BUDGET DEBATE CONCLUDED.—The Budget debate was brought to a close in the Legislature last night shortly before 11 p.m. and the House went into committee on the Estimates with Mr. H. D. McLean in the chair. Adjournment was made shortly after, until 10 a.m. today. It was remarkable that none of the Opposition members with the exception of the leader, took part in the Budget debate.

OPENS TO-DAY IN S' SIDE

Today Summerside will see an addition to her list of haberdashery establishments when the new firm of Bowness and Harris now completely fitted and stocked will open its doors for business.

Mr. F. D. Bowness one of the partners in the new firm is well and popularly known in Summerside having resided there for the past eight years. He was formerly in the banking business in Toronto and lately has successfully engaged in the fox industry.

Mr. A. E. Harris is a Charlottetown man and has had an extensive experience in the buying and selling of men's and boys' wear having been employed at Prowse Bros., Ltd., for the past six years. Ernie is also well known in the sporting fraternity of Charlottetown having always taken a prominent part in all branches of athletics.

The store which has been installed with the most up-to-date fixtures is exceptionally well stocked with a varied line of men's and boys' wear and patrons are assured of prompt and satisfactory service.

Both these young men are to be complimented on their initiative and will no doubt receive their share of Summerside patronage.

Legislative Summary

more for education." His opponents declared that the revenue was already sufficient. The people believed that this was true and took them at their word. They had hardly warmed their seats on the government benches before they added $200,000 a year to the taxation of the people. Premier Stewart would, he had no doubt, prove to be a worthy successor of the Conservative Leaders he had referred to. Already the poll tax candidates at the election opposed the abolition of the Poll Tax. They said if you abolish the poll tax, how are you going to get at the fishermen. From the fishermen they collected taxes on the amount of fifteen cents a case. He was glad to note that the present government were taking steps towards the abolition of that tax. The people are not unreasonable. They were willing to pay taxes for the upkeep of the roads, etc. He expressed great regret that the Dominion grant to encourage agriculture was to be withdrawn, and that he would strongly support a resolution recommending that the protection of agricultural products should be increased by the government of Canada.

Mr. McLure offered his congratulations to the Speaker and to the members of the government to the mover and seconder of the address and to the Opposition who are no longer in a position to fool the people. The speech of the Leader of the Opposition was, he said, a fitting one for All Fools Day. It is no use trying to show that this Province has not been plunged deeply into debt. He believed the report of the External Auditor was one of the best ever presented to the Legislature. It shows that the indebtedness of the Province at the end of 1922 was $1,354,000, and that at the end of 1923 it was $1,575,000 showing that there was an increase of debt in one year of about $220,000. What is the credit standing of the Province? Up to September, 1923, the showing was not what it ought to be. Many things in the Public Accounts are not at all satisfactory. The Sinking Fund was not maintained by the late government. They adopted a new system. They sold almost $100,000 worth of sinking fund bonds, and used the money received for them on current account. But the present government has placed gilt-edged bonds in the Sinking Fund. This one act of the present government will raise the credit of the Province over all other governments. The Leader of the Opposition contends that the government did not collect the taxes of last year in order that a greater deficit might be shown. With reference to the arrears of taxes they were $94,000 in 1923. But the Leader of the Opposition forgot to say that in 1919 the arrears of taxes left uncollected by the Bell Government amounted to $105,000 or $106,000 and the taxes then imposed were less than one-third the amount imposed by the late government. As to agriculture he believed that the farming community will get all the encouragement that can be afforded; for there is now at the head of the Department a practical farmer. Mr. McLure said now on a firm financial basis. It is bringing into the Province over $2,500,000. This revenue can be easily doubled and trebled. He would like to see every farmer have from two to four acres in addition to his present stock. He would like to see fur farming encouraged here as in the States. We have here the foundation for other people how to produce the best fur. There are now 450 ranches in this province giving employment to 1100 persons and it makes use of many by-products of the farm. Those who go into this industry should be educated, so that they can develop it for themselves and bring in $5,000,000 a year as a result. Mr. McLure advocated co-operative marketing and said that farmers have now to deal with the question, how to market their products to the best advantage. Another matter was employment and immigration. Our labor problem is quite a difficult one. There are many men here who are now out of employment. We should first of all see to it that our own people have all the work they can do. He hoped that when spring opens employment will be afforded at good wages. The scale of wages should be raised. Everything possible should be done for the man who toils. Mr. McLure concluded his speech by reference to the reflections of the Leader of the Opposition upon the Lieutenant Governor and his family and to the importance of the fox research station.

Mr. J. A. McDonald was the first speaker after the evening recess. He compared the conduct of the Mathieson and Arsenault administrations with that of the Opposition led by Mr. Bell. As to education, roads and other matters they opposed the proposals of their predecessors and declared that they could pay the teachers well and carry out the road policy without resort to additional taxation. They obtained power on the strength of these declarations, and then passed the last Taxation Act. They didn't follow the example of the Hon. Fred Peters and Hon. Mr. Mathieson. They had no external audit of the accounts in that year, or until the following April. They did not build public works out of revenues. They went out and borrowed the money; and so greatly increased the indebtedness of the country—though they also added greatly to taxation. The year 1923 was election year, and then the road work was done not by contract but by day's labor. They did not obtain 50c to the dollar for the expenditures of last year on the roads. Mr. McDonald stated emphatically that he was opposed to day's work on the roads in election year. Referring to education Mr. McDonald said that there might not be 50 per cent. of the students of Prince of Wales College who fail in the examinations. The Superintendent of Education should be thought take part in the examinations of the higher schools throughout the country. But teachers licenses should not be issued, as in recent years, to persons who had not passed the examinations. Mr. McDonald then referred to the frauds of Andrew Fraser Mitchell, and quoted the evidence at the enquiry to show that the Dominion and not this Province, should be held responsible for the losses sustained by the victims of the agent paid by the Department of Immigration. A member of the Dominion Government the Hon. John E. Sinclair had introduced a bill for the Immigration Department and to Premier Bell; and the Dominion Government should therefore pay those who had lost their money as a result of the false representations of Mitchell. No doubt Mr. Sinclair, a member of the Federal Government acted in good faith. But because of his action the Dominion Government ought to make good the losses. In the case, Mr. McDonald commended Mr. McLure's remarks in favor of co-operative marketing and reviewed at some length the adverse conditions under which farmers now labor.

Mr. McEwen pointed out that the district he represented was the most interesting, historically and today, efforts were also concentrated on identifying the bills, totalling about $6,000, which were taken in the raid Tuesday night on the Council Street Boarding House. So far no definite results have been obtained but police are confident that some of the bills will be identified, thus linking the men and women who were arrested during that raid. On Saturday, next clerks from various branches of the bank will visit detectives' Headquarters and take their time in a minute investigation of the bills recovered so as to ascertain whether they can recognize any of them. The suspects held have been separated and distributed throughout police stations in different parts of the city. No more arrests have been made and no more money recovered.

towards Port Sudan.

By 11 o'clock in the morning it was seen that the fire was a serious one the flames spreading to the pilgrim's baggage and threatening to destroy the wooden decks.

Uses Wireless

The captain during the forenoon had got into wireless communication with several vessels, and at 1 p. m. he asked the nearest of these the Clan MacIvor, to close in and take off the passengers. The Clan MacIvor made haste to comply and the task of transferring the passengers was completed at 6 p. m. The captain of the Frangestan asked the Clan MacIvor to proceed to Port Sudan with the pilgrims, saying he would remain on board the Frangestan and endeavor to make port with her, but shortly afterwards the forward end of the steamer was found to be blazing like a furnace. All hope of extinguishing the fire was abandoned and the captain and crew abandoned the ship. Not a single life was lost, nor was anyone seriously injured.

STUDEBAKER is the world's largest maker of quality cars. Our assets are $90,000,000. We have $50,000,000 in model plants.

Our sales have almost tripled in three years, because of our matchless values. Last year, 145,167 people paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

Liberty Airplane Motors. This is done in no other car at our prices. Then we use more Timken bearings in this car than are used in any competitive car within $1,500 of our price. And Timken bearings take up wear as no other bearings do.

Why this price?

The Light-Six Touring Car is priced very low. Built under ordinary conditions such a car would cost you from $200 to $400 more.

But we build 150,000 cars per year. We make our own parts. We build our own bodies in $10,000,000 body plants. We have 12,500 up-to-date machines. Our major costs are divided by enormous output.

The result is a value no other maker even tries to match in a fine car of this size. Come see what it means to you.
