PRESENT IRISH SITUATION

Surprise is expressed in the telegrams announcing the passage of the Irish Home Rule Bill that no disturbances have occurred in Ulster. The surprise would have been had rioting occurred. The whole of Sir Edward Carson's policy is based on the maintenance of peace until such time as the Home Rule Bill becomes operative. Any special rioting would give the Government excuse for proclaiming martial law at once and thus forestall any attempt to proclaim the Provisional Government for which the Ulsterite arrangements are complete.

To thoroughly understand the situation we may recapitulate what we have already said from time to time on this thorny question. Unless Ulster's demand for exclusion from the Home Rule Bill is conceded there can be no settlement. If Ulster's claim is satisfied there will be no civil war. If Ulster is excluded but remains within the Imperial Parliament, she will have nothing to resist. The imminence of civil war is the only obstacle to the automatic passage of the Bill into law under the Parliament Act. The Nationalists hold the key to the position. If they agree to exclude Ulster, the Bill passes automatically, notwithstanding its rejection by the Lords. If they will not agree, either the Government must face civil war or suffer defeat at the hands of their Nationalist supporters in the division lobby followed by dissolution.

Now the Nationalist party is never likely to agree to the exclusion of Ulster. Mr. William Redmond has definitely declared that "Nationalist Ireland has gone to the limit of concession and there could be no consent to anything in the shape of the permanent partition of Ireland. They could never agree to anything like the permanent exclusion of Ulster." These views have been approved by Mr. John Redmond, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, and unanimously endorsed by the Nationalist Press.

Faced with such determination on both sides, what is Mr. Asquith's Government to do?

Mr. Asquith so far has shown such astute tactics in handling the problem that we believe that he will manoeuvre until he is absolutely cornered, and that may not be till September. The Government has passed the Bill through the Commons and it now goes to the Lords. If it is rejected there as it is certain to be, the Government has the power to present it at once for Royal assent. But it is not necessary they should immediately seek Royal assent, and the probability is that the Government will defer doing so till the end of the session when the other Acts are in due course presented for the King's formal approval. The Government will more than likely use the interval to persuade either Sir Edward Carson or Mr. Redmond to make concessions, and the new bill embodying the concessions will be introduced. This is what is likely to be the Government's policy with a view to having the Welsh Disestablishment Bill and the Plural Voting Bill passed.

Bill pass into law, and final arrangements made for going to the country with a good election cry. But of course this depends upon Mr. Redmond's acquiescence. If the Nationalists decide they will on no account agree to the exclusion of Ulster, and Sir Edward Carson and the Ulsterites are as adamant on the status quo, then, as we have said, the Government must choose between defeat at the hands of the Nationalists and dissolution, and a Provisional Government in Ulster to put down which means civil war.

This is the present situation and developments must be awaited with anxiety by all friends of Ireland and patriotic citizens of the Empire.

COUNTRY ROADS

It is customary for the "Outs" in politics to charge the "Ins" with negligence in the art of road making and road keeping. These criticisms are always taken at their face value, which is simply nil. But there are good roads and bad roads regardless of what party is in power, and the credit or the blame rests not with the "Ins" but with the people themselves.

In this province our people may have just what they want. Governments do not make roads or keep them in condition. They make certain provisions which are calculated to enable the people to provide good roads for themselves, and on these people rests the responsibility for the roads, be they good or bad.

We are here neither criticizing nor praising any particular system of road making but there are differences in roads in different localities which cannot but impress the person who travels over them. In some sections it will be noted that the people are satisfied with any kind of a road. In others it will be seen that the people are fastidious, that they have carefully and at the proper season looked after the making and keeping of their roads. And it will be noted also that the roads are a credit to them, as the roads of their neighbors are a positive disgrace.

One of the features that strike a traveller is the constant narrowing of the road. Fences, when being renewed, are pushed out so that their owner may appropriate a few more inches of the dear land, with the result that after a few such renewals the road has been narrowed to dimensions that are far short of the legal requirements. In other sections bushes, underbrush and other debris are allowed to accumulate, narrowing the road, making it unsightly, holding the snow in winter and tending to muddiness and dirt in the spring. These are conditions which the people of every district should insist upon changing. If their road master is not public spirited enough to make provisions for good roads, such pressure should be brought to bear upon him as shall compel him to do his duty.

In other sections beds of sand are allowed to accumulate through years of neglect, making the roads practically valueless as far as hauling or even driving is concerned. These roads, if turned up in the proper season could be made as solid as those in heavy clay soils.

The thrift and progressiveness of the people are indicated by the condition of the roads in their neighborhood. To the prospective purchaser of a farm badly kept roads would be a barrier not easily overcome, for few people would care to haul the products of their farm to market in the face of such difficulties. As a result farm values are much lower in the neighborhood of bad roads than in those sections where the roads are creditably kept.

This is one of the drawbacks in many sections throughout the province, drawbacks which should be overcome at once, and drawbacks too which cannot be wholly laid at the door of the road-master. If his people are neglectful he will take little interest in the matter. If, on the other hand, the people insist upon having the roads put and kept in the best possible condition, the road-master will do his duty.

What is really needed is a co-operative spirit in every neighborhood, a spirit of pride in the surroundings and a spirit that will make itself felt in the improvement of the community.

NOTES

Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, speaking on the drink traffic said, "If there is in the whole of this business any single encouraging feature, it is to be found in the gathering impatience of the people at the burden they are about to bear, and their growing indignation and sense of shame and disgrace which this imposes upon them. The fiery serpent, drink, is destroying our people and now they are waiting with longing eyes the uplifting of the remedy."

It would appear as if nature herself were joining in the conspiracy to make the present year a banner

AROUND THE FUR RANCHES

Unusually good luck has been experienced by the Seal River ranch this season. It has already sixteen pups on foot and they are all doing well, and there is good prospect of the arrival of another litter.

Application is being made for letters patent for the incorporation of the four following new fox companies: "The Premier Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd." with its head office to be situated in Bedeque, with a total capital stock of $180,000, divided into $50 shares and with Messrs. Thomas Moyses, Hbrace Wright, John C. Baillem, Frank Lang, H. C. Baillem, Clark McQuarrie and N. W. Jenkins as its provisional directors; "The Travellers Fox Company Limited," with a capital stock of $50,000, divided into $25 shares, its head office to be in Charlottetown, and its provisional directors to be Messrs. Leonard Wood, Bruce J. Taylor, John F. Murnaghan, James A. Currie, Edward J. Terry, John W. McLean, Augustus Aylward, and D. Edgar Shaw; "Maine and Connecticut Black Silver Fox Co., Ltd.," with a capital stock of $75,000, divided into 1,500 shares of the value of $50 each, its head office to be located at Fortune Cove, and its provisional directors to be Messrs. Harold S. Sperry, William H. Hall, Charles A. Lyon, William A. Warren, of the United States, Francis A. Sweet, George D. Warren and George M. Matthews, of this Island; "The Mascot Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd.," with a capital stock of $245,000, divided into shares of the par value of $100 each, its head office to be situated in Summerside, and with George D. Walker, J. Melbourne Laird and Gordon Glover, as its provisional directors.

A leading business man of New York who has been on the Island for the past ten days investigating the fox industry was so favourably impressed with the prospects that he has invested heavily in a number of

ATLANTIC ACCIDENT IN MONCTON

ST. JOHN, May 26.—From Moncton comes news which shocks this city. Frank V. Conlon, associated with his father here as photographer, was killed in Moncton last night. He was aged about 25 and prominent in the Knights of Columbus.

propositions through the Maritime Fox Exchange and Investment Co. He was very enthusiastic and stated that if the concerns he has invested in paying dividends this year proved satisfactory it would be the means of influencing a large amount of New York capital for next year's propositions.

Mr. E. G. Lumsden, keeper of the Orchard Fox Co.'s ranch, reports the appearance of another litter of five pups, this making the third litter that has arrived on this ranch this season from the five pairs of this company.

Major Howatt, manager of the Dalton-Howatt Fox Company, was in the city yesterday on business. Mr. Howatt reports favourably in regard to his company's ranch. They have already counted nine pups and there is still one more litter to appear.

Some of the "knockers" of the Fox Industry have been boozing Calgary Oil. They should heed what the Monetary Times has to say on the subject: "Oil and mining stocks have made thousands of people poor and some wiser. For every honest well and mine owner, there are a hundred scallywag stock brokers, market parasites and crooked lease stakers. Oil has been struck in Calgary, real oil, and the excitement is noisy. Men, women, boys and girls have difficulty in hanging on to their savings, when an oil boom is dinnin' the ears. To push away the temptation to buy shares is about as hard as stopping a runaway horse. Those who lost money in a California oil boom will try to recoup at Calgary, and those who sunk savings at Roseland and Cobalt, will see light now in Alberta. The oil and mining game owes them money, and they will take it out today in Calgary. "But the changes are always and overwhelmingly against them. If a man has a real good thing, he does not want every Tom, Dick and Harry in Alberta to go shares with him. He wants them to buy shares. "There is probably oil, commercially good, in this Calgary region, and it will make money for some but not for the thousands who have rushed into the one hundred brokers' offices opened in a day, to buy shares of oil companies which are multiplying as fast as arithmetic and charter granting will allow. "Without detracting from the importance of the discoveries, Calgary people and their friends should remember that for every man who honestly hopes to give them value for their stock certificate, there are fifty first-class rascals who have no other object in sight, in these dull business days, but to separate them from their savings. If as poor as a church mouse even, let someone else try to make money in the oil game. Get down to real work on the farm."

one for Prince Edward Island. The cold weather which held vegetation in check has been followed by ideal summer conditions and grass and foliage have sprung up into a new and vigorous life, giving promise of an abundant crop. Lobsters are swarming into the fishermen's traps and all the factories have all the fish they can handle. Even the foxes are producing larger litters than usual. Summer visitors are already booking their domiciles for the season and there is everywhere the hum of business and the smile of hope.

Assets

Five pairs of 1914 Silver Black Foxes, selected from the highest grade of class A Stock. Particular care was taken by the promoters in securing foxes having prolific parents, some of which were among the season's earliest litters.

This Company guarantees that in the event of more foxes being added they will be from Island foxes of class A. The number already secured are of the Rayner, Tuplin and Oulton strain.

Ranching

The Directors have entered into a contract with the Maritime Silver Black Fox Co., of Central Bedeque to ranch their foxes for a term of five years at the low cost of seven and one half per cent of the yearly increase. This includes all incidental expenses.

The care-taker of the Maritime Co Mr. John A. Dawson has this year shown that he is most capable rancher and cannot be excelled in caring for foxes. Investors will feel satisfied that it is under his care and management, the foxes of the United Silver Black Fox Co., are to be ranched. If no increase it costs the Company nothing for keep.

Probable Profits

Considering the low capitalization and the moderate charge for ranching the directors look forward to a dividend in 1915 of at least from 60 to 80 per cent. Prospectus mailed on request.
