Two men aboard the vessel when the fire broke out in the fore-cabin from an unknown cause, escaped injury. British Ex-service Men Seize and Hold Farm Land

(Canadian Press) LONDON, March 3.—Ex-service men on Harris Island, Hebrides, have seized a farm with the intention of splitting it up into small holdings. This action has been provoked by resentment against the Board of Agriculture for having failed to fulfill an alleged promise to provide holdings for the former soldiers after the death of Lord Leverhulme and the collapse of his Hebridean development scheme. The sympathy of the islanders is entirely with the raiders, and more incursions of the kind are likely to occur. Lord Leverhulme, the famous soap manufacturer who died in May 1925, undertook the development of some of the Hebridean islands on an extensive scale. In 1918 his idea being to develop the fisheries and other industries, including the by-products of fish, and in this connection he bought Lewis Island. The islanders however refused to cooperate with him in his schemes and after he had spent vast sums of money thereon he abandoned them altogether and presented the island of Lewis to the inhabitants as a gift.

Democratic House of Lords Planned

(Canadian Press) LONDON, March 3.—Democratization of the House of Lords is suggested in a proposal which has been submitted to the Government by a cabinet commission headed by Viscount Cave, according to the Daily Express. The proposals are said to include one for giving the chamber greater powers and one for reducing the present membership of 742. The nucleus of 150 composed of men of royal blood, of legal and ecclesiastical peers, would be supplemented through elections by various bodies. One of the chief aims of the group which would make the change is to increase the veto power of the Lords.

The Carferry

Leaving Borden at 2.40 yesterday afternoon, the Car-ferry reached Tormentine at 5.40 and completed the return trip to the island at 7.50 p. m. The line was blocked by snow at Emerald for the better part of the day, and the mails and passengers for the mainland were transferred to another train. A plow preceding the incoming Borden express last night was stalled just outside Summerside, and although the men were at work at once replacing it on the tracks, the line had not been cleared, holding back the express.

YE OLD-TIME FIDDLERS' CONTEST

Will be Held in Strand Theatre on Night of March 30th.

Efforts to revive many an old time art that had flourished in Prince Edward Island in the blamy days of our grandmothers have quite recently met with surprising success. It would seem that the farther we recede from the Arcadian atmosphere of our forefathers the more importance do we attach to anything reminding us of that earlier and more romantic period. Note the awakened interest today in the almost forgotten domestic arts of weaving, mat hooking, and manufacture of vegetable dyes. The spinning wheel and other relics of pioneer days which the last generation ungratefully kept hidden away in the darkest recesses of the attic now excite, wherever found, the enthusiasm of the antique collector, and are boldly displayed, newly varnished, in fashionable drawing rooms. In the spirit of the age there has awakened a reverence for old things. But there is one old time art, not yet altogether lost to us, which however through lack of proper appreciation we have allowed to decline sadly from its former prominence. It flourishes now only in out-of-the-way corners in town and country. It is something that we all loved fondly when we were young, but have now, we think, outgrown with the advent of radio and gasoline. It is intimately connected with the past history of the Island; it was a feature of all the social gatherings of our forefathers. It stirred alike the blood of Irish, French and Scotch, for it appealed to sentiments that were universal. Its exponents— and Prince Edward Island boasted many star performers in this art in the old days—were, like the itinerant bards of Scotland, privileged characters for whom every door was open, who received plaudits and honors everywhere as by divine right, and who created at their coming mirth and merriment galore. There were some other than the sturdy knights of the bow, the old time Fiddlers. Not violinists, mark you, but Fiddlers! There is a vast distinction. Hey diddle-diddle, the cat and the violin! Think how silly that would sound! A violin may resemble a fiddle; it may even give forth sounds, in its preliminary or tuning up stage, of a faintly similar nature. But here all similarity ends. The difference, in the performance is even greater, for it is the difference between the biased and technically perfect magazine posts of today and the unlettered genius of Homer. The Fiddler learned his jigs and reels by ear, scoring the base help of the printed sheet, and wherever he forgot anything he improvised, often in a marvellous fashion. No two old time Fiddlers ever played Lord McDonald's Reel or The Devil among the Tailors in exactly the same way; the performances were all ways highly spiced with individuality; the interpretations were as varied as the style of the fiddle or the position in which it was played. It is therefore of more than passing interest to note that the Tourist and Publicity Association are attempting by means of an old time Fiddling and Step Dancing contest, to revive this time honored art which seems to be slipping away from us. The contest, as advertised, will be held in the Strand Theatre on March 30th. The Fiddlers entering the contest must be genuine old timers, and at least fifty years of age. Contestants will be especially welcomed. They may play quadrilles, schottisches, polkas, jigs, reels, hornpipes, or what they please,—but it must be genuine "old stuff"; none of these new fangled fox trots and bear gallops will be tolerated. Prizes will be given, and the winner in the Fiddling Contest will be given a free trip to Boston, to enter as Prince Edward Island's champion in the great international contest to be held there on April 6th under the auspices of the Intercolonial Club of Boston. Should he win out in Boston, as did Mr. Beaton, a former Islander, at a similar contest held recently in Saskatchewan, it will be something worth crowing about indeed. Here then is an opportunity for every old time Fiddler in the Province. From now till March 25th let the rehearsals begin. Come all you young fellows of fifty or over who have twanged fiddle-strings at weddings, tea-parties, house-warmings, bean-suppers, barn-dances, stumping bees and corn frolics throughout our fair

BROTHER AND SISTER FOUND MURDERED

Discover Woman Hanging From Ceiling—Man Battered with Axe—Think Robbery Was Motive.

(Canadian Press) ST. CUBBINVILLE, Ohio, March 3.—Miss Nellie Herron, 55, and her brother, Robert, 62, wealthy farm residents were found slain in their home today when a milkman receiving no answer to knocks at the door, forced an entrance. The place had been ransacked thoroughly. Miss Herron was hanging from a hook in the ceiling by a rope around her neck. Cats in the farm yard with bloody noses led to the discovery of the body of her brother, battered with an axe, lying in a barn stall about 200 feet from the house. The authorities think robbery was the motive for the slaying.

Reservoir Dam at Imperoyal Burst, Causing Damage

(Canadian Press) HALIFAX, N. S., Mar. 3.—One man was injured, much damage was caused and acres of land inundated when a reservoir containing 2,500,000 gallons of water burst without warning at Imperoyal near here yesterday. The tank was constructed of half inch steel plate and no explanation of the collapse was offered by officials. The whole side of the reservoir gave way and the water in its swiftly rush down to the harbor swept everything before it, twisting steel rods and snapping off power poles. The injured man was 200 yards away when the flood struck him, dashing him against a post. A section of the reservoir 20 by 100 feet was thrown a distance of 200 feet.

Robert Scott is Taken to Chicago

(Canadian Press) SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Mar. 3.—Robert Scott, released from San Quentin Saturday to authorities of Chicago, where he is wanted on a murder charge, left here yesterday for that city in custody of a detective. Scott is accused of the hold up and murder of a Chicago drug clerk three years ago, for which his brother, Russell Scott, twice adjudged insane, and finally was in San Quentin for burglary under the name of John Redding, when released.

Province all these years with such little recognition heretofore! Come with your fiddles and your bows to Charlottetown, to the Strand Theatre, on March 30th, and be assured (whether you win or lose) of a hearty welcome. Come all you young fellows who can step-dance to the old time fiddlers! Never fear, but that the audience will respond. Such a promised treat has not been forthcoming for a long, long time. Not since Prohibition, suggests one old gentleman, huskily; but that is going rather far afield. Come with your children, your sweethearts, your wives, your mothers and your grandmothers. A good time will be had by all.

BIGGEST STOCK BREAK SINCE 1920-21

New York Exchange Had Day of Turmoil and Surprises.

(Special to the Guardian) NEW YORK, March 3.—Tonight a million lights burned in the skyscrapers of Lower Manhattan while clerks and stenographers of Wall Street perspired over their ledgers and typewriters trying to catch up on the days 3,015,700 share bear market. The detailed story of how the severest break in prices on the New York stock exchange since 1920-21 developed, was meanwhile going forward over the telegraph wires to Palm Beach, Miami and other Southern resorts where the millions of the street are spending their winter vacations. Brokers read in these advices of how the gradual falling off in price increased in momentum until the last hour when total sales exceeded 1,400,000 shares a new high record. The tape was many minutes behind dealings on the exchange and thousands of customers congregated in board room where they were thrown into consternation when the word was flashed that Hudson Motors were selling at 108 when the ticker was pointing out 118 1/4. The fact that the Interstate Commerce Commission's rejection of the proposed "nickel plate" merger came within an hour after the market closed and that sales were hard hit today, led to the rumor that there had been a "leak" on the commission's action. During the final moments of the market the scene on the floor of the exchange was one of the turmoil with wildly gesticulating brokers shrieking their orders, messenger boys dashing about and telephone clerks barking out confirmations of orders and quotations to their offices at scores of booths.

McLeod, President of District 26 United Mine Workers of America, sent out a circular letter, to all the locals in the district reporting the correspondence passing between the British Empire Steel Corporation officials and the executive of the coal miners' organization, and calling for a referendum on March 11 on a two year contract without the six monthly wage revision as recommended in the Duncan Commission report, but containing the check-off of union dues provision. LATEST FROM THE CAPITAL WORLD ABOUT MUSSOLINI

(Canadian Press) OTTAWA, March 3.—With the house adjourned till March 15, there is a lull in the parliamentary battle which has been waged since the House opened on January 7. Both sides are taking advantage of the breathing space, but that it is nothing more than a pause is expected by all hands. Meanwhile the government is at work on legislation. Daily cabinet meetings are the practice, and estimates are being revised and bills prepared. These include old age pension bill; rural credits, a bill to transfer natural resources to Alberta and a bill to amend the Dominion Elections Act. There are important appointments to be made although shortness of adjournment precludes any general cabinet reorganization. Expectation is that the appointment of Hon. C. A. Dunning will be followed by another cabinet appointment within a short time. W. D. Euler, Liberal member for Fort North Waterloo has been frequently mentioned for the portfolio of Labor.

(Canadian Press) LONDON, March 3.—Sir Sidney Lee, famous authority on Shakespeare died today. OTTAWA, March 3.—The cabinet council concluded its first meeting of the present recess shortly after six o'clock this evening, after a sitting which extended over four hours. While it was officially stated that there was no official announcement to make it is understood that the legislative program of the government for presentation to parliament when the House re-opens on March 15, was under discussion. A number of routine matters it is stated also received attention. A further session of the cabinet will begin tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

(Canadian Press) OTTAWA, March 3.—While the rank and file of the members of Parliament are taking advantage of the twelve days recess, the executive of the Progressive party will remain in Ottawa consulting with the government on the form and substance of legislation to be brought down when the House meets again. Mr. Forke called a general meeting of the Progressives this morning to discuss the outline of proposed legislation the details of which he studied by the executive during the recess.

WILL TELL THE WORLD ABOUT MUSSOLINI

Rossi, Former Press Agent Escapes from Italy--To make Public Complete Story of Matteotti Murder

(PARIS, Mar. 3.—Cesare Rossi, former press agent for Premier Mussolini, but now his bitter enemy, escaped from Italy to France yesterday afternoon, landing from a motor boat at Nice last night. Since amnesty was granted to him against his will he remained at Rome until a few days ago, when he motored at night to Spezia and took the train there to San Remo, where, according to previous arrangements, he strolled to the beach and got a fisherman to row him out to sea, as if on pleasure. A motor boat from the French side was awaiting Rossi, filled with other enemies of the dictator, and he boarded this and was carried to Nice. Rossi brought with him documents signed by Mussolini which, added to the documents already outside of Italy, will, according to Rossi, prove that the Premier of Italy is an arch-Machiavelli, and that all the violence that has occurred in Italy has been under his personal direction. Rossi intends to make full use of his liberty by making public the complete story of the Matteotti murder, which he lays directly at the feet of Mussolini. The original intention was to bring Rossi out of the country in an airplane, but it was agreed that a motor boat was safer. As an indication of the power of Mussolini's enemies, the Fascists did not know how to prevent Rossi's flight and among the dozen or so who arranged the plans for his escape, there was not a leak. They were also in constant secret correspondence with Rossi, showing the effectiveness of a clandestine post in Italy. Rossi's reason for leaving his country was to bring Mussolini before the bar of the world's opinion. As the Premier's personal press agent he was involved in the Matteotti affair; and among those arrested, he remained sixteen months in prison, and when the far-sical case against him was prepared, along with Marinelli Fikseli, it was for complicity in a political murder, which had already been covered by a royal decree of amnesty and therefore he was free. Rossi protested against getting his liberty this way insisting that he was entirely innocent of the crime, knew nothing about it, and that Mussolini was using him as a scapegoat. He said it was a stain on his character to be given amnesty for a crime he did not commit, and asked a public trial, but this was refused. When he was set at liberty a close watch was kept on him, and it is said that a huge sum was offered him to make peace, but Rossi declaring that Mussolini had treated him falsely and treacherously said there was not enough money in the Italian treasury to keep him silent. As most of his political friends were already re-
