotion between them. There would be that task, so dear to a woman, of building his character, of bringing out his best, the proud thrill of converting lovable weakness into enduring strength.

The fact that he had, in his loneliness, gone around with a "flimsy little thing like Katie Schmidt" showed how pitifully he needed even the paltry feminine influence that Katie had to give. Such association was not the measure of his taste—merely the index of his forlorn state.

IN MEMORIAM Says United States Lacks Knowledge About Canada

MR. CYRIL B. CURRAN

The death of the late Cyril B. Curran of Malden, Mass., came as a great shock to his family and friends. Although not enjoying good health for the past few years, his condition was greatly improved. He had been on a shopping trip to City Hall Square a few hours before he was stricken with a heart attack. Rev. J. J. O'Leary of the Immaculate Conception Church, Malden, was summoned and he died fortified by the last rites of the Catholic Church.

His funeral was held from his home, 74 Wentworth St., Malden, Mass., at 1:30 on Sunday, Sept. 7, at the Immaculate Conception Church, Malden, Mass. The Rose Croix Council C. of C. of which he was a member, attended in a body. The pro burial Requiem Mass was held on Monday at seven a. m. and was celebrated by Monsignor Nagle. The remains were forwarded to Charlottetown accompanied by his sister, Mary E. Curran.

The funeral took place from his father's residence to St. Dunstan's, Basilica on Wednesday morning and was very largely attended. The Solemn Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. Dr. McMahon, Rev. Father Cass was deacon, and Rev. Father McCardie sub-deacon. The pallbearers were: Lieut. Col. Fred Anderson, Frank Miller, Allison Holmes, Eugene Allen, John Walsh, Wilfred Coyte, schoolmates of the deceased. The services at the grave were conducted by Rev. Father Cass.

There are left to mourn, besides a sorrowing father, two sisters, Mrs. C. G. Scott, Charlottetown; Miss Mary E. Malden, Mass.; Thomas E., Malden; Arthur P., Truro, N.S.; John A., Calgary, and Alf. W., Medicine Hat, Alberta. The many floral and spiritual offerings both in Charlottetown and Malden, Mass., attested to his popularity.

The late Cyril Curran had been in the employ of Mr. C. G. Bastwick of the Heating and Ventilating business of Boston, Mass., for the past seventeen years.

British Workers for Canadian Farms

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) PLYMOUTH, England, Sept. 9.—(C. P. Havas)—Schemes for placing British industrial workers on Canadian farms are not feasible, Fred Molynux, delegate from the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, told the Trades Union Congress here tonight.

"If those who migrate are not farmers in the first instance, I doubt the feasibility of the project," he said. "Our experience is that an industrial worker is not easily transformed into a farmer and will eventually return to industry."

POPULAR SONG IS SHORT LIVED

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The average life of a popular song nowadays is about six weeks, Gene Buck said today, and it's got him worried. Buck is president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

"Today with more than 600 broadcast stations the popularity of any song, no matter how splendid it is, is not more than six weeks," he said.
