LIGHT AT EVENTIDE

Often times we look forward with forebodings to the time of old age, forgetful that at eventide it shall be light. To many saints, old age is the choicest season in their lives. A halcyon air fans the mariner's cheek as he hears the shore of immortality, fewer waves ruffle his sea, quiet reigns, deep, still and solemn. From the altar of age the flashes of the fire of youth are gone, but the more real flame of earnest feeling remains. The pilgrims have reached the land Beulah, that happy country, whose days are as the days of heaven upon earth. Angels visit it, celestial gales blow over it, flowers of paradise grow in it, and the air is filled with seraphic music. Some dwell here for years, and others come to it but a few hours before their departure, but it is an Eden on earth. We may well long for the time when we shall recline in its shady groves and be satisfied with hope until the time of fruition comes. The setting sun seems larger than when aloft in the sky, and a splendour of glory tinges all the clouds which surround his going down. Pain breaks not the calm of the sweet twilight of age, for strength made aeretic in weakness bears up with patience under it all. Ripe fruits of choice experience are gathered as the rarest of life's evening, and the soul prepares itself for rest. The Lord's people shall also enjoy light in the hour of death. Unbelief laments; the shadows fall, the night is coming, the existence is ending. Ah no, crieth faith, the night is far spent, the true day is at hand! Light is come, the light of immortality, the light of a Father's countenance. Gather up thy feet in the bed, see the waiting hand of spirits! Angels wait these away. Farewell, beloved one, thou art gone, thou wastest this hand. Ah, now it is light! The pearly gates are open, the golden streets shine in the Jasper light. We cover our eyes, but thou beholdest the unseen; adieu, brother, thou hast light at eventide, such as we have not yet.

On her return this morning, if the weather is moderate she will go over to Canoe Cove in order to remove the masts of the schooner Flora T. lying submerged there, so that there will be no menace to navigation. Both masts of the schooner are sticking some nine or ten feet out of the water and they will be pulled away with hawsers.

BRAVERY REWARDED.—James Ross, aged 13 and Graham Ross, 14, sons of Rev. George E. Ross of Goderich, and formerly of Zion Church, Charlottetown, were each presented recently with the Royal Humane Society medals at the Jessie Alexander concert in North Street, Methodist Church, Toronto. Both are members of No. 1 Troop of Boy Scouts and as the concert was under the auspices of the Goderich Y.M.C.A., it was most appropriate that the presentation should be made a part of the program. These boys at the risk of their own lives saved from drowning Ralph Pierce of Toronto, aged 15 when out bathing in Lake Huron last July at Javett's Beach, Bayfield.

POPULAR PUPIL.—A large vote was polled yesterday in connection with the election of a vice-president for the Science Undergraduates Society. Harold P. He is also a musician of some reputation, having played the cornet for the Students' Orchestra and Band since their inception.—Says the Montreal Exchange.

HIGH TIDE.—Saturday night saw the highest tide that has risen in the East river for a long time.
