MARSHA HUNT TRIUMPHS AS LOVELORN SECRETARY IN "A LETTER FOR EVIE"

—A fine cast, headed by Marsha Hunt, John Carroll and Hume Cronyn, and the warm and sympathetic direction of Jules Dassin, help make "A Letter for Evie," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, an appealing and tender picture punctuated with many a laugh.

The story is that of Evie (Miss Hunt), who has enclosed a letter in a shirt in the hope that it will reach an army man and cumulate into a romance. The shirt is sixteen-and-a-half in size, so it is obvious that Evie wants a man who is big. It reaches "Wolf" Larsen, who is big enough, but, as his nickame indicates, is entangled with enough girls as it is, and he throws it away. Subsequently it comes into the hands of Johnny MoPherson, a homely and lonesome little runt, whose only bigness is bigness of heart.

Johnny, drawn by the sweetness in Evie's letter, answers it, with the result that an arduous correspondence ensues between the two, and Evie falls in love with her correspondent, particularly when, too shy to send his own photograph, he sends her one of "Wolf" in boxing trunks. Eventually, however, the three principals meet, with "Wolf" attempting to take advantage of the comedy of errors and Johnny trying desperately to prevent his adding the trusting Evie to his long list of "mice."

Moase - Campbell Nuptials

—One of the loveliest of the season's nuptial events took place at St. Stephen's Church, Burlington on Friday, June 21, 1946 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon when Marjorie Ellen, youngest daughter of Mrs. A.H. Campbell and the late Mr. Campbell of Burlington became the wife of Elmer Roy, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Moase, New Annan. The Reverend D. E Noel was the officiating clergyman.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Borden Campbell, the younthful bride was charmingly gowned in white sheer over satin in street length with which she wore a corsage of red roses. Her tiny hat with veil and other accessories were white.

Her sister, Mrs. Walter Moase acted as matron of honor, wearing a becoming gown of rose crepe with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Mr Walter Moase attended his brother as groomsman.

The ceremony took place beneath a floral arch of pink and white, while spring flowers adorned the chancel.

The ushers were the bride's brother Mr. Earle Campbell and Mr. Herbert Profitt of Springfield, brother-in-law of the bride-groom. Mrs. W.J. Profitt presided at the organ. During the signing of the register the choir sang "The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden".

The bride's mother wore pale blue, dotted sheer with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's parents were unable to be present, due to illness.

Following the ceremony the guests attended a reception at the home of the bride where supper was served. The bride's table, covered with a lace cloth, was adorned with two beautifully decorated cakes, and centered with spring flowers. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Mary Profitt, Burlington; Mrs. Harry Bronder, Charlottetown. Mrs. W J Profitt, Long River and Mrs Wallace Adams, Darnley.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a gold extension bracelet; to the matron of honor, gold earrings, and to the best man a tie set.

After a pleasant motor trip in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia the happy young couple returned to New Annan where they were waited upon by a gay group of serenaders.

For travelling the bride wore a light blue dress, Royal blue coat and black hat and other accessories.

Mr. Moase is a progressive young farmer, and Mrs. Moase was formerly on the Civil Service at Ottawa and more recently a valued participant in all community and church projects at her home at Burlington.

Vatican Sees Menace In Communism

(By Reiman Morin)

VATICAN CITY, July 17—(AP)—In the view of the Roman Catholic Church, the world is entering one of the most dangerous periods in 2,000 years, and the United States, because of its ideals and religious beliefs, is regarded as the strongest pillar in the threatened structure of human liberty.

The church is not pessimistic, but alarmed.

That conclusion has been unmistakeable after a series of discussions with prelates in the Vatican, climaxed today by a private audience with Pope Pius. It was not an interview, nor were the Pontiff's words spoken for quotation.

But there was no mistaking the concern the Pope feels for the success of the peace conference in Paris July 29.

A few days ago, in a quotable statement to a group of American newspaper executives who visited him, the Pope described the world as a "quagmire of inhuman sufferings and injustice." He characterized its problems as "intricate and tragic."

The principal reason in the Vatican view is that Soviet Russia, from spiritual and social points of view, propounds a doctrine totally antithetic to the Catholic Church.

Primarily, the Church is concerned with freedom of religion. But like the democracies, it is also concerned with freedom of thought and speech and freedom of the press. On both points—the spiritual and the social—the church finds itself in opposition to the Russian system, said a high prelate familiar with church problems in eastern Europe.

To a question as to whether Communism and Catholicism can live together in the same world, this prelate replied:

"We have been living with our enemies for 19 centuries. We are men of faith, and to us, Communism is a thing that must pass."

Meanwhile, he said, it is nevertheless a menace to the fundamentals of the Catholic faith.

As an example, Poland, a predominantly Catholic country, was cited. The situation there, he said, is "distinctly threatening." no one can say what will happen to the church our information is meagre, and we can only wait and see."

The same obscurity veils the situation in Ruthenia. Moscow has announced that the Ruthenian clergy and communicants, breaking with Rome, have aligned themselves with the Russian Orthodox Church. In the Vatican a similar alleged "defection" in 1839 under Czar Nicholas was recalled.

"Then, as now, it was an instance of force majeure," the prelate said. "The other time they claimed three bishops were involved. This time, they claim no bishops—only some priests. But it is our information that now, just as before, the great body of the clergy and the people have remained faithful.

Another prelate described the international situation as "a powder keg that could blow up at any time."

For all of this the Vatican does not expect another Great War in the near future. "It is a catastrophe to be contemplated," an officer said. "The solutions lies in prayer in putting an end to secrecy and suspicion, and in a return to good will."

P. O. W. TOTAL 399,161

LONDON, July 16 —(Reuters)—British Commonwealth countries still hold a total of 399,161 German prisoners of war, War Secretary Lawson said in a written reply today to a Parliament question.

ONLY MEMORIES

It is long since Britain's people have seen any really delicious cakes, Cream cakes, chocolate eclairs, meringues, rich fruit cakes, all these are but vague and tantalising memories from pre-war days. Indeed, children of seven to 10 have never even seen or tasted a rich cake. Plain cakes and a few tarts have for some years been the only tea-time "luxuries" obtainable in Britain. Most biscuits available have been of a plain variety while occasionally British housewives have bought chocolate covered biscuits at 16 points a pound (24 points per person per month must cover everything—cereals, canned meats, canned fruits, if obtainable, dried fruit and syrup).
