DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Burned-Out Passion Wife Cannot Hope To Regain Husband's Lost Love

There is no question that I am asked oftener by wives than how they can revive a dead love and get back the men they have lost. The answer to that pitiful question is, sadly, that it cannot be done. Once a woman has lost a man, he has gone beyond recall. Once love has fled, it is gone forever. Once passion has burned itself out, there is no rekindling its dead ashes and blowing them into flame again. No woman is miracle worker enough to breathe the breath of life again into the corpse of a dead love.

It is easy enough for a woman to make a man fall in love with her the first time, but it is a stunt that she cannot repeat. Once he has awakened from love's young dream, she cannot hypnotize him back to a state where he sees her as the One and Only woman in the world. All her arts and wiles are practiced upon him in vain. The beauty he once thought so ravishing has ceased to appeal to him. The little tricks and manners he thought so cute leave him cold. Where he once saw only perfection, now he perceives only blemishes.

Nor is the man to blame for this. No one knows why he loves nor why he ceases to love. It is not a matter of volition. It is a matter of taste, and we have no more control over that than we have over any other phenomenon of nature.

NO EXPLANATION

Often a man who has loved a woman can no more explain, even to himself, why he has ceased to love her than he can why he has ceased to care for the food he once craved. Nor can he be any more help to or make himself want her than he could the all-day suckers he was so crazy about in his boyhood.

It would save women a lot of heartache if they would only face the fact that there is no reviving a dead love, and that there is absolutely nothing that they can do about it except to accept the finality. To reproach the man with his fickleness is folly, since he cannot help it. To weep over him and appeal to his pity because he has wearied of you only makes him the more tired. To pursue him only makes him flee from you the faster.

It is the part of wisdom and dignity for a woman to let the man who has ceased to care for her go in peace, since he is lost to her anyway, and for her to center her interests on aims and aspirations that will fill her life. There are many things in the world better worth striving for than the affections of an inconstant man.

But there is one comfort for wives, and that is that while it is impossible to resuscitate a dead love, it is easy enough to keep one alive. A man obviously is in love with a woman when he marries her, or else he would not take upon himself the responsibilities of marriage. If he falls out of love with her, nine times out of ten it is because she has been too lazy, or too selfish, or too stupid to take the trouble to keep him thinking that he was the luckiest man in the world when he got her for a wife.

Modern Etiquette

Q. Should a woman use the salutation "Dear Sir" when writing a social note to a man?
A. No; this is for business purposes only. The informal salutation is "Dear Mr. Blank," and the formal salutation is "My dear Mr. Blank."
Q. What would be the best phrase for a woman to use when introducing her husband to another woman?
A. "Mrs. Smith, may I present my husband?"
Q. Is it necessary that a hostess arrange some entertainment for

How Can I!!!

Q. How can I keep leftover starch, so that it can be used later?
A. Four the starch into a glass jar and cover with a lid. Place the jar in the refrigerator and when ready to use, dilute with boiling water.
Q. How can I renovate old yarn?
A. Instead of winding old yarn into a ball, wind into a skein, place her guests after a small, informal dinner?
A. Yes, she should arrange some form of entertainment, such as cards or dancing.

King and Queen Attend Wedding

King George and Queen Elizabeth recently attended the wedding of Lady Margaret Egerton. Lady-in-waiting to Princess Elizabeth, and Mr. John R. Colville, the princess' private secretary. Morning Smile

KNOCK, KNOCK
It was reported to a president of a certain university that a party was being held after hours in one of the dormitories. Hither the good doctor wended his way to investigate.
To his knock at the door came the response, "Who's that?"
"It's me," replied the doctor.
"Who's me?" came the query.
"Dr. . . ." answered the doctor.
"You're a liar!" was the reply. "If it had been 'ole Jimmy he would have said 'It is I' Go enind your business."
In a colander over a kettle of boiling water and let it steam for an hour. Then hang up to dry.
Q. How can I be sure of removing all small insects when preparing greens?
A. By sprinkling some baking soda on the greens before pouring water on them for the first washing.
Fill a discarded purse with straw or crushed newspaper and use it as a kneeling pad when washing the floor or woodwork.

Second Chance

By Rosamond Dujardin
CHAPTER VI
Lisbeth agreed without rancor. "I guess I started too late in life. Even an expert coach like you can't help me." She slumped toward the descending stairs, don't you know, before long, though. He'll give you a workout.
"What makes you think I want a workout?" Miles drawled lazily. "This is what I deserted the office for."
"How did you manage?" Lisbeth wanted to know. "Or would that be disclosing professional secrets?"
"Not at all," Miles assured her. "I simply explained to all the little birds and bees that it was spring. They seemed to understand perfectly. Clever little devils!"
Lisbeth said, "Nut!" indulgently.
Silence, a sort of drowsy content, wrapped them about. Lisbeth thought, a queer little ache in her throat. "If I had persuaded Gay to let me stay in New York and look for work, if I hadn't succumbed, finally, to her pleading, I should never have seen this place at all. I should never have known this utter satisfying loveliness." It seemed strange to look back from the quiet peace of this moment to that old unhappy time, that period of rebellion of alienation from Gay. Lisbeth's determination not to compromise had harried their last days in New York, the early ones in Lake Forest. Having accompanied her mother unwillingly, she had tried to steel herself against the charm of her new surroundings. But gradually the wall of prejudice and pride she had built up crumbled. It wasn't in her to remain stubbornly aloof in the face of Cattie's everton's unfailing kindness and consideration. Lisbeth's liking for this quiet, rather grave man who was Jon's father, grew. Even at first she had pitied his obvious distaste for the publicity that at-

UMBRELLAS ARE HIGH FASHION

Whether the weather is sunny or gloomy, many high-fashion women carry umbrellas because they're beautiful. They're formal. They're pretty enough to dress up a formal afternoon costume.

The new picture in umbrella styles is tailored, slim and neat. And those elongated handles we used last year will be in vogue again for fall and winter. One particularly fine aspect of the cane-handled bumbushoot, seem to me, is that it's harder to misplace or to forget . . . but, unfortunately, one big reason that it's harder to forget is that it's so expensive.

Handles this fall will be carved of imported horn, malacca, olive wood and ivory. Something new has been added to the cases you tuck your umbrella in as you're swinging down the avenue. Cases are now being made of copper and gold kid, lined with leather. They have zipper closings and turned back cuffs.

Corduroy is being used for some umbrella cases too. Generally it's out of one color, with a different shade in the lining.

This shows up in the turn-back cuff. The umbrella itself is going in for different treatments in color too. For instance, umbrellas are using piping effects to lighten their style. When the ribs of a rain umbrella are made of a pleated fabric, it gives a 10-rib job the look of a 20-rib model. Optical illusion of course.

PLenty OF SOAP, WARM WATER
Cleanse neck and shoulders with warm water, soap and a complexion brush. Use the brush with a firm rotary motion. This cleansing method tends to stir up circulation. Rinse and dry the skin well. Now use cleansing cream and remove the residue of dirt and cream with tissues. Now wrap your shoulders and neck right up to the jawline in a turkish towel which has been wrung out in hot water. Press the towel firmly on the skin with the palms of the hands. Remove the towel and apply another one, damp and hot, as in no. 2. Carry on now the skin should have a rosy glow. If not then your circulation certainly is not working properly and you should use this home treatment often, says Lois Leeds.
"While the skin is warm, moist and glowing, apply a generous amount of mineral oil, which you have first warmed in an enameled container. Use the right hand to mold the left shoulder and the left hand for the right shoulder. Cup the fingers and 'plop' them up and down on the skin.
If there is a willing pair of hands to aid you, have them grasp the shoulders and mold from the top of the shoulder to the neckline. After you finish this smooth on a generous amount of throat cream and leave on all night. If you are afraid of getting cream on your sheets and pillow cases, cover the skin with an old, soft piece of linen. In the morning spray the skin with icy-cold water.

THE STARS SAY—

By Genevieve Kemble
For Wednesday, November 3
WHILE there are indications of a static, congested or trying state of affairs, with impediments, frustrations or delays yet, as well as the signs of a well-planned and executed course of action could prove more flexible and productive than any rash attempt to gain the citadel by the use of storm, passion, of force and strife. By keen analysis, born of experience and study, sustained by tact, finesse and subtlety rather than crass and crude measures, definite progress may be looked for in launching bold or fresh ventures of scope and authority.
For the Birthday
Those whose birthday it is, may be prepared to meet a difficult or disappointing state of affairs in which stagnation and frustration seem well-nigh overwhelming. Nonetheless the situation is not hopeless, since it may be deftly manipulated by clever, shrewd and patient techniques in which logic, experience and fortitude have power to batter down tenacious obstacles or limitations. Force and tumult would prove foolproof, when tact, strategy and perhaps intuition of subtlety may ultimately bring durable and gratifying returns. This applies to the pushing or inauguration of new objectives, where enterprise and initiative may be built upon past experience or solid preparation.
A child born on this day is well endowed with vigor, initiative, power and ambition, under restraint of fact, subtlety, industry and sagacity.

FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3

Use up leftover pickle juice by pouring it over sliced cooked beets and allowing the beets to marinate in it. Serve the beets as a relish or on salad greens.
Just in case you've forgotten, one cup of dry spaghetti expands to about two cups when cooked. For a really super duper tasting sauce for spaghetti, combine sauteed minced garlic and onion with celery, canned tomatoes, ground beef, chopped ripe olives and some red table wine.

TINY WARTS ON SOLES OF FEET

One of the painful and disabling ailments of men and women is plantar warts. These little warts on the soles of the feet now are believed due to infection. Cutting through the hard callous covering these warts, tiny blood vessel bundles, like red or brown dots, can be seen.

Until recently the most successful treatment of plantar warts has been X-ray treatment, one treatment usually being sufficient to cause disappearance of the warts. A recent method of treatment is by use of radioactive phosphorus.

As the X-ray treatment and also radium treatment are not without danger, Dr. C. R. McLaughlin, in the "Lancet," London, describes a combination of curettage (cutting or scraping) and electrolysis which he has found effective. He pares down the overlying horny skin until the typical bundles of the wart can be plainly seen. A special cutting, spoon-shaped instrument (Volkman spoon), the exact size of the wart, then is driven into the foot at the edge of the wart and swept around so that the core is shelled out completely.

The hard, fibrous collar at the neck of the cavity or hole, left after the removal of the wart, is trimmed with scissors and the hole converted into a "saucer." The base or bottom of the hole, which is smooth, then must be scraped until smooth and touched repeatedly with a diathermy needle or an electric cautery using a fine point with a light touch. A small wick of ribbon gauze is inserted into the cavity, and the whole area or spot covered with a gauze is held in place by elastoplast.

The patient usually can walk immediately if careful; and after the plug has been removed in 48 hours there should be little discomfort. Healing usually is complete in seven days to ten days.

Remember, X-ray or radium treatment still is considered the best treatment but overdose with radium or X-rays is responsible for poor results. "If a single treatment with X-rays or radium fails to cure, this method of treatment should be discontinued." A plantar wart is a "buried" wart and requires care in removal.

Another method sometimes used is electrodesiccation, in which the wart is dried up by electricity under a local anaesthetic.

YOUR FEET AND THEIR AFFLICTIONS

Porch Furniture

When preparing to store the wicker furniture for the winter, brush off all dust, then scrub with a solution of salt and water. After the furniture is dry, wrap it as well as possible with newspapers. You will be repaid when preparing the porch next spring.

Bolling Eggs

Boil the eggs in salt water and see how much easier the shells will peel. The salt has a tendency to separate the shells from the eggs.

Medicine Stains

A medicine stain can usually be removed with alcohol.

SURPRISE COCONUT PIE

For exquisite puddings, put cooked mixture over jam, in glass.
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs separated
¼ cup desiccated coconut
¼ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup jam or marmalade
Baked and cooled pie shell
Scald milk in double boiler
Mix flour, sugar and salt; gradually stir in scalded milk.
Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until smooth; thicken; cover, and continue to stir, stirring occasionally, until no raw flavor of flour remains.
Beat the egg yolks slightly; slowly stir hot mixture into yolks; return to double boiler and cook, stirring constantly, about 2 minutes.
Mix all but 2 tablespoons of the coconut and the baking powder; stir into filling; stir in vanilla. Cool to lukewarm.
Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold into cooled mixture.
Spread marmalade or jam in bottom of baked and cooled pie shell; turn in filling; sprinkle with remaining 2 tablespoons coconut; brown lightly in a hot oven. Chill, and mailing, to The Bell Syndicate in care of this newspaper, Post Office Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y., and ask for your copy of the Baraten booklet entitled "Your Feet and Their Afflictions."
