Guardian Receives Appreciative Letter Identifying Picture

The above photograph appeared first in Monday's issue of The Guardian over a letter from Mr. John W. Muir, of Glasgow, Scotland, who had taken the picture in London and wished to identify the couple in the forefront, who, he understood, reside "just across from Charlottetown."

The following letter from Mr. Donald Sinclair, of the law firm of Sinclair and MacDonald, New Glasgow, N.S., dated Oct. 20, has been received and speaks for itself: "Dear Sir: "The 'Smiling Pair', so called, referred to in your issue of yesterday happen to be my wife and myself, who spent a most pleasant day on the London River on the 6th of September between Westminster Bridge and Hampton Court. "There, as everywhere else in Britain we experienced the utmost courtesy and the rather unique manner in which Mr. Muir has tried to locate us shows the kindness of the Homefolk for their cousins Overseas. "I appreciate very much your publishing the picture and the letter. "Yours sincerely, "DONALD C. SINCLAIR"

Judges in the Hamilton's Century-Six Biscuit Contest sponsored by G. J. Hamilton and Sons Limited, Pictou, and advertised in this paper in September, have announced the winning contestants as follows: First Prize $100.—G. Taylor, Halifax, N. S. Second Prize $50.—Mrs. D. O. Pirie, Saint John, N. B. Third Prize $25.—Mrs. S. C. MacLean, Montague, P. E. I. Special Merit Prize of $5, each to: Mrs. Marie O'Keefe, West Saint John, N. B.; Mrs. Eunice Buchanan, Waterville, N. S.; Mrs. W. H. Poole, Montague, P. E. I.; Mrs. R. B. Elliott, Sheffield Mills, N. S., and Mrs. Geo. W. Coates, Corn Hill, King's Co., N. B.

Hamilton's contest, which called for a seventy-five word letter describing the writer's reaction to the new Century-Six line of biscuits, attracted over a thousand contestants, and was unique in that every contestant, whether winner or not, was awarded, with the compliments of the firm, a beautiful facsimile oil reproduction portrait of H. M. the King, very suitable for framing. The letters received were of uniformly high quality and the judges experienced considerable difficulty in selecting the order of the winners.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS ALFRED COADY

Friends learned with regret of the death Tuesday in Brooklynn, N. Y., of Mrs. Alfred Coady (nee Gertrude Coyle) who passed away in hospital the result of injuries received in an automobile accident.

The deceased who left the province about sixteen years ago occupied the responsible position of assistant manager of the Colonial Paint Co., a position which she held from the time she located in Brooklynn.

Before removing from this city Mrs. Coady occupied the position of accountant with the Rogers Hardware Co. for a number of years, a position which she accepted after graduating from the Charlottetown Business College, and in which position she gave entire satisfaction.

Of a pleasing and cheerful disposition she was known for her dramatic ability, giving freely of her time and talents while here in many amateur theatricals.

Her last visit to her native city was about six years ago when she renewed many friendships.

She leaves to mourn her husband and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Thos. Grogan, Mrs. Wm. McCrory, Mrs. James Mack and Kathleen, all residing in Brooklynn, N. Y., and Fred of Toronto and James sr., foreman of the Patriot composing room, who left yesterday morning to be present at the funeral. The Guardian joins in sincerest sympathy.

ROY FLAHAVEN

Seldom has the Angel of Death made such an impression on the residents of Kensington and surrounding districts, as it did on October 9th instant and claimed for its victim Roy Flahaven at the early age of thirty-one. The deceased had been in perfect health until about two weeks previous to his death when he had the misfortune to cut his finger and which later turned to bloodpoison causing his death.

Roy was always ready with his witty remarks to amuse his listeners and as a violinist he could always take his place at any social gathering. He was an industrious and energetic tinsmith and was succeeding well at his trade and he was widely known and respected by all who knew him. Those who entered his home were always sure of hours of pleasure, as no one ever saw him frown. His passing leaves it hard on his sister Janie who was living with him, as only about a year ago she lost her dear mother. But the uncertainty of life soon shows how frail we mortals are, when his young life so bright and full of promise was quickly enshrouded in the dark valley of death. The last rites of the Holy Catholic Church was administered by his pastor Rev. R. McDorland.

He leaves to mourn their loss one brother and two sisters, namely: Basil and Janie in Kensington, and Emma (Mrs. Edward McCarville) in Kinkora.

On Monday morning his remains were conveyed from his home to Indian River Church. The long cortege of cars which followed his remains was a tribute of respect to his memory. Requiem High Mass was celebrated by his pastor Rev. R. MacDonald, who also officiated at the grave. The body was then laid in the family plot beside that of his mother and father there to await a glorious Resurrection. The pall-bearers were Messrs Arthur Ready, Noy Moose, James Mullanly, Claude Dinning, John Burns and Eldon Reeves. May his soul rest in peace.

There were three visitors present and thirteen members who answered with a nickel.

Reports of different committees followed. Routine business was then discussed. It was moved and seconded that ten dollars be sent to the Montague Hospital, all bills to be paid and that the district convention be held in Sturgeon Hall Oct. 21st, the members of the Sturgeon Institute supplying the lunch. Proceeds from dance and lunch Sept. 7, $29.46.

New committees appointed were: Sick, Miss Gerlie Lannigan and Miss Martha McKenna; school, Mrs. Richard Llewellyn and Mrs. William Johnston.

After Mrs. William Johnson invited the Institute to her home for the next meeting, the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem, and a social evening was

The Scallop Is A Fish Delicacy

It swims by rapidly opening and shutting the valves of its shell

The scallop is one of the delicacies among fish foods. It is a shellfish. While the whole scallop is edible, it is the adductor muscle which opens and closes the two valves of the shell, that is so highly regarded by the epicure. That muscle is very tender, which is not what one would expect a muscle to be.

There are about two hundred species of scallop throughout the world. The valves of the shell are more or less fan-shaped and are winged at the hinge. One valve is often curved while the other is flat. These molluscs can swim with considerable speed by rapidly opening and shutting the valves of the shell.

Scallops occur in certain New Brunswick and Quebec waters and they are also found off Prince Edward Island, but it is from Digby, Annapolis and Lunenburg Counties in Nova Scotia that the largest catches are made. Out of the total landings of over 133,000 gallons made in Canada last year, more than 126,000 gallons came from these three counties of Nova Scotia, mainly Digby and Annapolis.

There are some sixty scallop boats engaged in that special industry in western Nova Scotia. The fish were taken by means of a dredge-like apparatus. The Nova Scotian catch alone was valued at about $200,000. The total catch at $208,000 was nearly three times what it was in 1932. It has been increasing every year recently.

Evidently your son is not normal, otherwise he would at least be interested in amusing himself. It is a case for physicians and psychiatrists. Perhaps they can find out what ails him and correct it, or perhaps you will have to reconcile yourself to the fact that he is one of those unfortunates who will always be little boys and who will never be able to assume the responsibilities of a man or do the work of a man in the world.

Dear Miss Dix—I have two married children who have children. I have made a good job of rearing my own children and they are all right, except for one thing. They resent advice as to how to feed their children, saying that I am a back number and don't know anything about children's diet. Should I take all of this abuse or should I talk back to them, reminding them of the many kind deeds I have done for them when they were little? A DISAPPOINTED MOTHER.

Answer:

I am afraid there is nothing you can do about it except let your children rear their children in their own way. That's the way you did your own, you know. Remember you didn't take very kindly to your Mother's advice on the subject. She didn't know about vitamins then and nobody dreamed that a baby's salvation depended on its eating spinach.
