Saracen's Head Has Given Place to Police Station

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 17.—Dickensians the whole Empire over will be interested in the learning of the changes which have just overtaken three places in or near London which are intimately associated with the works of the immortal novelist. La Belle Sauvage is to be sold at auction. You will remember that Tony Weller, father of Sam Weller, used to put up at this inn between his driving of stage-coaches. La Belle Sauvage as an inn was destroyed many, many years ago, but the name is still the official designation of the cul de sac at the foot of Ludgate Hall which even now comprises almost exactly the area of the inn yard when it was thronged with stage coachmen, farmers, hostlers, and all their paraphernalia. As an inn La Belle Sauvage Yard had a history much older than the time of Dickens. In Elizabethan days the galleries which looked out upon the yard formed the auditorium for many who watched strolling players performing before on a rough platform. Nowadays the old inn yard is surrounded by the premises of a publishing house. La Belle Sauvage was never so famous as the Tabard Inn or the George Inn in Southwark, just across London Bridge. The present Tabard is quite a modern structure, but there is a good deal left of the old galleries and stabling of the George, which did a roaring trade in the days when Sam Weller and his father were supposed to have been frequenters of both these inns. The Dickens enthusiast will readily remember how Nicholas Nickleby first encountered Squeers, the villainous Yorkshire schoolmaster, at the Saracen's Head in Snow Hill. The Saracen's Head, which Dickens knew well, was a great starting place for stage-coaches going to the north. The inn was demolished 'long ago, but when business premises were erected there figures of Squeers, of Nicholas, and of Snikky were placed upon the new buildings. These buildings have now given way for the most "swagger" police station which London as yet boasts. The casements, with delicate curtains, are fashioned on the great, old-time, bow-window plan. Eighty constables have each a bedroom to themselves, and there are self-contained quarters also for a superintendent, a chief inspector, and a housekeeper. One of the greatest adventures of little Oliver Twist was when he was taken by Bill Sikes, the housekeeper to help "crack a crib" at Chertsey. The house where this felony was intended to be committed was identified by this enthusiastic Dickensian, the late Percy Fitzgerald, with Pyrford House, Chertsey, in the Thames Valley, a pleasant Georgian place, which is now for private sale. It was by way of Isleworth, Hampton, and Shepperton that Sikes and the allusively named Toby Crackit dragged the wretched boy, Dickens described Pyrford House as a detached place surrounded by a wall about a quarter of a mile beyond the main street of Chertsey. Over this wall Oliver was hoisted by the two professionals, and "well-nigh mad with grief and terror" was pushed through the scullery window, which still exists, to receive, a moment later, a pistol-shot from one of the Oliver Twist band.

The creator of Oliver Twist had in his early days, holiday homes, both at Petersham and Twickenham. The late Sir Donald Macmaster, the well-known Anglo-Canadian lawyer and politician, for some years was M. P. for Chertsey.

Signed in a half of the Caledonia congregation. A beautiful fur overcoat was then thrown over Mr. McDowell's shoulders and a very substantial purse of money was placed in his hands. This splendid gift from the people of the congregation is an indication of the hearty co-operative spirit that is present in every part of the congregation.

DIAMOND — COULSON — On Wednesday evening, Nov. 9th, at eight thirty o'clock, a very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Gratto, Alblon St., West Side, when Miss Gertrude E. The bridal party stood before a background of potted plants. The bride looked charming in a gown of white tulle, with veil arranged in cap style and caught with bouquets of roses, carnations and fern. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Dunn, friend of the bride, wore a dress of mauve satin, and little Dorothy Gratto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Gratto, made a very dainty flower girl in dress of pink silk, and carrying a basket of pink and white carnations. The bride's sister, Mrs. Parker Gratto, wore a dress of place blue tulle, trimmed with silver lace. After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served to the guests. The bride received many beautiful gifts, including silver china and linen. Mr. and Mrs. Diamond will reside in New Glasgow. — New Glasgow News.

Thinks Intruders Were After His Private Papers

CANADIAN FINANCIER, WHOSE APARTMENT WAS RAIDED RECENTLY, USUALLY BOLTED HIS DOORS AGAINST HIS "ENEMIES." LONDON, Eng., Nov. 14.—Sir Edward Mackay Edgar, the Canadian financier, whose flat in Mayfair was recently entered by thieves, as recorded at the time in cable despatches, says he believes the intruders were searching for important private papers. "I have a little doubt," Sir Edward told a London newspaper reporter, "that there are many people who would like to get some inside information about many large transactions I have been carrying out of late. "When I am in the flat and have these big transactions on I always bolt the door downstairs in case of my enemies, and I have a good number of them, should send along a thug to attack me. When I am out of the flat, however, I cannot use the bolt."

30,000 Infants Fed Daily

IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK. Dr. North explodes the old-fashioned idea that Pasteurized Milk is less nutritious than raw milk. Dr. North has for fifteen years supervised the milk supply for six million infants in the City of New York, in which an average of 30,000 children are fed daily on Pasteurized Milk. In those stations clinical records are kept by Dr's and nurses in attendance. Every child is weighed and measured each week, and it is the unanimous opinion of all in charge that the food value of Pasteurized milk is equal to raw milk. The health, growth, teeth, and freedom from disease has convinced the Dr's and nurses of this fact. In some actual tests made in that city, a number of children were put on a very clean raw milk while other groups were fed on Pasteurized Milk. The children were compared regularly through the summer. Those on Pasteurized Milk did very much better than those on raw milk. All the children on

Pasteurized Milk were able to continue through the summer, while some on raw milk had to be put on Pasteurized Milk to save them from dangerous diarrhoeas. Dr. North is recognized as the best authority on milk in the U. S. His charts are also used in Canadian Dairy Colleges. He is a Physician of the highest order, and a specialist in chemistry and bacteriology, and has practiced as a Public Health Expert for twenty-seven years, most of his work being in connection with milk sanitation. He has tabulated for the Public Health Dept. of the U. S. statistics on milk-borne epidemics all over the world, and has never traced one to Pasteurized milk. In 1924 thirty-one milk-borne epidemics were reported in the U. S., all of which were caused by the infection of raw milk, and one a Paratyphoid epidemic was spread by the infection of raw milk from a certified dairy. Mount Stewart Notes

The writer has mentioned at different times, the good work being done by Mr. Fred Leard in having installed an electrical plant for the benefit of Mount Stewart and its vicinities, which not only meant power and wire to carry the current, but meant head-work and responsibility at the other end. It is well worth any person's time to visit the plant to see the way it is laid off, and here Mr. Leard explains the different parts, which he will do with a smile. The belt, leading from the shafting, driven by the turbine, to the large dynamo, passes over the top of the pulley on a smaller dynamo which lights this beautiful new home, barn stables, etc., thus forming an idler for the main belt, and serving the purpose of a second belt to drive the smaller dynamo. Then call at the home, and you are met by the radiance of hospitality and happiness, for which Mrs. Leard has ever been noted down through her years of life spent there. It being necessary for Fred to be away a large part of the time, he has installed a beautiful radio, so that his mother may enjoy both the pleasure and company of the outside world. Messrs. John W. Jay and Lennet Jay are at present building a garage for Rev. M. J. Charman to store his car in for the winter months. Mr. H. F. Feehan is having a building built for his tenants, for

Social Gathering

A farewell party was held Monday night at the home of Miss Alice Clark, who left the following Tuesday evening for Boston, Mass., where she intends to spend the winter. All thoroughly enjoyed themselves and when the hour for departure arrived, wished Miss Clark bon voyage and success. On Tuesday evening, Nov. 15, the members of the Caledonia Presbyterian Church and community gathered at the manse to enjoy an evening of fellowship and entertainment together. The occasion that brought them together was a weighing party under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society, of the church. Although the weather was somewhat unpleasant, yet it did not cloud the brightness and happiness of the people present. And every part of the congregation was well represented. After each one present had stepped on the scales and their weight carefully recorded and their selling price quickly reckoned, Mr. Quincy A. McDowell, the pastor, was lined up between two stalwart men, facing Mr. Charles Walker, who read the following address: Dear Mr. McDowell: We take this opportunity to express our appreciation for the efficient services that you are rendering to our church and community.
