MINCE PIES WERE SYMBOLIC OF MAGI'S VISIT TO MANGER.

The Christmas mince pie had a Christian symbolism in the beginning. The pies represented the gold, frankincense and myrrh brought by the Three Wise Men to the manager: the crust symbolized the gold, and the mixture of spices the frankincense and myrrh. Originally the pies were made oblong and followed the shape of the manager.

There was a superstition that there was no luck in store for the man or woman who did not eat a mince pie at Christmas. To eat one, it was believed, was to be sure of having at least one happy month. To enjoy a year of happiness, a person had to eat one pie on each of the twelve days after Christmas.

Livestock

MONTREAL, Jan. 5 — (CP)— Light receipts kept prices almost steady with last week's quotations on the two Montreal livestock markets today. Receipts: 459 cattle, 424 calves, 571 hogs, and 313 sheep.

There were a few steers of common to good quality offered but the biggest part consisted mostly of cows and heifers of common to good quality. There were not enough sales made at time of writing to establish any market. The early sales made were estimated to be strong.

Light cattle receipts met with a very good demand. Vealers of common to good quality were bringing between 13—21 and grassers were mostly 10.50—11.

Following the announcement by the meat board of an increase of 7.00 on Wiltshires, sellers were asking as high as 30.00 for grade A hogs. There were no early sales made with packers bidding 28.50 for grade A.

Most of the lamb offerings were of very poor quality and sold at firm prices. The general price paid was 16.00 with some up to 16.50. Sheep ranged between 4—8.50.

BEAR MOVEMENT

Not being at all bashful, Sally, bear cub in the London zoo, puckers up and gives her keeper a big

Smart Girl

By George F. Worts

"We haven't been quarreling," Eric said. "I'm worried about Featherly. He should have called me this morning. He hasn't called yet. I'm afraid something's happened."

The senator said impatiently, "Now, now, stop worrying. Featherly is all right. He wasn't born yesterday."

Sally's heart was in a panic again. She had forgotten about Featherly. He had let her into Zorane's apartment last night. He had certainly been there when Barney killed Zorane. Featherly apparently was one of the senator's undercover men. How could Van Arden possible blame Eric and the senator for the murder when Featherly was there all the time? Somehow, she had to warn Barney or Van Arden.

She said, with dismay, "Eric, I've got to go back. I left my bag in the powder room."

He said curtly, "Can't go back. I'll phone the club."

"I'll phone the club," she said.

The senator sat forward. "Did you tell him about Kresco?"

"No, Senator."

Eric said sharply. "What about Kresco?"

"He's a snake in the grass. He's a ridiculous fool He came all the way out here to accuse Sally of being the girl we're looking for He said she was Van Arden's errand girl."

"What did you tell him?"

"Harrumph! I told him he was a blithering idiot. He wasn't drunk He's up to something, Eric. Do you suppose he's siding with Van Arden? What do you suppose his game is?"

"It's very mystifying," Eric said. "Listen, Dad, and take it easy. They finally got the alligator briefcase."

Guy Van Arden opened the car door and said, "Get in, Barney. I've got some bad news for you, Barney, very bad."

The reporter got in and closed the door. "What's all this mystery about?" he said impatiently. "Sally looked as if she'd just seen a ghost."

"You went to Zorane's apartment last night. You had a row with him. You took a punch at him."

"I certainly did. And if he doesn't like it, I'll take another punch at him!"

"I'm afraid you won't. Barney You see, he never recovered from it."

Barney said softly, "Oh, my God!"

"I've been watching Zorane, as you know. Last night, one of my men, stationed at a window across the street with field glasses, saw you go in and slug him. He saw everything, Barney. When you left Zorane was lying on the floor. You thought he was merely knocked out. He was dead. You didn't wait to investigate."

CHAPTER XXVI

Barney let out his breath softly. He said presently in a sick voice. "Well, what a nice spot. Murder!"

"Yes, Barney."

"You told Sally."

"I had to tell her. You see, since it happened, since a little after two last night I've been trying to think of a way out for you."

"Why?" Barney said hoarsely. "Why should you bother about me?" "Keep your head and I'll explain. I have nothing against you. I have plenty against Senator Larsen. He's a limelight their, a headline grabber. He rushed into this investigation with all his stupidity. He didn't want to investigate alien labor racketeering activities in this country; he wanted to waft himself into political prominence. The whole purpose of this investigation is to find a goat. I'm the goat. Perhaps I have made mistakes. The fact remains, he's a thorn in my side."

"Do you think you can frame him? You're nuts."

"Take it easy, Barney. Let me do the talking for a moment. The senator and that smart son of his would stoop to anything to smear me across the front pages. It's all they want. Obviously, I don't want to be smeared across the front pages. By putting them on the receiving end of a murder charge they'll lose all interest in me. By helping me you'll save your skin and I'll save my reputation. That's my proposal. You'll have to help. So will Sally."

Barney was still breathing rapidly. "What did she say?"

"She will help. She loves you enough to do anything for you. So does Coral Mayberry."

"What has she got to do with this?"

"I'll come to her in a moment. Your job is the biggest. It's going to be your job to put this on the front page of the Morning Star. You're working there now, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"Then your story is this: You and Sally did not go into Zorane's at all. You got only as far as his apartment door. You heard the senator and Eric quarreling with Zorane. You and Sally went up the hall to the elevator. You saw the senator and Eric come out and sneak down the hall. That's all. The police will establish the time of Zorane's death at about two o'clock."

"Wait a minute. How about their alibis?"

"I have taken pains to establish that Senator Larsen has no alibi for last night from one-thirty on. He went to the Savoy-Carlington, and he went to bed. It's going to be awfully hard for him to prove that."

"Don't forget that Eric lives in the same building as Zorane."

"Im not forgetting anything. He was in bed in his apartment."

Barney suddenly groaned. "Wait a minute! You've overlooked an eye witness. Zorane's valet. He was there. I saw him."

"We'll discuss that later. Barney. There's someething very strange about it, and I'm having my men investigate. You see, the valet did not report the murder to the police. My men made inquiries. Early this morning. Zorane's valet was picked up with a crushed skull, dead."

Barney uttered a whistling sigh of relief. "How do you account for it?"

"I don't, Barney. In Zorane's business he was actually nothing more nor less than a spy — mysterious things happen. They often don't bear looking into. But it fits our plans perfectly. We can assume — as the police will later assume—that this valet saw the senator and Eric killing Zorane, and they did away with him."

Barney said reflectively, "Yes, Yes, that's not bad. How about a motive?"

"There is a ready-made motive. Did you know that Zorane and the senator were both in love with the same woman? A night club girl named Lolita Monterey? Coral Mayberry knows Lolita Monterey was Zorane's mistress and that the senator was having an affair with her. Obviously, he killed Zorane over Lolita. Lolita will swear there was bad feeling between the two men over her."

"Wait a minute, Van, Is Coral Mayberry in on this?"

"She's going to be. This morning she telephoned the senator, asking him why he didn't drop Lolita Monterey. She will testify that she saw the senator and Lolita in a Harlem night club on his last trip to New York."

"Wait a minute. You want this smeared all over tomorrow morning's Star. City editors have been known to be skeptical. Keep it plausible."

"Do you remember Lolita Monterey coming to your table last night in the Hey Nonny No Club and intimating before all of you that she and the senator were at least old friends? You went to see Zorane, having heard that Lolita was his mistress, checking up this old friendship with the senator. Will your city editor find that implausible?"

"Not if I can back it up."

"A half hour before my man phones tipping off the police, he will also phone Lolita Monterey at the Hey Nonny No. She will rent a car and come at once to the Larsens' She will have nothing in her mind but denouncing the senator for killing her lover. We will already be there."

Farmers' Short Course

The Short Course on rural community problems, sponsored by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, opens at the Legion Hall in Charlottetown tomorrow afternoon at 1:30.

Although it was first planned to hold the Course at Birch Court, Experimental Farm, weather and snow conditions altered this arrangement.

In the nine sessions from Wednesday noon to Saturday noon, it is hoped to review generally, current problems of farm life. Discussions on Soil Conservation, Co-operatives, Marketing, Conducting Meetings, Health and Nutrition, Dominion Agricultural Services, Leadership Techniques, Rural Film and Library activities, Junior Club Work, Dairying, Rural Credit Unions, Federation of Agriculture, Rural School Problems and Folk Schools in Denmark will be the centre of interest. Three or four periods will be devoted solely to discussing the position of Agriculture and planning a program for the future.

A debate between two P. W. C. Students and two members of the Course on "Resolved that agriculture offers more satisfying opportunities to young people than competitive industries," will be held on Friday evening. This will be followed by a demonstration on how to properly conduct Discussion Groups. The subject for this discussion will be—The future for our young people on the farm and the value of a Junior Farmers' Organization in the Province.

It is expected to have representatives from all Farm Forums in the Province, Junior Clubs, Co-operatives, Institutes, Credit Unions, and other rural organizations.

The meetings and discussions are primarily for farmers but are open to the public and a welcome is extended to all persons interested.

BABY CHICKS

Now that export egg contracts have been confirmed at a higher price which will offset increased cost of feeds, poultry producers are in a better position to make a profit than at the beginning of 1947.

Therefore there should be no decrease in poultry flocks. There is also a keen demand for poultry meats. Island packers are confident of a strong demand. American buyers are now inquiring for large quantities of live poultry at high prices.

Now is the time to decide the number of chicks you should raise this coming season.

Our Chicks are hatched from parent stock of the highest standard available. Flock-owners having a record of unusual hatchability in past seasons, which indicate good care and management of flocks. They are fed a proper balanced Hatching Ration, supplemented with high grade Pilchardene Oil and buttermilk powder. This adds materially to vigor and growth, and is about the best GUARANTEE OF STRONG, STURDY CHICKS.

Place your Orders early to assure delivery on date required.
