The Style Review of 1913 --- Fall and Winter Wear The Master Designers of the World Represented

A Magnificent Display and its Significance

The Word Of the Moment is Millinery

WITH EVERY WOMAN, at least, who has seen the display of PROWSE HATS. They demand attention and compel admiration because these are different hats, charming in the hand, but a literal revelation of beauty when deftly poised on the head. That they reveal unsuspected beauties in the wearers as well as in themselves is not the least of their many commendations to favor. And that they are the last word in distinguished and distinguishing style is half the secret of their favor. Among them are the cream of new Hats from famous milliners of Paris, London and New York. But equally beautiful are our own adaptations of these French hats, not lacking one bit of their chic, and style in original ways. Tailored Hats, Dress Hats, Morning Hats and children's millinery a wide range of original and imported models from $2.50 to $15.00.

FROM ALL THE WORLD OVER where fashion reigns have come to us the superb gowns, wraps, waists, hats, dresses, coats and furs that will be shown to you here all next week in a wonderfully attractive way, and which will be the authoritative STYLE REVIEW OF THE YEAR. It is an exhibit which will please the most fastidious women of Charlottetown and vicinity and one which they may speak of with pride to their friends.

THE REVIEW THIS YEAR is a most remarkable one in many ways. It is the most elaborately comprehensive ever attempted in Charlottetown. In fact we can confidently say that never before has there been exhibited in the history of the ready-to-wear garment business, so diversified, wide embracing and complete a collection of

HIGH FREIGHT RATE ON WESTERN CANADA CATTLE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—A dispatch from Chicago to the Wall Street Journal says: "An eighty-cent freight rate from Alberta to Chicago is likely to prevent many Western Canadian cattle from reaching Chicago. From equidistant points in United States, the rate is only sixty cents. Canadian roads are naturally anxious to prevent diversion of live stock traffic to American lines, and there is a general disposition to throw every possible obstacle in the path of international cattle traffic."

THE HOUSE NEXT DOOR

Judging from the remarks about town yesterday, The Guardian's announcement that the W. S. Harkins Players would open a five days engagement at the Opera House commencing Tuesday next, was appreciated. Mr. Harkins always brings with him the best actors and actresses, he can get, to say nothing of the plays, always look forward to his annual visit with pleasure. This year will be no exception, and he promises an even better company, and a splendid repertoire of recent New York successes. The opening play will be The House Next Door, the big success of last season at the Gaiety Theatre, New York, where it ran a whole season. Its a delightful comedy full of bright lines that cause one to laugh almost continuously from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Briefly told the story is as follows: Sir John Cotswold, born a baronet, and he living in the "Majesty of Birth" is the type of Englishman that in years gone by thought it a disgrace to be acquainted with figures or know where and how his money went. Too late he finds that his property has gone, because he couldn't lift the mortgages. The new owner, Sir Isaac Jacobson is a Jew, and a very fine type of man. He had been born on the estate of Sir John Cotswold's father. Sir Isaac's father having been a humble chain maker. The son having amassed a fortune, he gradually buys up all of the Cotswold estate. This greatly angers Sir John, and when Sir Isaac, who has been knighted, comes to live in The House Next Door, Sir John's anger knows no bounds. Each family has a son and a daughter, who fall in love with each other. Both fathers forbid their marriage, and the children prepare to obey them. The completion of the romance will be given next Tuesday night. If you enjoy a good comedy, a genuine story of heart interest, don't fail to see The House Next Door. 2338.

—If you cannot shop in person send your child. The little tot will be given the same courteous here that would be extended to you. The order will be promptly filled, no over-charge made, courteous, satisfactory service guaranteed. We like to see the child come here for it shows that you have confidence in us and the child likes to come here for it knows it is treated very nicely. Send the child, The MacKinnon Drug Co., Corner Great George and Kent Sts. Mt.

VOLTURNO BRIDE GETS GREAT SURPRISE.

NEW YORK, October 27.—There was an echo yesterday of the recent disaster to the steamer Volturmo, which was burned at sea, when forty-six survivors of the ill-fated vessel were brought into port by the steamer Carmania. They were rescued by the steamer Devonian and taken to Liverpool, where they were transferred to the Carmania. There were numerous dramatic scenes at the Hebrew sheltering and immigration aid society building when the new arrivals came face to face with others of the Volturmo's saved, previously brought here by other steamers. A bride who had become separated from her husband during the rescue at sea and who had believed him dead, screamed in fright, "It is his ghost," when she beheld him, and then fainted. Mrs. Brouche Grossman, of Philadelphia, with three children, was among the Carmania's passengers. She had been brooding over the supposed loss of her husband and a child and was overjoyed when informed that they arrived here last week and had gone to Philadelphia.

COMMENTS OF THE ENGLISH PRESS.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Comments of the Unionist press on Premier Asquith's speech at Ladybank on Saturday, announcing the decision of the government on the Irish problem, give the impression that there is no chance of arriving at a compromise. The Ulster papers denounce the speech in the strongest terms, as closing the door to any settlement by consent. The Nationalist papers persist in the view that the exclusion of Ulster from Home Rule cannot be countenanced. The English papers admitting that the speech might be interpreted as an offer to consider temporarily the separate treatment of Ulster, express the opinion that it is impossible under the conditions imposed, and that further elucidation would be required from the government before negotiations could be entered into.

INSPECTORS SEIZED LADY'S CIGARETTES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The largest single seizure the Customs inspectors have made since the new regulations prohibiting the importation of cigarettes went into effect, is on record at customs house today as that of plumes valued at $600 from Miss Edna McLoughlin, daughter of a former police inspector here, who arrived yesterday from Europe. The young woman had frankly declared the fine feathers as part of her apparel, which was valued in all at $8,000, and was shocked when she learned that regardless of her declaration the inspectors must seize the cigarettes.
