THE YEAR THAT'S AWA'

Most of us will regard the year that's awa' with mixed feelings. Both from the Imperial and the domestic point of view, it has had its successes as well as its disappointments.

As a record for future reference we may on this, the opening day of the new year, throw a backward glance at the outstanding happenings as they more directly affect ourselves.

The year 1914 opened with the brightest prospects in the history of the province. The harvest of the previous year had been bountiful; the fox industry had attained a popularity and prosperity unequalled by any other commercial enterprise in Canada.

Municipally, a new Mayor and City Council were elected in January, the Mayor, Mr. R. H. Sterns, succeeding His Worship Mr. Charles Lyons.

It will be remembered that during the Boer War canned food supplied by one contractor was rejected as bad, yet was afterwards purchased by another who made a fortune out of the transaction.

The embalmers scandal in the United States during the war with Spain and the astounding corruption brought to light on both sides in the war between Japan and Russia are other instances of this species of human greed which defies loyalty as well as law and right.

Army contracts are, after all, only contracts, and while thousands are entered into yearly, involving many millions of dollars and many contractors, the amount of dishonesty on the whole is small.

The effect of the war on the prosperity of this province generally, has hardly been felt. The fox industry received a check so far as the taking up of options and the purchase of new options on next year's stock were concerned.

So far as social and domestic affairs are concerned, it may be recorded that great progress has been made in the erection and fitting up of the Dalton Sanitarium at Wiltshire.

A new departure for the province was the institution of a social census at the instance of Rev. Dr. Myers, Toronto.

St. Dunstan's Cathedral, which was destroyed by a disastrous fire in February, 1913, has been so far restored as to permit of services being held in the basement.

The harvest for the year was the best in the Island's history, and the prices obtained were correspondingly satisfactory.

the war, which has caused untold disaster to communities where manufactories are the mainstay has had little appreciable effect on the circulation of money in this province.

And now we are entering upon a New Year. What it holds for us we do not know. Judging by the prices ruling for our principal produce, there should be a continuance of the present prosperity.

We have not touched upon the political progress during the year as we hope to review this in our next issue.

ARMY CONTRACTS

There are the usual reports of corruption in connection with the contracts given by the Militia Department. Charges of this kind are common and have been heard in connection with contracts large and small in every department.

In connection with the equipment of the two contingents now ready for the front, there were, necessarily, very many and very large contracts. It stands to the credit of Canadians and of the heads of the Militia Department particularly that, so far, only one conviction has been secured.

Mr. Philip A. (Tip) Musgrave of the Halifax Naval College is visiting Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Watson, Esplanade, and will be their guest for about six weeks.

Miss Mary Lavie of Edgehill College is having a pleasant visit with friends in this city and was the guest of honor at a very nicely arranged bridge on Wednesday evening.

The illness of Mr. Artemas Lord, Brighton, is deeply regretted by his friends.

Hon. Charles Dalton spent a few days here this week before leaving on a visit to Boston.

Mr. Claude Murphy, who is with the second contingent at St. John, spent a few days this week with his father Senator P. C. Murphy, Tignish.

The Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Rogers are to receive as usual at Government House this afternoon.

The continued illness of Mr. S. W. Crabb is much regretted by his very wide circle of friends.

A cable received from London on Wednesday, December 23rd, announced the marriage of Ethel Marion Farquhar, daughter of Captain J. A. and Mrs. Farquhar, to Lieutenant Mark Martin, of H. M. S. Hemeon.

The Boers taught England much that has been of use in this war, but nothing perhaps so valuable as the art of digging.

Both the French and American navies have made special provision for the prevention of gun deafness. The French have several ingenious artificial contrivances, while the Americans are said to use a blinker-like bandage of vulcanite rubber.

Several officers who recently returned on furlough from the French front were called up for examination and found to have suffered more than a fifty per cent. impairment in hearing, owing to the incessant ear-splitting reports of their own guns.

The exact physiological reason was usually found in a rupture of a drum membrane, with occasionally a shattering or concussion of the aural labyrinth.

HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK

Christmas passed off very quietly in Charlottetown. Family parties were quite general and during the week several enjoyable informal gatherings have taken place, gaily joined in by the different students who are home from the colleges and who are now preparing to return to school life again after an all too short vacation.

Christmas services were held in several of the city Churches, special music being rendered by the respective choirs. The interior church decorations were most artistically arranged leaving a pleasing effect.

The Free Masons fittingly celebrated St. John's Day this week by attending service in St. James Church on Sunday. Rev. Dr. Fullerton, Past Grand Master giving them a hearty welcome and delivering a powerful address.

Mrs. (Dr.) Reddy of Montreal is spending the holidays with her mother Mrs. L. M. Poole.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Cossman of Halifax spent the Christmas week with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. S. Bayer, Brighton.

Quite the nicest dance of the season was delightfully arranged for last Monday evening by Mr. C. Simpson and Mr. C. Tidmarsh. Being a programme dance the young people had a specially delightful time.

Judge and Mrs. Stewart returned yesterday from a holiday trip to Montreal, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jones.

SOLDIERS THANK LADIES

Sir.—On behalf of the non-commissioned officers and men of the 82nd Regiment, Composite Battalion, I desire to express to the ladies of Prince Edward Island my appreciation and thanks for the kindness you have shown, and the trouble you have taken, at this glad season of the year in remembering us so graciously by forwarding to us such appetizing, eatables and delicacies as puddings, cakes, chocolates, creams, candy of various kinds, etc.

Our Christmas dinner was one which we shall not easily forget although we were a good many miles from home in the services of our King and country, and a sense of loneliness could not help pervading us, when we heard the names of various ladies of Charlottetown whom we knew called out as contributors we felt as if we were back on Dear Old Prince Edward Isle, the place we love the best.

Again thanking the ladies and extending to them the compliments of this glad season, I am etc., Yours Sincerely, H. PORRIOR.

EVERY BRITISH SOLDIER WAS REMEMBERED

LONDON, December 31.—In northern France Christmas morning followed a cloudy night, clear and crisp, but not too cold. That cloudy Christmas eve was just what the Santas of the Army Service Corps wanted, and they worked forward even to the extreme points of the trenches of British soldiers. Some of these trenches had only been captured a few hours previously.

At only one place, just south of Bethune, was there any serious attack by the enemy, and with visions of turkey and plum pudding awaiting their return, two British regiments met the advance more than half way, and used the bayonet in fine style, driving the attackers back with but insignificant loss to themselves, and got back to their own trenches just as the Christmas fare was arriving.

There must have been some units who were missed, but up to Saturday morning not a single complaint had come into my old major, who so adequately placed the part of Santa Claus. Piled upon the platform of the big station here are still tons of Christmas stores, crates of turkeys and hampers and big cases of biscuits, chocolates, muffers, socks and caps.

In the estimate of one army service officer, there is enough left to supply a great part of the army for a week, so splendid has been Britain's gift in kind to the brave troops at the front, and reasonable supplies are still piling into this base.

Christmas morning opened quietly with the carillon bells from the quaint old cathedral tower almost joyous in their peals. Then about seven o'clock came the usual rumble of the enemy's big guns, which meant that Christmas was to be as other days had been, no celebration to the Prince of Peace, but a forced tribute to the god of strife. It did not phase our troops. They expected it and took it as part of the Christmas menu.

Today I have been endeavoring to trace the Canadians, who are supposed to be close to the firing line. French officers still declare that overseas troops have arrived at the first reserve base, but British officers who have travelled most of the line from Ypres to Arras, will not confirm, and mildly deny, that the Canadians have any immediate chance of going into action.

Some of my friends among the correspondents who have come along the British lines of communication, too, doubt the report, and they have had every opportunity of coming across them. Perhaps they are part of the new scheme which the allies are preparing an offensive scheme which friendly officers tell us will surprise friends as well as foes, and will perhaps set the seal of complete failure on the Kaiser's costly attempt to reach Calais.
