Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are hard on the bowels... CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

5 p.c. may be obtained on sums of $100 and upwards

This Company is prepared to lend money for clients on first mortgages on improved real estate

Where the sum invested is insufficient to secure a mortgage then several such sums are invested in one mortgage, and a declaration of trust given the investor, setting out clearly his interest in the said mortgage.

By this method the small investor may participate in the high interest earning security of first mortgages.

Those without funds at present may deposit sums of $1 and upwards at 4 per cent interest until $10 stands to their credit in this way, and then a 5 per cent investment will be recommended consisting of a declaration of trust secured by a first mortgage on improved real estate.

Such a plan as this carefully carried out will lead to at least a comfortable income.

FOX RANCHING AND ITS COST

When the business of selling silver foxes for breeding purposes started in Prince Edward Island in 1910 the average price paid for the best young pupa was $2,500 to $3,000 per pair. By the end of the following year the prices had advanced from $3,500 to $6,500 per pair. In the year 1912 the market continued to advance with the growing popularity of the industry, and young foxes were quoted and sold at from $7,000 to $10,000 per pair. During the present year prices have reached still higher levels, the best pups bringing from $10,000 to $14,000 per pair. Proved breeding animals, which range in age from two to six years, are quoted now all the way from $20,000 to $40,000 per pair.

The business of fox ranching has grown to such proportions that in Charlottetown, which is the commercial centre of the industry, there are now three fox exchanges, where shares of fox stock are bought and sold, and where future options on the unborn pups are dealt in, just as is done in the wheat pit with May and July wheat.

The ideal situation for a ranch is in the midst of a grove of trees, where the foxes will be as nearly as possible placed in their natural environment. From two to six acres depending on how many foxes and pens are to be kept, is the range of the areas enclosed. A high wire fence encloses the entire ranch, and then within that outside barrier are the additional and divided enclosures for the different fox families. Each enclosure is surrounded by a strong wire netting, which goes deep into the ground, for a distance of three or four feet, in order to prevent Mr. and Mrs. Fox or any of their young ones from burrowing a ten-thousand-dollar hole to the freedom of the outer world. A large, specially-constructed wooden pen is placed within each wired area. A long wooden chute, similar to the kind one sees leading down from grain elevators, leads to the pen, and through this approach the fox always crawls before reaching the interior of its boxlike house. Within the pen is a sort of sanctum sanctorum, where the female nurses her young, and where none must intrude. Even the male fox, which by the way, is a decided monogamist, is separated from his mate during her period of confinement. The mother fox has often been known to destroy her young brood immediately upon her approach of any strange or disturbing hand. And as the young litters, numbering from three to five animals, are generally sold before birth at the rate of ten to fifteen and twenty thousand dollars per pair, it is very desirable that the old vixen should not be excited into a state of nervousness.

The keeper of the ranch, as may be readily understood from the foregoing, is, after all, the most important individual connected with the business of fox raising. In most cases he is a man who has a passionate liking for animals of all kinds, and he has found the fox the most interesting of any animal that he has known. The foxes get to know and trust him and will answer the call of his voice.

NEW LAWS BECOME EFFECTIVE IN OHIO.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4.—Several of the new laws passed by the last legislature went into effect today and two of them attract particular attention owing to their somewhat unusual character. One of the laws, which will be of interest mainly to travellers who like to drink something stronger than grape juice or lemonade, prohibits the selling of any alcoholic liquor on trains within the boundaries of the State.

The other law is aimed at the movies and provides for a strict supervision of moving picture shows by a Board of Censors, headed by J. A. Maddox. Under the new law no pictures will be permitted which show a person in the act of committing a crime. If any crime is necessary to the action of the plot it may only be suggested not actually shown. It will be proper, for instance, to show pictures of a man with a "jag" but it will not be permitted to show the man in the act of acquiring the "load." Women dancing in tights or in diaphanous apparel and other vulgarities will also be barred and there will be no more sensational displays of the attacks upon policemen, train robberies, cracking of safes, etc.

The case attracted a great deal of attention owing to the fact that the case will probably have an important bearing upon the great dynamite case and all the labor officials connected with it. It is he who must perform the delicate task of weaning the newly-born pups from their mothers, and he also nurses and feeds them in his own particular way until they become strong and self-sustaining.

The salaries paid to the keepers range from $1,000 to $5,000 per year. Another five hundred dollars per year is expended for a veterinary inspection. One ranch on the Island pays a veterinary $2,000 per year to do nothing else than attend to the foxes. He is assisted by a keeper.

The cost of food for the foxes is the smallest item of expense connected with the industry. From thirty to fifty dollars per year is spent by a ranch for raw meat, fish and milk and biscuits. These articles of food constitute the menu at a fox ranch.

BANK CLERK CONFESSES.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 4.—A session of the police court was held yesterday afternoon to decide regarding the preliminary hearing of the case against William Macintyre. As regards the request of the counsel for the defence, Mr. J. B. M. Baxter, to waive preliminary hearing, Magistrate Ritchie stated that he had carefully considered the criminal code and could find nothing regarding waiving preliminary hearings. He said that such a custom prevailed in some parts of the West and in the United States, but it was the first time in all his experience on the bench that such a request had been made. He said that he would follow the British custom and hold a preliminary hearing. It was not to be overlooked that it was a crown case King vs. Macintyre. He further stated that if the waiving process was used it left open the way for a miscarriage of justice. The preliminary hearing was then called. Mr. P. R. Naylor then submitted the case for the prosecution, reading the confession of the defendant as follows: "To Mr. H. A. Richardson, Toronto, Canada: "Dear Sir,—I write to you to tell you that I have stolen $10,000 from the Bank of Nova Scotia at St. John, N. B., and I make this statement with the consent that it may be used against me."

After the reading of the copy of the confession, the prisoner was asked if he had anything to say, and replied that he had not. As his counsel had nothing to submit, the magistrate sent the prisoner up for trial.

DYNAMITE CONSPIRACY CASE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 5.—Harry W. Jones, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, was arraigned before United States Commissioner H. S. Young at the Federal Building today for a preliminary hearing on the charge of conspiracy to transport explosive illegally.

The case attracted a great deal of attention owing to the fact that the case will probably have an important bearing upon the great dynamite case and all the labor officials connected with it. The United States Grand Jury will convene here next week and it is understood that all the new evidence which has been brought to light since the arrest and confession of George Davis, alias George O'Donnell, in New York will be submitted to the grand jury and that Davis will repeat his confession before the members.

According to the confession of George L. Davis, a union iron worker who admitted to the authorities in New York that he had committed numerous dynamite outrages and destroyed many non-union structures, at the behest of Harry Jones, who succeeded H. S. Hockin as secretary-treasurer of the Iron Workers' union, Jones and other officials of the union were deeply implicated in the conspiracy. Some of the revelations made by Davis strongly implicate President Ryan, who was sentenced to seven years imprisonment at the close of the great dynamite conspiracy case last year.

Davis stated in his confession that he had been chosen to kill Walter Drew, attorney for the National Erectors' Association in December, 1911 and also William J. Burns, the detective employed by Drew to unearth the dynamite conspiracy. He was to receive $5000 for killing Drew. It appears from the confessions of Davis that the arrest of the 38 officers of the Iron Workers' union and their trial and conviction did by no means put a stop to their conspiracy against the Erectors' association and that the work of dynamiting non-union structures was carried on as before, under the direction and with the knowledge of secretary-treasurer Jones, President Ryan and other prominent officers of the labor organization.

Davis, according to his own statements, was in the employ of the union, but was dissatisfied with the manner in which he had been treated. A short time before his arrest he was working in Pittsburg, Pa., but had some trouble with the local delegate of the Iron Workers' Union after his failure to become a regular member of the local union. Davis had no union card and the local delegate refused to let him work unless he paid $26 initiation fee for becoming a member of the local union. Davis asked for time, which the delegate refused and Davis left Pittsburg in a huff. At that psychological moment Robert Foster, a Louisville detective who had shadowed Davis, induced Davis to get even with the union by making an open confession of his share in the dynamiting outrages.

Bronchitis Conquered

Royersford, Pa., Man Tells How.

At this season of the year with such sudden changes, it is so easy to take cold, and almost before one is aware there is inflammation in the bronchial tubes—a hard cough and unless checked in time chronic pulmonary troubles may result. Townsend Young of Royersford, Pa., says: "A severe bronchial trouble contracted caused me much difficulty about breathing. My chest felt clogged up and there was considerable soreness. I tried different remedies without help; but I am glad to say that Vinol cured my bronchial trouble which has lasted for three months. My breathing is all right and the soreness entirely gone from my chest."

GEORGIA-CAROLINA FAIR. AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 5.—The city is crowded with visitors from all sections of Georgia and many parts of the neighboring States who have come here to see the eighth annual Georgia-Carolina Fair which opened here today for a season of ten days. More and finer exhibits, in live stock, poultry, machinery and implements, a larger number of interesting attractions and special features than ever before are offered this year and the fair promises to be the most successful ever held. In connection with the fair there will be a great poultry show, a corn show, a kennel show, automobile and motorcycle races, the annual football game between the University of Georgia and Clemson Agricultural College, balloon ascensions, an auto-race and the greatest livestock show in the south. In connection with the fair a Good Roads Convention will be held tomorrow and Friday.
