There were about 42 women present and the evening was pleasantly spent with music and singing. A very sumptuous and dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Ellie Llewllyn, Mrs. Wm. D. Llewlyn, Miss Hilda Graham assisted by Miss Cephenia herself. After lunch Miss Matilda Steele read an address after which Miss Lilly Creed between bursts of laughter read the verses accompanying the gifts. Mrs. Wendell Graham, assisted by Miss Nellie Acorn furnished the music. Mrs. Lester Steele sang very nicely to the organ strains played by Mrs. Wendell Graham. The crowd dispersed after singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow, and "God be With you Till We Meet Again," and wishing Cephenia many happy years of wedded life. The following is the address. Dear Cephenia; We your friends have assembled here to-night to express our good wishes and hearty congratulations. Although you are getting married, we hope you will still make your abode among us. To express our esteem and love for you, we have brought these few gifts. in conclusion we hope you both will enjoy a long and happy wedded life. Signed on behalf of your friends.

SHOP IN EMPIRE STREET.

In the days before Wellington beat Napoleon Great Britain practically controlled the world sugar supplies, writes Sir Archibald Weigall, K. C. M. G., in Tit-Bits. Britain's monopoly of that important commodity proved of great strategic value during the Napoleonic war, but, soon after, the sugar plantations were neglected and to-ont upon foreign countries for our sugar. In a recent year only one-wentieth of British sugar came rom within the Empire. Yet, astounding as it seems, there is more and within the Empire suited for rowing sugar than in the rest of he world put together.

Dur'ng the world war Britain was able to rely upon her Dominions for all her requirements in wool. A price was fixed and export to other countries prohibited. This was an important factor in winning the war, which will be realized when I point out that during the same period Great Britain was obliged to depend upon foreign countries for nearly all its sugar and cotton, the price of which rose to three or more times the normal. Britain was thus in the hands of unscrupulous foreign speculators, so far as these commodities were concerned. Now, although the bulk of raw cotton required by manufacturers in Britain is bought from foreign countries, there are over 300 million acres of land suitable for cotton cultivation in Australia alone! Is this not strange?

If you visited the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley you will realize that no household necessity you can conceive is not produced somewhere within the Empire. That is what the promoters of that historic exhibition wanted to prove to you—that the British Empire can be self-supporting. When that ideal has been reached we shall possess the most important key to peace.

The object of the organization known as "The Self-Supporting Empire League," of which I have the honor to be chairman, is to urge you, before you make any purchase, to ask first to see the product, whether foodstuff or manufactured article, of the United Kingdom. If this is not available, you should ask to be shown a product of the Empire. In this way, Sir Archibald tells the people of the Old Country, it is hoped to create an increased and permanent demand for home and Empire products at reasonable prices.

In order to restore Britain to prosperity they must increase the export of their manufactures. They must sell more and buy less in foreign countries, and buy more and sell more within the Empire. The Dominions are ready to help in this scheme, he says. For every 1 pound Britain spends with them, no less that 18s. 6d. comes back to us, as against 14s. from foreign countries. So might trade grow until Britain can look in the national mirror and see a smiling face instead of the care-lined features we see at present.

Thousands of people in Britain already have signed a pledge binding themselves wherever possible to purchase Empire goods. They realize that there is a close connection between their weekly housekeeping and the prosperity of the Empire, and that women can help in this way to save Britain's trade.

Predicts Agreement With Britain's Foreign Secretary

(Special to The Guardian)

PARIS, Dec. 3.—"We have already agreed on all essential points said Foreign Minister Briand today when questioned by reporters regarding the matters of mutual interest between France and Great Britain likely to come up at the approaching session of the council of the League of Nations in Geneva and which are to be discussed here by him and Sir Austin Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary. And we shall not fail to come to an agreement on secondary questions which remain to be settled, M. Briand added.

The agreement will be helped by what the French call communicative warmth banquets. As a prelude to the meetings between Sir Austin and M. Briand the French foreign minister invited Sir Austin and Lady Chamberlain to be his honor guests at a luncheon today. He also extended invitations to Premier Poincare and Edouard Herriot, Minister of Education, and their wives and to the British, German and Italian ambassadors.

PRINCESS MARY SHOPPING

LONDON, Dec. 3.— Realistic looking lions, porcupines and a white swan were among the toy animals Princess Mary bought for her boys during a tour of the Home Arts and Industries Exhibitions. They were ordered to be sent off to the royal nursery where George Henry Hubert and his brother Gerald David are spending most of their time while their parents are in London.

During the tour of the exhibition, Princess Mary confessed to a weakness for owls and spent some time in each stall searching for imitations of the birds. Only one could be found ,and that was in the form of a window wedge. Never mind" she said, I must have it if it's an owl."

Sir Geo. Foster Comments on Election Results

OTTAWA, Dec. 3. —"The electors of the Province of Ontario have given their verdict and it is decisive in its present rejection of the O. T. A. and the principle of prohibition contained therein, and in favor of a trial of government sale, a licensed government sanctioned liquor traffic," said Sir George Foster today in commenting on the result of the Ontario vote. Sir George took a prominent part in campaigning for the O. T. A.

"The supporters of the Act were badly handicapped and the weather was unpropitious for the rural districts especially. But these do not explain away the decided adverse trend of opinion as manifested by the electors. Ontario will now have its trial of the plan proposed by the Prime Minister and it will be up to him, with an overwhelming majority at his back, to perfect his measure and make good his claim that it is in the interest of temperance and will lead to greater sobriety and increas social betterment."

The total capital invested in the sugar industry of the Philippine Islands is approximately $159,000,000 the Philippine Sugar Assocation estimates.

One of the interesting entries at the International Livestock Exhibition at Chicago is a litter of hogs 17 in number, which weighed 5.11' pounds at six months of age.
