"To Mary - With Love"
Film Hit, Gallant Love Story of Today Playing at Capitol, Summerside

To you, with praise - for a fine motion picture - we give "To Mary With Love."
The Twentieth Century-Fox screen version of R. Chad Sherman's highly praised and widely-discussed novel of modern love opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday and the audience, stirred with the story and drama of modern love, pronounced it the greatest romance ever brought to the screen.

Shortly after Myrna and Maxter are married, Baxter becomes involved in an affair with Claire Trevor which almost disrupts the romance. Only Baxter's pleading and confession, his evident need for her, hold Myrna to his side. The incident is forgotten as Baxter plunges into finance and accumulates a fortune and their happiness is complete when they discover they are to have a child.

The baby dies and, from the heights, the lovers plunge to the depths of unhappiness. The wild mad days of 1929 wipe out Baxter's fortune and he and Myrna are forced to live in a small, shabby suburban cottage. Again Hunter steps in, convinces Baxter of his ability and renews Myrna's faith in her husband. Then comes what is perhaps one of the most poignant and moving scenes ever recorded on the screen. It is Christmas Eve. Myrna has prepared an elaborate dinner in celebration of Baxter's new job. Eagerly she awaits his homecoming. The hours pass, the dinner grows cold. Baxter, in the meantime, finds he has been discharged. On the way home, he again meets Claire Trevor and they go off on an all-night party. Myrna, in tears, resolves to leave Baxter.

How these two - these gallant two, with their gallant love - arrive at a new understanding and a new and finer appreciation of each other, make "To Mary - With Love" a love letter that every theatre-goer must add to his list of screen memories.

S., who preached a splendid Masonic Sermon based on the two pillars of the Temple which he said represented "Endurance" and "Strength," and next to the Christian Church he counted Masonry the greatest order in the universe to bring about the "spirit of brotherhood."

A solo by Miss Winnifred Wright of Bedouque, "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer," was much appreciated. Among the visiting masons were Mr. W. P. Doull, Mr. Warren Lord, and Mr. John H. Howatt of Charlottetown, the former being one of the oldest and most advanced masons in the province.

eu upon the desire of the Nazis to keep the race fit and mixtures with what are considered inferior breeds. If you go to Germany you will see the results of the process. A giant who came out of the forests to fight the Romans two thousand years ago. He is superior to all others. Mixture of his blood with Semitic or any non-Nordic is therefore to be avoided. And if you go to Italy you will hear a great deal of the great race of Romans whose blood the modern Italian carry, who conquered the known world centuries ago.

"This is the sort of thing with which democracy in Europe has to contend. The Fascist theories are held by the so-called "have-not" countries whose finances are strained and which have few natural resources. They regard England, France and the United States as rich, fat and easy-living. There can be no doubt that if the democracies should remain lethargic then the conquest of Ethiopia would be only the first of a series of aggressions from Italy and Germany. But there is a new temper in Great Britain especially. The rearmament programme is ample evidence that the government will not accept another such rebuff as it did during the Ethiopian affair and time is on the side of the democracies. Every day that the rearmament race proceeds, the odds weigh more heavily against the Fascist countries. They had an early start but the inferiority of their natural resources makes it impossible for them to maintain the pace. And as Mr. Bingham, the American Ambassador in London, said a few weeks ago: While dictatorships are better fitted to start wars, democracies are better able to finish them. We can see the truth of this statement if we remember the fierce fighting spirit generated in the great democracies by men like Lloyd George, Wilson and Clemson.

Whenever I think of this great question, "Can Europe keep the peace?" I remember an historian whom I met in London some years ago. He had made a collection of treaties, three or four thousand in number, ranging from ancient up to modern times. He found, by a great deal of examination, that the average life of a treaty was between seven and eight years. This goes to show that no settlement can last in Europe. Some vigorous races expand; others decay. The continent is dynamic with the urge of the stronger to prey on the weaker. In brief, this means: War is inevitable. "What can be said on the other side? What are the chances for peace? The memories of the last war remain with a large proportion of all the people of the world. In nearly every country there is undoubtedly a large educated and informed opinion that war is more terrible than ever. Statesmen will find it more difficult than ever before to convince people that war is a remedy for any difficulty whatsoever. "But we can't answer this question, "Can Europe keep the peace?" This is because war comes when reason has departed. It is a matter of mass psychology so it is unpredictable. Masses fight not for what is in their heads but for what is in their hearts. It is up to states-
